Rated Just Above Reconstruction Body; Voters Are Told They Are to Blame

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Aboard Presidential Special, June 9.—President Truman toned down one of his attacks on the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress today.

After reflection he said it was not the worst Congress in history, but only the second worst.

"I think," he said, "that the Thad Stevens Congress was a little worse."

He was referring to the Republican House of reconstruction days that impeached President Andrew Johnson.

[Thaddeus Stevens, a Pennsylvania Republican, was leader of a bloc of radicals in the post-Civil War Congress that thought the South should be treated as a conquered enemy.

[After Lincoln's death, Stevens and his cohorts launched the reconstruction period in the South. It was Stevens, one of the most powerful members of the House, who introduced the bill calling for the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson.—Editor's note.]

President Truman, now headed for Seattle, told the voters of the Pacific Northwest that they and other voters had only themselves to blame for the Eightieth Congress. He then in effect urged them to overturn it in November.

"You have got a chance to remedy it (the situation) this fall," he said.

Talking to a crowd in Spokane this morning Mr. Truman said he would have no sympathy for the voters unless they did remedy it.

"In the election of 1946," he said, "you believed all the lies that were published about your President and two-thirds of you didn't even go out and vote. Look what the other third gave you; you deserved it."

In a train-side interview with reporters at Spokane the Chief Executive said that this Congress was the worst in the history of the Republic. Later standing above the tremendous fall of the Coulee Dam, Mr. Truman pulled his punch somewhat.

"I meant to say," he declared, "that this Congress has been the worst in my memory, that is, since I got into politics in the 1920's." It was then that he nominated the Thad Stevens Congress as the worst of all.

The presidential special arrived in Spokane this morning after an overnight run from Butte, Mont. Mr. Truman appeared to be unusually buoyant as a result of the Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) is expected to reply to President Truman's increasingly bitter criticism of Congress in a Nation-wide broadcast from Philadelphia Friday night.

Conferees Agree On Airfield for Naval Academy

By The Associated Press

Senate and House conferees agreed yesterday on a $209,782,903 Navy public works bill, including a controversial 12-million-dollar airfield for the Annapolis Naval Academy.

Senate representatives agreed to all the changes made in the bill as passed by the House a week ago.

The legislation passed by the Senate previously provided about 250 million dollars and did not include the airfield for indoctrination flight training of cadets at Sandy Point, near Annapolis.

Of the total, $91,949,950 is for construction in the United States and the remainder for projects outside the continental limits.

The bomb that blasted William A. Denekas to his death may also have been meant for Mrs. Lorena Strader, at whose home Denekas roomed.

Mrs. Strader last night told The Washington Post only an unexpected change in her working hours saved her from being with Denekas in the car at the time of the explosion.

Denekas, it was learned, was in the habit of driving Mrs. Strader to her job in a Clarendon restaurant each day at 11 a. m. On Monday, however, unknown to any one except herself and another waitress, Mrs. Strader changed hours with the other woman and went to work at 7 a. m. Denekas was blasted fatally shortly after 11 a. m.

Mrs. Strader had traded hours with Miss Odie Brown, 1629 Q st. nw., to allow the latter to visit friends in Culpeper, Va.

Mrs. Strader told the story to a Washington Post reporter, inquiring: "Do you know that bomb almost blew me up too?"

"If she hadn't worked for me, she'd be dead now," Miss Brown chimed in.

Mrs. Strader is estranged from her husband, Frank Strader, jr., a Metropolitan police private.

Last night, Arlington police questioned Carl Moscowitz, identified by Arlington Detective Chief C. Burns Pressley as a former Washington police private, and Mrs. Moscowitz.

Pressley said Moscowitz last New Year's night came to the Strader home and announced that he was "looking for my wife."

Pressley said Moscowitz, during questioning, said he knew neither Denakas nor McDaniel and Mrs. Moscowitz said she knew only Mrs. Strader.

Moscowitz resigned from the District police force sometime after he visited the Strader home, the police department said last night.

Arlington police previously had questioned Mrs. Strader for three hours.

Mrs. Strader was taken to headquarters at about 2:30 p. m. and questioned until 5:30 p. m. She appeared weary and nervous when she left the courthouse. One official pointed out that since Denekas had roomed in her home for about nine months, police were hoping to establish through Mrs. Strader the thread which would link the murderer to his crime.

Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard declined to say whether police had found the source of the explosive which Monday morning had taken the life of Denekas, electrician and businessman, when he attempted to start his car in front of 5837 N. 21st st.

Woodyard said that detectives had checked stores which sell explosives, however.

Police, who had released Billy L. McDaniel, 32-year-old former business partner of the dead man, at 10:30 Tuesday night, booked James H. Fisher, 28, of Route 1, Springfield, Va., on an open charge yesterday morning at about 7 o'clock.

Fisher was questioned by police at headquarters for nearly two hours.

Then, in company of detectives, he said he left headquarters and

House GOP Pushes Drive To Adjourn

Agenda vs. June 19 Departure Dilemma Tossed Back in Lap Of Senate Leaders

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Republican leaders resumed their June 19 adjournment drive yesterday after serving cool notice on the Senate that they wanted to quit then for good.

That tossed the adjournment riddle right back in the lap of the Senate GOP command, which only Tuesday voiced "serious doubts" about so early a leave-taking.

The Senate leaders said the whole dilemma of an incomplete "must" slate versus a preconvention get-away will be put up to a full conference of Republican Senators today.

Called on Trade Act

The Senate conference was called to consider the GOP's proposed limited extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act, but party leaders said the agenda and adjournment snarl will inevitably arise.

One Senate Republican spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told newsmen:

"We want to adjourn as much as the House does, but how can you complete action on a dozen 'must' bills and half again as many appropriation measures in nine days?"

In House and Senate lobbies, legislators talked of little else but the political hazards of a return session between or after the conventions. Republicans argued that not only the GOP platform, but the Republican nominee himself, would be a set-up for sniping Democrats.

Grinning Anticipation

Democrats, who by and large want to adjourn as much as their Republican colleagues, suppressed their desires in grinning anticipation of putting their political foes on the hot spot.

Since neither House can adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the other, the House adjournment race will be futile unless the Senate agrees.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) conferred for 90 minutes with his House Republican Steering Committee and later told reporters:

"It was the overwhelming position of the leadership that if possible we should adjourn on June 19. We believe we can conclude our work in the House by that date. I was asked to convey that word to the Senate."

Martin said he would phone Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) to that effect in advance of today's Senate Republican conference.

Suggests Early Return

If the Senate can't adjourn by that date, Martin said one possible alternative was "that they come back a little early." He said the House could hold three-day recesses while the Senate completed its program.

The House steering group meanwhile added two veterans' bills to a seven-measure "must" slate previously announced by House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.).

One bill increases allowances to widows, children and dependent parents of men who either died in war service or from war-connected service disability.

The other provides dependency allowances for the first time to veterans 60 to 100 per cent disabled

Operators, Lewis Trade Propositions

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Soft coal operators and John L. Lewis traded propositions yesterday in a bargaining session which considerably brightened prospects for averting a July 1 walkout.

The operators offered a new contract to Lewis' United Mine Workers which included a plan for pension payments from the miners' welfare fund, the issue in Lottest dispute. It did not, however, contain wage increases, and the operators proposed elimination of the "willing and able" clause.

Lewis Offers Program

Lewis earlier had proposed a two-point program under which he said he would keep the miners on the job when the present contract expires at the end of this month. He asked the operators to:

1. Accede to his demand for a $100-a-month pension plan.

2. Make retroactive to July 1 any new agreement, even though negotiations extend beyond that date.

The conferees spent three hours in closed meeting yesterday and then recessed until 2 p. m. EDT, today, without acting on the two offers. Lewis and the operators said they were considering each other's proposals.

No Conclusions Reached

"We have come to no conclusions," Operator Spokesman Charles O'Neill told reporters after the meeting. "At least we haven't broken up. That's good as far as we have gone."

The miners already have walked out once this year over the pension dispute, although Lewis maintained it was not a strike. They returned to work by court order.

The operators' pension plan provided that 50 per cent of welfare fund collections be set aside for pension payments. The balance then would be divided thus: 12 per cent for death benefits, 15 per cent for hospitalization

Commissioners Approve

Civilian Lawyers to Serve On Police, Fire Trial Boards

Substitution of civilian lawyers for members of the city's legal staff on Police and Fire Department trial boards has been approved in principle by the Commissioners, it was disclosed yesterday.

The District Bar Association will be asked to set up a panel of 10 lawyers who would be available to serve on a rotation basis on either trial board, Commissioner John Russell Young said.

Under the plan, suggested by Fire Chief Clement Murphy, civilian lawyers would be paid $25 for each day's trial board service.

The change was one of several recommended by Murphy and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, Young said.

It originally was suggested in March by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who said he wanted to get away from the awkward situation which finds his assistants serving both as prosecutors and trial board members at the same trial.

At present the police trial board consists of two police officials and one assistant corporation counsel.

Barrett suggested a trial board of two police officials and one civilian lawyer to hear charges made by citizens against policemen.

He also proposed a sort of "grand

Armistice Accepted by Arabs, Jews

U. N. Mediator Says Four-Week Truce Will Start at 2 A.M. (EDT) Friday

Cairo, June 9 (AP).—Count Folke Bernadotte announced tonight a four-week armistice in Palestine will start at 2 a. m. (EDT) Friday.

Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator, immediately asked military observers to supervise the cease-fire and announced a peace conference to attempt to end permanently the bloodshed in the Holy Land.

Arabs and Jews accepted without condition the United Nations truce proposal, Bernadotte said.

Bernadotte said he will call the peace conference as soon as possible on the neutral Mediterranean island of Rhodes, a Greek possession, to mediate the long-range issues involved in the Palestine war.

Military Supervisors Sought

(Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, said at Lake Success that Bernadotte was seeking six coastal patrol vessels and 63 military officers to supervise compliance with the cease-fire terms.)

Trans-Jordan has already ordered its "commands and forces in the field to cease fire as from the hour and date fixed."

Bernadotte said:

"We have achieved only the first step. I assure you we are going to work with the same energy for the big result we hope to get—peace in Palestine."

The UN Truce Commission, composed of representatives of the United States, France and Belgium, will supervise immigration and other controls during the truce through the 63 military officers, Bernadotte said. Working with these officers and also in a supervisory capacity over them will be a group of Swedish colonels, who arrived in Cairo today.

Although both Jews and Arabs said they had accepted the truce unconditionally, Israel's foreign minister, Moshe Shertok, said he was asking certain technical modifications relating to immigration, war materials and the supply of Jerusalem.

Even as the truce agreement was announced, widely scattered fighting continued in Palestine.

The Arab commander in Old Jerusalem said his artillery shelled the fortress-like Jewish Agency building, nerve center of Jerusalem Jewry, and scored 15 shell hits.

Egyptians Shell City

The Israeli command said Egyptian guns also shelled western parts of the city from the south, and that Arab Legion armored vehicles tried to break into Jewish positions in the Musrara quarter.

An Iraqi communique said another battle lasting three hours was fought in the Jenin area of central Palestine and another Jewish attack on the northern anchor of the Arab triangle was repulsed. The Iraqis said they had recaptured Lajjun, 11 miles northwest of Jenin, throwing the Jews back practically at the starting point of their recent offensive from that direction.

A Syrian communique said Jewish concentrations between Tiberias and Nazareth were shelled from the air.

Egyptian fighter bombers again raided Tel Aviv, dropping sticks of bombs across the town. The Israeli air force said it bombed Arab artillery posts at Kfar Biddu and Nebi Samwil overlooking the Jewish part of Jerusalem.

Sees France in Danger

De Gaulle Blasts Reich Pact, Says It Opens Door for Russia

Paris, June 9 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle today made a blistering attack on the six-power London agreement to establish a separate western German government.

He said it would prepare "the way for Russian domination of all Germany," and said it placed France in danger of attack.

De Gaulle made a statement soon after the foreign affairs committee of the French National Assembly approved the London accord. Committee approval was in a close 22-21 vote, and given with reservations. The French cabinet approved it yesterday, and it is scheduled for parliamentary consideration Friday.

De Gaulle, leader of the Rightist French People's Rally, said the London agreement would create two rival Germanys: one with Frankfurt as its capital, the other, Berlin.

"It is easy to see which of these two German camps would be strong enough within and forcefully enough supported from abroad to win the struggle," he declared.

Despite De Gaulle, many political observers saw in the foreign committee vote a forecast of parliamentary approval of the accord. All political parties in the committee are represented in proportion to their strength in the assembly.

A principal reservation written in by the committee gave approval on condition a powerful, centralized German reich would not be created. The committee said it favored a federalized regime for Germany.

De Gaulle had no kind words for either the United States or Britain, who, with France and the Benelux countries of Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, reached the agreement.

(Moscow Radio Commentator Yermashev declared today that establishment of a western German state "means that western Germany is being converted into a permanent Anglo-American military base." He asserted that "the French government is threatened with defeat in Parliament.")

London, June 9 (AP).—The Admiralty announced today that British Pacific fleet headquarters will be transferred from Hongkong to Singapore "to facilitate inter-service cooperation." The move will start this month.

Assails 'Cynical Reversal'

Vandenberg, in Dramatic Plea, Urges Senate Restore Aid Cut

(Text of Vandenberg's Statement, Page 13)

Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg went on the warpath yesterday to rescue European recovery funds from the cuts made last week by his Republican Party in the House.

He told the Senate Appropriations Committee, in a dramatic session, that the House bill would repeal the intent of Congress, ruin the recovery program, and shake world faith in American commitments.

He ripped into the House figures and the House Appropriation Committee's reasoning as an application of the "meat-ax technique" to foreign relations. He called it a "cynical reversal" that endangered the peace of the world.

Hoffman Hears Appeal

Earnestly and emotionally, he begged the Senate committee to give "the benefit of the doubt" for the rest of this year to Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman, who sat listening in the jammed committee room. And he repeated his argument, made on the Senate floor last spring, that Europe's needs could be assessed more exactly next January than now.

It was the first time in his 20 years in the Senate that Vandenberg had ever testified before a Senate committee except on minor local legislation long ago.

His fighting appearance, at his own request, packed the committee room in the Senate Office Building, and attracted almost as many newsreel photographers as if he were already the nominee of his party for the Presidency.

Stassen to Appear Today

This morning former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, an avowed presidential candidate, will jump into the battle over the recovery funds. Stassen will appear before the committee at 9 o'clock, at his own request, to demand full restoration of the cuts made by the House.

Gov. Earl Warren of California, another presidential candidate, also got into the fight with a telegram to Vandenberg calling for full restoration of the recovery funds and extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. Both, he said, were "necessary for our orderly participation in world reconstruction, without which there can be no world peace."

"A repudiation of either at this time would be a severe setback to world recovery," said the California Governor. "No facts have been developed to justify an arbitrary cut in the recovery program, which is now a definite part of the bipartisan foreign policy to which our party is committed

Taft Statement May Stop GOP Tariff Rift

A threatened Senate Republican leadership split when the GOP's limited Reciprocal Trade Act extension hits the Senate floor appeared to have been smoothed over last night.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) told reporters he probably will support the so-called Millikin-Vandenberg compromise, even though he declared earlier for stronger tariff "standards."

Taft voted for the compromise in committee but reserved a free hand for himself on the floor. The full Senate Republican membership will confer on the bill today and Taft is expected to stay with the compromise.

The Republican substitute, drafted by Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), with the support of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich), gives the Tariff Commission strong new procedural powers and the right to recommend tariff highs and lows to the President. The President would not be obliged to follow them if he sent a message to Congress explaining why.

House-approved authority for Congress to "vote" any trade agreement that went beyond Tariff Commission limits was eliminated from the Senate bill.

Wife of Bolling Air Officer Gives Birth to Triplets

Mrs. Jean Ann Butler, 28, wife of Air Force Capt. Robert H. Butler, physical training officer at Bolling Air Base, yesterday gave birth to triplets.

Mrs. Butler, mother of two girls, gave birth to Teresa Louise, 3 pounds, 2¼ ounces at 3:47 p. m.; Diana Lee, 4 pounds, 7¼ ounces, at 4:20 p. m., and Robert Bruce, 4 pounds, 8¼ ounces, at 4:28 p. m.

Lieut. Col. Harold Fansch, command surgeon at Bolling Air Base Station Hospital, said the triplets were "vigorous and healthy, thanks to the physical background of the parents." The Butlers live at 223 Newcomb st. se. Their other daughters are Patricia, 1, and Judith Ann, 3.

Damaskinos to Officiate

Michael and Anne to Marry Today in Athens Royal Palace

Athens, Greece, June 9 (U.P.).—Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma and former King Michael of Romania will be married in the drawing room of the Greek royal palace at noon (6 a. m. EDT) Thursday in rites of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Anne's parents, Prince Rene and Princess Margrethe, will not attend. The family will be represented by the bride's uncle, Prince Erik.

Anne is a Roman Catholic and high Vatican sources have indicated the Catholic Church will consider her "in grave sin."

Archbishop Damaskinos and two priests will officiate at tomorrow's ceremony. King Paul of Greece will serve as best man, Queen Frederika as matron of honor. Their three young children, three other royal children and the 4-year-old Duke of Aosta will act as flower bearers.

The bride will wear a white Paris gown with a 6-foot train while Michael will be clad in the uniform of an air marshal of the royal Romanian air force.

The couple will spend the first two days of their honeymoon at Tatoi Palace and then return to Michael's residence at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Senate Plans Final Vote Today on Draft Bill

Amendment Voting To Start at 3 P. M.; Move to Reduce Service Defeated

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate early today agreed to vote this afternoon on the 19-through-25 draft, after proponents won a major test by an easy margin.

By a better than 2-to-1 margin, the Senate defeated a move to put the drafting authority on a standby basis, leaving any actual inductions up to President Truman.

Twenty Republicans joined with an almost solid Democratic lineup to kill the amendment, 57 to 24. Proposed by Senator Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.), it had the support of Senate GOP Policy Chief Robert A. Taft and other Republican leaders.

The Senate then shouted down an amendment by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) to cut the draft period of service from 24 to 18 months.

Later Morse objected that he had been caught off balance by the vote and the Senate agreed to reconsider it on a record vote today.

Holding its third successive night session, the Senate then ground on past midnight — adjourning at 12:29 a. m.

Several amendments still are pending, but the Senate reached an unanimous consent agreement to meet at noon and begin voting on all amendments at 3 p. m., to be followed by a vote on the bill itself.

Debate Is Spirited

Action on the Capehart amendment came after the most spirited debate during the consideration of the bill. Both sides charged the other with playing politics, and Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.) declared that GOP chieftains were trying to "tear the bill to shreds."

The Capehart amendment would have allowed the draft machinery to be put into effect, but require that President Truman actually "push the button" for drafting to start.

He would have to wait 75 days to see if enough volunteers would not come forward under the threat of the draft to fill vacancies in the ranks and that world conditions still warranted an increase in the armed forces. Inductions could start 15 days later if he "pulled the trigger."

Taft and Senator Kenneth Wherry (R., Nebr.), acting majority leader, both insisted the amendment would not delay bolstering the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Proposal Assailed

But Senator Raymond Baldwin (R., Conn.) termed it a "futile gesture," saying it would not "bring men into the Army where they are needed." Another Republican, Massachusetts' Leverett Saltonstall, declared we "can't put through a 'push button' draft and keep our country strong."

Such action would not show other nations we mean business, he declared.

Tydings pitched into the GOP high command for "turning down the advice of America's military leaders." He charged they were taking the same stand they did in 1940 when selective service was before Congress—"that there isn't going to be any war."

Taft, who voted against the draft then, jumped to his feet, red of face.

"We'd have had more men in service at the time of Pearl Harbor if that bill had not passed," he said.

Wherry later tangled with Tydings over what he termed the Marylander's "needling" and "playing politics."

"What he says has nothing to do

Soviet Opening Northeast Seaway From Murmansk

Stockholm, Sweden, June 9 (U.P.).—Russia is breaking open a "northeast passage" from Murmansk to the northern tip of Siberia and is turning Murmansk Harbor into probably Europe's biggest naval base, the newspaper Tidnigen, quoting Moscow papers, said today.

The newspaper said the Russians were moving military equipment from the former German naval base at Wilhelmshaven to Murmansk.

The Soviet marine corps, it said, was opening a 4030-mile passage from Murmansk to Chukotski Peninsula, where rich mineral deposits have been discovered.

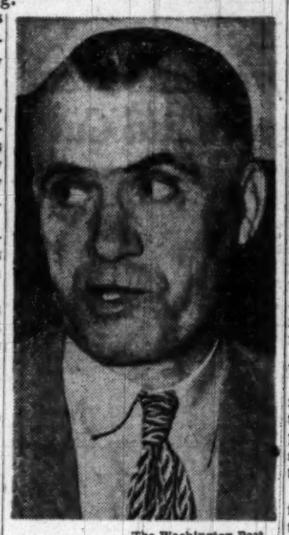
PEOPLE In The NEWS

H. L. Woodyard, Arlington Chief of Police, Probably County's Most Peace-Loving Man

Of all the men in Arlington County, Harry L. Woodyard is probably the most peace-loving.

He likes it when the county is quiet, because that means his organization is functioning smoothly and his worries are few.



The Washington Post
HARRY WOODYARD
Arlington police chief

But as Arlington's Police Chief, first man to hold that post, Woodyard seldom has it "quiet" on his county-wide "beat". Especially not now, with the puzzling mystery of the murder of William A. Denekas on his hands.

Now Woodyard, a big, burly 6-footer, is going quietly about his job, staying at headquarters from early morning to midnight.

Born May 20, 1896, in what was then known as Ballston, Woodyard has spent most of his life in the county. He attended schools there, and went on to work as a grocery clerk for about four years.

In 1922, Woodyard went to work in the Washington Navy Yard. He left there to work with the Wardman Park Construction Co. for six or eight months and in 1924 came back to Arlington County as jailer.

In 1936 Woodyard and Hugh C. Jones (detective captain now retired) were the first two men to be appointed plainclothesmen under Sheriff Howard B. Fields who at that time was in charge both of the county's police and its penal system.

In 1940 Sheriff Fields voluntarily turned over his authority to administer the county police force to Frank C. Hanrahan, then county manager. Hanrahan immediately appointed Woodyard to the post of police chief thus created.

Under his administration the county police force has grown rapidly as the county itself has expanded. Although he can be a stern taskmaster, Woodyard is respected by his men because they know he asks no more of them than he is willing to do himself.

In a relaxed mood, his favorite comment is, "We don't make much money but we have an awful lot of fun."

Married 30 years, Chief Woodyard and his wife live at 2616 Key blvd. in Arlington. They have two children, Alma and Harry Lee, jr.

Among these was Miss Phoebe Thompson, 18-year-old Washington-Lee High School student, girl friend of McDaniel who had seen McDaniel on Saturday night. Miss Thompson, who was questioned by detectives Monday night, knew Denekas as well as McDaniel.

Another was Mrs. Denekas whom, Fisher said, they had met "on the street."

He was released at about noon yesterday and was returned to his Springfield home by detectives.

Also questioned by police yesterday was William Robert Millroy, 19, of 2210 1st st. S., who had worked for Denekas and McDaniel at the sign shop.

Barrie Blake, Clarendon garageman and a friend of Mrs. Strader, was brought to headquarters briefly yesterday. Blake took Mrs. Strader to her home on Monday when she learned of the explosion which ended Denekas' life.

Although it is known that Denekas had had a number of "girl friends," Woodyard said yesterday that so far police have not been able to establish jealousy as a motive for his murder.

So far, more than 50 persons have undergone police questioning either at headquarters or in their homes. Detectives have been following out any information which appears to be a clew, although one told reporters yesterday that many of the expected clews had developed into "wild-goose chases."

Byrnes Hits Rearming for Soviet War

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP).—Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes cautioned today against building America's strength "on the theory that we want to fight Soviet communism."

While he declared "the greatest danger in the world today is the danger of continued aggression on the part of the Soviet Union," Byrnes insisted that war is far from inevitable, and added:

"Ideologies militantly conflicting and logically irreconcilable will choose the right to survive on the basis of mutual tolerance, in preference to the right to die on the basis of mutual extinction."

In a speech prepared for University of Pennsylvania commencement exercises, the former Secretary described as "unfortunate" any reference to United States foreign policy aims as "containment of Soviet Russia."

Asks Tolerance Toward Soviet.

"It does not distinguish our foreign policy from what unfortunately appears to be the foreign policy of the Soviet Union," he said, "namely, the containment of the United States of America."

Byrnes called for renewed efforts to demonstrate that this country is "at all times willing to live at peace with Russia on the basis of mutual respect and tolerance."

"Some of our people," he said, "have the mistaken idea that no agreement has been made or can be made with the Russians that is not a surrender. That is a dangerous idea."

To support that idea, Byrnes said, such people charge "that we were hornswoggled and overreached in nearly every agreement President Roosevelt made with the Soviet Union during the war." That viewpoint, he stated, "is a grotesque distortion."

Defends Yalta Agreement

He defended the provisions of the much-criticized Yalta Big Three agreement as made necessary by wartime circumstances. "There was nothing wrong with this Yalta agreement," he said. "The trouble was that the Soviet Union later made a mockery" of it.

"A realistic conclusion is that the war agreements gave the Soviet Union very little that they were not in a position to take without agreement."

One hundred and fifty-one diplomas were awarded at Penn's 192d commencement exercises.

Byrnes and three others were awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws. The others were Dr. Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar College, and Justices James B. Drew and William B. Linn of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Fighting Stirs Rome Chamber

Rome, June 9 (U.P.).—Communist and Catholic deputies staged a 10-minute fist fight in Parliament tonight, and the session was suspended when women members complained they heard the brawlers shout profane language.

It was the second straight day of fighting in the chamber. Both outbreaks came during debate on Christian Democratic Premier Alcide de Gasperi's proposed program for reconstruction.

The cabinet approved a bilateral accord with the United States outlining terms under which Marshall Plan aid will be furnished Italy. A 17-day strike of farmhands in Bologna Province ended today.

The trouble in the assembly started when Communist Fausto Gullo charged priests interfered illegally in the April 18 elections.

Priests even urged wives to practice "night strikes" against their husbands, Gullo said.

At this, Christian Democrat Umberto Tomba screamed "You work among criminals and prostitutes." The fight then began. Afterwards Communists women members charged they had been "deeply hurt by the adjectives used."

Vote Planned In Hyderabad

New Delhi, India, June 9 (AP).—A spokesman for the Hyderabad Government said tonight the independent state will hold a plebiscite to decide whether to enter the Dominion of India.

The spokesman said Hyderabad had refused to accept an Indian request for "unconditional accession."

Hyderabad is the richest and largest of the Indian states, having a population of 16,500,000.

V. P. Menon, Indian secretary of the ministry of states, said it would take at least a year to prepare such a plebiscite in Hyderabad in which about 7,000,000 persons would vote. No date has been decided.

The Dominion charges that Razakars, an organization of Hyderabad Moslems, have raided Indian villages. Tonight the government said Indian soldiers and police would enter Hyderabad, if necessary, to pursue the raiders.

Bradley Hits Army's 'Decay'

Detroit, June 9 (AP).—Gen. Omar N. Bradley spoke tonight of an "appalling decay" in the Army's "combat capabilities," and urged an "immediate repair."

The Army Chief of Staff told the American Ordnance Association that he expressed himself in the light of developments in Europe, which, he declared, have involved this country in a struggle "where power has once again become the arbiter of decision."

General Bradley addressed a banquet of the association's thirtieth national meeting.

He was joined in his criticism of the Nation's preparedness by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney of the Air Forces.

"If war occurred today," General McNarney said, "the Air Force combat groups would be composed primarily of planes that were on the drawing boards prior to Pearl Harbor."

McNarney, commanding general of the Air Materiel Command, said several years would be required to tool up for proper production because of the "weakened state" of the aviation industry.

General Bradley said he was "dismayed" by recent events despite America's "generous aid" in relief and reconstruction for Europe.

Bradley said that contrary to popular beliefs the Army lacks sufficient balanced stocks of weapons and equipment to tide the nation through industrial conversion in event of another war.

Senate Plans Final Vote Today on Draft Measure

with the amendment," said Wherry heatedly. "He only wants to protect his President, to keep him from having to press the button. There's nothing here but a lot of politics."

Smiling broadly, Tydings declared that Wherry had "let the cat out of the bag."

"He's saying, 'Let the President catch hell for pressing the button,'" the Marylander added.

Only Senators Taylor (D., Idaho) and Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) voted with 22 Republicans for the Capehart amendment. Veteran Capitol Hill observers considered it a good test of the bill, for most of the 20 GOP Senators and 37 Democrats opposing it are expected to vote aye on final passage.

Earlier, the Senate:

1. Defeated by voice vote an amendment offered by Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.) to put universal military training into effect along with the draft.

2 Adopted an amendment proposed by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) to make sweeping reforms in the Army's court martial system. By a vote of 44 to 39 it tacked on a 47-page bill overhauling the Articles of War which had already passed the House as a separate measure.

3. Rejected, without a record vote, Senator Richard Russell's proposal to permit draftees who desire it to serve in segregated units.

In presenting his amendment, Capehardt declared that the United States is better prepared for war than any other nation on earth. He declared that in his opinion, "the international situation is clearing up."

"If the Senator mistakes the present lull for real improvement," said Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) "I can congratulate him on his optimism but not on his judgment."

Senator Malone's UMT amendment was before the Senate most of the afternoon. As introduced it was sponsored by Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.) as well as Malone. The West Virginian, however, withdrew his support when he discovered that it was an addition, rather than a substitute, for the draft.

Chairman Gurney opposed the move. He said that he personally favored UMT, but that the Senate Armed Services Committee had decided to abandon it this year as there was no chance of its adoption. The amendment then was shouted down.

Court-Martial Reform

The Kem amendment to reform the Army court-martial system was written by a House subcommittee after months of study to correct abuses brought to light during the war.

It seeks to make Army justice provide equal treatment for officers and enlisted men and relieve courts-martial from the influence of top commanders who want to "make examples" of defendants to improve discipline. Under it, enlisted men would be authorized to sit on courts, officers would be made subject to special court-martial trials, and defendants are assured trained counsel.

Kem told the Senate the amendment had the approval of the leading veterans associations and that the Army had serious objection only to one proviso—establishing an independent Judge Advocate General's Department.

Gurney opposed the proposal. He said the committee had not studied it and that Defense Secretary James Forrestal has a commission studying the question which will report in January.

Europe's Youths Flock To Join U. S. Army'

London, June 9 (AP).—European youths flooded American embassies and consulates today with queries about joining a projected United States "alien legion."

Reports that the United States Senate had approved a provision to permit 25,000 aliens to serve in the American armed forces in the United States and abroad brought inquiries by the hundreds.

Many of the youths could not understand that the House of Representatives and the President must approve the measure before it becomes law.

German Setup Plan Indorsed by U. S.

The United States formally committed itself yesterday to the six-power agreement to set up a provisional government of western Germany.

Secretary Marshall announced American approval in a statement again blaming Russia for the present division of Germany, but repeating the hope that ultimately the new government might embrace the Soviet zone as well.

The United States Government, the statement said, believes the London agreement will "represent a major step toward a comprehensive solution of German problems."

Tries to Reassure French

The Secretary issued his statement at a press conference in which he tried to soothe French fears over the military revival of Germany. The agreement has run into strenuous opposition in France, and there is some risk that it may be repudiated when the Chamber of Deputies debates the issue on Friday.

The feeling of the French public is easily understandable, the Secretary told a questioner, because the French have suffered terribly as a result of German invasions. But the Secretary insisted that he regarded the London agreement as a sound attempt to meet the economic and political requirements of the German situation.

Vandenberg Resolution Up

It was learned yesterday that American negotiators tried hard to reassure the French at the recent London conference. The Americans recalled that the pending Vandenberg resolution in the Senate would indorse the principle of American military support for the newly formed western European defense union.

If the Vandenberg resolution passes the Senate—it may come up for debate today—the State Department will feel it has congressional sanction to start negotiations with the western European group.

The Marshall statement yesterday also emphasized that the London agreement, including a plan for an international authority in the Ruhr, would continue "adequate security safeguards" and reinforce existing controls aimed at keeping Germany demilitarized.

Trusts in London Program

At the same time, the statement said, the London agreements "offers the Germans the opportunity of peaceful reconstruction and self-government in keeping with the principles of the Potsdam Agreement."

"The United States believes that the London program will stand the test of experience," the statement said, "and that if conditions can be developed for its application to Germany as a whole it would resolve the issues which have thus far divided Germany under the occupation powers and would thereby remove the principal obstacle to the development of a peaceful Europe."

Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Harry Cain (R., Wash.) and James P. Kem (R., Mo.) have demanded publicly that the agreement over Germany be submitted to the Senate for ratification. Marshall said yesterday he had not yet consulted his lawyers on the subject.

Held Analagous to Potsdam

The official attitude, however, is that the London agreement springs from the Potsdam agreement and the bizonal agreement with Britain, neither of which had to be submitted to Congress.

If France approves the new agreement, the next step is expected here to be a Soviet announcement setting up a government in eastern Germany, and representing it as the only "all-German" government. Soviet propaganda has indicated that such a move might come soon.

Now that the western powers have moved to form a German government in the west, the Russians can point to this action as a pretext for their own.

British Expect U. S. Shift on Reparations

London, June 9 (AP).—Official British sources said today they expect the United States to agree soon to give Russia the rest of the reparations from western Germany due under the Potsdam agreement.

Russia has not been allocated any dismantled industrial plants from any of the three zones of western Germany since mid-1946.

Allotments were handled by a subsidiary of the Allied Control Council in Berlin, and the United States voted every Russian effort to get more German plants.

The United States also stopped delivery of previously allocated equipment, although Britain and France are handing over plants which had been earmarked for Russia earlier.

Feel Pledge Should Be Kept

An authoritative British source said Britain and France felt the Potsdam reparations agreement should be carried out, if only for the reason of sticking to the western pledge.

(In Washington, Secretary of State Marshall said negotiations with Britain and France on the issue have been under way for some time. He said no agreement has been reached yet.)

Under Potsdam, Russia was to [illegible] per cent of the reparations [illegible] out of western Germany. Ten per cent was to be allotted free, the rest on an equal exchange basis for Russian deliveries of food and other similar items from its zone of Germany.

Under the renewal of deliveries, diplomatic observers said, reparations deliveries from Germany to western countries also could be speeded up.

Might Soften French Stand

A speed-up in deliveries to France might soften French opposition to some terms of the six-power accord on the future of Germany announced here this week.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told Parliament today he still hoped to get Russian agreement on settlement of Germany's future.

Reds Defy British Radio Move

Berlin, June 9 (U.P.)—The Soviet military government today rejected a British demand they evacuate Radio Berlin and warned of "undesirable consequences" if the British force out Russian employes.

Soviet Deputy Military Governor Lieut. Gen. Mihil Dratvin said:

"Obviously, we cannot take seriously the hint contained in your letter of employing forced measures against Soviet employes in Rundfunk House. You will understand that such action could not be disregarded by us and would lead to undesirable consequences."

A British spokesman said British authorities did not consider the reply satisfactory. The British announced yesterday they had demanded on June 5 that the Russians vacate the radio building, located in the British sector of the capital.

Dratvin's letter said the British demand was rejected on grounds the Russians have been using Rundfunk House since May, 1945, or before British troops were in Berlin.

It said it would take from three to five years to build or find a new broadcasting center for the Soviet zone and the Russians could not agree to that. The Soviets have been in complete charge of Radio Berlin since the war's end.

The Russian-licensed newspaper Taegliche Rundschau said Soviet officials did not believe they "will be compelled to take retaliation measures" against the British.

Other German Developments

Other German developments today:

1. U. S. authorities ordered vacated six district offices of the Communist-controlled Free German Trades Unions to make room for an independent opposition union organization which claimed to have received 60 per cent of the workers' votes in recent Berlin elections.

2. The Russians cut off interzonal travel for Germans in the areas of Dannenberg and Luneberg, between the British and Russian zones.

3. German sources said that this month the western allies would give Germans new money in exchange for the nearly worthless reichmarks.

Gottwald to Succeed Benes

Prague, June 9 (AP).—The National Coalition Front designated Premier Klement Gottwald tonight as the next President of Czechoslovakia. Deputy Premier Antonin Zapotocky was designated the next premier.

The Communist premier now needs only formal ratification by Parliament next Monday to become successor to Eduard Benes. Zapotocky also needs parliamentary approval.

Benes resigned Monday rather than sign the Communist-drafted constitution which became law today.

The reshuffled government which Zapotocky will head may be even farther to the left than the one headed by Gottwald, informed sources said.

Even Vaclav Nosek, the Communist minister of the interior, whose security police furnished the guns and bayonets for the bloodless February revolution, was reported headed for the discard for reasons not readily apparent.

His successor may be Alexej Cepicka, now minister of justice. He is 33 and a veteran of the Communist underground.

Germ Warfare Studied

London, June 9 (U.P.)—Defense Minister A. V. Alexander told a questioner in the Commons today that Britain is conducting research in bacteriological warfare so it will be ready to meet "any situation that may arise."

Plaza Wins In Ecuador

Quito, Ecuador, June 9 (AP).—The supreme electoral tribunal announced today Galo Plaza Lasso had rolled up 116,496 votes for the presidency against 112,509 for Manuel Elecio Flor Torres, but said these returns were unofficial, still incomplete and subject to a formal recheck. The election was held Sunday.

Galo Plaza, former Ambassador to the United States, is the candidate of the National Civic Democratic Movement to succeed President Carlos Julio Arosemena. Flor is the Conservative Party nominee. A third candidate, Gen. Alberto Enriquez of the Liberal-Socialist coalition trials with 56,942 votes.

Reds Protest War Article

London (Thursday), June 10 (AP).—The Moscow Radio said today Russia has protested to the American Government that "unbridled propaganda for a new war is being carried on in the United States."

The broadcast said the Soviets had complained to the Netherlands as well as the U. S. that American and Dutch publications were talking up a new war.

A note delivered yesterday by the Soviet Embassy in Washington accused the United States of violating a United Nations resolution condemning warmongering, the radio said.

The note charged that the American magazine Newsweek, published in May an article "which contains slanderous inventions directed against the Soviet Union and depicting the Soviet Union as an aggressor allegedly preparing to attack the United States."

Last week, Maj. Gen. A. P. Kislenko, acting Soviet member of the Allied Council for Japan, wrote Gen. Douglas MacArthur that "insolent slander" had appeared in publications there about his country.

Kislenko cited the May 17 edition of Newsweek magazine.

State Department Got Note Yesterday

A State Department spokesman said last night that a note was received from the Soviet Embassy yesterday but has not yet been opened.

Quebec, June 9 (AP).—Premier Maurice Duplessis announced today dissolution of the Quebec Legislature and the calling of an election for July 28.

Greeks Doom 12 More 'Reds'

Athens, Greece, June 9 (U.P.)—The court-martial war against alleged Communists continued today. Press dispatches said 12 persons were sentenced to death at Veria. Eleven were acquitted, but 29 others received prison terms.

Athens police reported they had broken up a Communist underground group, arresting 12 ring leaders who will be court-martialed. They announced also that more than 1000 gypsies will be expelled from the capital as suspected Communist informers.

Guerillas were said to have entered and looted Lekaina in the Peloponnesus, annihilating a small civil garrison that had run out of ammunition.

The Greek army said 25 soldiers and 26 civilians were killed.

Russians Say Reparations Cut Are Part Of Economic Help to 'Friendly Nations'

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, June 9 (AP). — The Soviet press explained today that Russia's sharp cuts in reparations due from Finland, Hungary and Romania were part of a program of economic help to "friendly nations" and hinted more aid might be forthcoming.

Izvestia and Pravda said a "tremendous rise in ("Soviet) national economy made such reductions possible."

Izvestia, the government newspaper, added: "At the present time the Soviet Union has the possibility of strengthening its economic help to those nations which conduct friendly relations with it."

Cuts Announced

These reparations cuts have been announced.

Fifty-five per cent in the 110 million dollars estimated still to be due from Romania's original 300-million-dollar debt.

Fifty per cent in the 140 million dollars due from Finland's original assessment of 300 million dollars.

Fifty per cent of the unpaid balance of a 200-million-dollar claim against Hungary. It is not known how much Hungary already has paid Hussia.

Italy, one of the former partners of the Germans and now takpart in the Marshall Plan, was omitted when Soviet reductions were announced. The peace treaties assigned no Bulgarian reparations to Russia.

The Russian press boasted that "immense results in economic reconstruction by the Soviet Union in the postwar years have permitted the U.S.S.R. to bring a new approach to the question of reparations payments."

Izvestia said success so far in fulfillment of a five-year plan after the war made Russia "incomparably more powerful than it was three or four years ago." It added Russia is out to catch up in production with the leading capitalist nations, including the United States.

(In London, a Foreign Office pokesman contrasted the Russian Reparations cut with the Soviet's blocking a peace treaty for Austria, which so far has not joined the Eastern bloc.

(He pointed out, "The increased measure of control the Soviet Union is exercising over the economies of Hungary and Romania through the formation of joint Soviet-Hungarian and Soviet-Romanian companies.)

British Plan for Steel

London, June 9 (AP). — A high government source said today a measure nationalizing the steel industry would be offered in The Commons before January 1.

Armour Plans to Quit State Post

NORMAN ARMOUR
Expected to Resign

Assistant Secretary of State Norman Armour intends to leave his post soon, Secretary Marshall told a press conference yesterday.

Armour has been a key figure in the State Department's high command since he took office on a one-year basis last summer. Except for Couselor Charles E. Bohlen, he is the only top official who has had long and varied diplomatic experience.

He has been in charge of the so-called geographic "desks" which conduct the department's day-to-day business all over the world. Marshal said yesterday that Armour had given very important service, at considerable personal sacrifice.

A successor has not yet been chosen, Marshall said. The name of former Undersecretary Joseph C. Grew is among those being mentioned for Armour's post.

U. N. Requests Warships for Truce Watch

Lake Success, June 10 (AP).—The United Nations has asked the United States, France and Belgium for 6 coastal patrol vessels and 63 military observers to check on the Arab-Jewish truce.

Secretary General Trygve Lie said tonight negotiations were under way for three American ships, two French and one Belgian. He said each power had been asked to send 21 military men and he understood the American personnel already was there.

"I feel this is one of the great days in United Nations history," Lie said. "We have had many disappointments. But now the truce has been accepted and we have to hope for final peace."

U. N. delegates and officials generally were cautiously optimistic over the cease-fire and truce.

It was learned here that Moshe Shertok, Israeli Foreign Minister, had objected to the mediator's interpretation of immigration conditions and hoped Bernadotte would exercise discretion.

Shertok also sought assurance that Jews would be permitted to use any road reopened into Jerusalem.

Negotiations with the three governments over use of the patrol vessels are still under way, Lie said. He added that it had not been decided whether the ships would fly the U. N. flag.

In connection with the offer of the Soviet Union to send military observers to the Holy Land, Lie said:

"It is quite natural that the three members of the American, French, Belgian truce commission should ask for officers from their own countries. The request to the three governments is a quite natural matter.

"If Bernadotte needs more and the Security Council so decides, that is a matter for the Council. If I had been on the spot I would have taken the same decision."

The Council will meet tomorrow to hear officially the announcement of the truce and to consider the Russian offer to send Red army observers.

Arabs, Jews Accept Truce

said an all-night battle was fought with a force of 1000 Jews attempting to force open the road to Jerusalem at Bab El Wad. The Arab Legion said 56 Jews were killed and the rest forced to retreat.

The Jews still claimed to have the Egyptian spearhead at Isdud, 23 miles south of Tel Aviv, surrounded.

Israel Favorable To Economic Union

Paris, June 9 (NYHT).—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel, declared today that his new nation is willing to join an economic union with Arab Palestine, but that it would not agree to a political federation involving limitation of Israel's sovereignty.

Weizmann said his government had already approached King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan and found him "not particularly anxious to renew warfare, although he was under pressure from abroad."

American Volunteers Arrive in Israel

London, June 9 (U.P.).—The first group of American volunteers belonging to the George Washington Legion have arrived in Israel, Maj. Samuel Weiser, chairman of the "Hebrew Legion," said tonight.

Of the 372 Americans who have joined the legion, nearly all have previous military experience and one-third are non-Jewish, he reported.

largely as a result of your own fine efforts.

"I believe the public will support you in both instances."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York has already called for full restoration of the recovery funds, and in a radio interview also asked for a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

Defiant Statement From Taber

In spite of this drive by presidential candidates in his own party, Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee issued a defiant statement yesterday.

"I will fight to the end," said Taber, "to retain this reduction in the bill and resist all the special pressures which are being mustered to make a treacherous raid on the American taxpayer."

Many Republicans on the Senate committee indicated that they would restore most if not all of Taber's cuts, leaving the ultimate decision to be worked out by conference between the two houses.

Avoids Personal Attack

Vandenberg pulled all the stops except outright personal attack in asking the Senate committee to reverse the action of the House. His statement was full of deference to the committee and to its duty examining proposed expenditures.

He tried to preserve the amenities by not mentioning Taber or any other individual on the House side. But his statement crackled with anger, and he accented it by shaking his finger at the committee and heaping scorn on the arguments used in the House report.

What Vandenberg tried to do, above all, was to recapture the atmosphere in which Congress had approved the recovery program by overwhelming majorities two months ago.

Fears "Capricious" Brand

He begged the committee not to upset the declared policies of Congress and "thus to brand those policies before the world as capricious, unreliable and impotent." Congress could not afford, he said, "to throw our attitudes into doubt, and thus to multiply the terrified confusions of a world in which the forces of aggression and subversion thrive on confusion."

He estimated that the House had chopped nearly two billion dollars from the amounts needed for the first year of the recovery program. He was especially aroused over the House device to spread 12 months' spending over 15 months, and said the Senate committee had to "escape from the horrible hazard of this horizontal meat-ax reduction."

Senators Ask Clarification

It was up to the Appropriations Committee to scrutinize ECA requests and get every scrap of information needed, he said, but to make specific cuts only where specifically justified.

Several Senators wanted to know more exactly what Vandenberg meant. Senator Guy Cordon (R., Oreg.) asked what the committee should do if it felt the funds could not all be spent in 12 months.

Vandenberg answered that he drew a sharp distinction "between facts for which reasons are given, and this kind of anonymous assault for which no reasons are given."

Urges Trust in Hoffman

"You might find that some figures needed to be increased rather than decreased," Vandenberg said. "If you cannot trust Administrator Hoffman not to be improvident you had better trust him at all."

Cordon then wanted to know what figure the committee could recommend without violating good faith. Vandenberg answered that obviously a reduction of a billion or a billion and a half dollars would ruin the program, for it would take off "just that portion that we can hopefully apply to recovery rather than relief."

Answering Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), who had complimented him on "serving your country very well by the statement you made this morning," Vandenberg called attention to Communist newspaper headlines throughout Europe about the House cuts. "A study of these headlines," he said, "will show what a terrific impact any action of the Appropriations Committee has upon psychology abroad."

Senator Alben E. Barkley (D., Ky.) testified briefly to support Vandenberg's stand. "In considering the amount," he said, "I don't think we can use the same basis as for domestic projects. There is a moral and psychological effect of what we do here. I don't want to give the people of Europe the excuse to think we are running out on them."

Vandenberg—Almost—Says He'll Be President

For a few breathless seconds yesterday Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg had members of the Senate Appropriations Committee on the edge of their chairs.

In his plea to give the foreign aid program "the benefit of the doubt" this year, he said, "You will find me making a totally different recommendation as to your attitude on this question next January."

"As Senator or President?" asked Senator Clyde Reed (R., Kans.).

"I'd like to answer that," said Vandenberg, grinning. "As President—," he paused for a few seconds, "—pro tem of the Senate."

Bevin Won't Alter Policy of Israel Nonrecognition

London, June 9 (NYHT).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin gave critics of his non-recognition of Israel policy little hope today that he would soon change his mind about the Jewish state in Palestine.

Bevins told Commons the fact the Arab Legion had attacked Jerusalem does not "oblige the British government to review their obligations to the Trans-Jordan government." He observed that "the Arab Legion did not start the fighting at Jerusalem."

Truman 'Needling' Draws GOP Ire

Republican congressional leaders slammed back at the President with personal abuse yesterday as Mr. Truman's transcontinental "needling" of Capitol inaction drew it's first hot reaction.

Until yesterday they had ignored or ridiculed the President's Western tour. But they got hot under the collar when Mr. Truman, speaking in Spokane, Wash., said: "This is the worst Congress we have had since the first one met."

The long-developing clash between the President and Congress almost reached a "You're another" low.

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) came up with:

"There are a lot of people who think Mr. Truman is the poorest President we have had since George Washington was elected. And there is no doubt that this Congress has had the worst cooperation from the President that any Congress has had."

In the same vein, Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), said: "That's his opinion. There are people who have said that about the President."

House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends (R., Ill.), contributed: "That's awful loud talk from a little fellow in a big job."

Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.) varied that with: "Big talk coming from a small boy."

Representative Charles W. Vursell (R., Ill.) said Mr. Truman was "indicting" Democrats as well. Vursell added:

"Such a charge used for political purposes by a President who was elected to Congress by the Pendergast machine, after being a failure in business, only lowers the dignity of a high office he attained as a political accident . . . The people will pay no attention to him."

Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), acting Senate majority leader, said:

"That's a curious statement from the nonpolitical, bipartisan investigation trip that the President said he was making. That's just ward politics. The people—not the President—will decide as to the record of this Congress in November."

"That's mighty big talk coming from a small boy," said Representative Van Zandt (R., Pa.).

Chairman Hope (R., Kans.) of the House Agriculture Committee commented that "the frigid reception which the President is receiving in the West seems to have driven him to some loose and irresponsible talk."

"And this is not a political trip?" asked Representative Michener (R., Mich.).

Anderson Wins In New Mexico

Albuquerque, N Mex., June 9 (AP).—Former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson and former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will oppose each other next November for New Mexico's seat in the United States Senate now occupied by Carl A. Hatch.

Anderson defeated former Gov. John J. Dempsey in yesterday's Democratic primary election. Hurley, Cabinet member under President Hoover and President Roosevelt's trouble-shooter in China, was unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Senator Hatch, who expects appointment to the Federal bench, did not seek renomination.

Dempsey conceded the race to Anderson. With 737 of the State's 868 precincts reported, the former Cabinet member had 38,889 votes to Dempsey's 24,632.

Democrats also renominated Gov. Thomas T. Mabry, handing him more votes than his two opponents combined.

In the Republican camp, Manuel Lujan, former Santa Fe mayor, led the nearest of his three opponents for the gubernatorial nomination by more than 4000 votes from 729 voting divisions.

Both Republican and Democratic congressional races were still in doubt late today. The State's two representatives are nominated and elected at large.

In the five-man Democratic race, former Gov. John E. Miles and Representative A. M. Fernandez held narrof leads, with Representative Georgia Lusk a close third.

Returns from 729 precincts gave Miles 31,264; Fernandez, 29,693; Lusk, 28,188; Floyd Kennedy of Portales, 17,402, and Arthur Seefeldt of Albuquerque, 2,149.

The GOP congressional candidates were bunched even tighter. Returns from 640 precincts gave Herman Baca of Belen 12,108; Ben Meyer of Albuquerque, 11,441, and Earl Douglass of Albuquerque, 10,277

Gov. Dewey, Stassen Seek Va. Support

Richmond, Va., June 9 (AP).—Republican presidential candidates Harold E. Stassen and Thomas E. Dewey came confidently to Virginia today in quest of convention delegates, but only Stassen offered a prediction of what will happen at Philadelphia next month.

"I believe we'll get the nomination at Philadelphia on the ninth ballot," said Stassen as he alighted from a plane at Byrd Airport. "There'll be extended balloting before any nomination is made, and I think we'll win on the ninth."

The former Minnesota Governor then was whisked by automobile to a hotel for a reception and a dinner with Virginia Republican leaders and convention delegates. It was the same audience that welcomed New York's Governor Dewey at a reception and luncheon earlier in the day.

The New York Governor shied away from definite predictions on the outcome of the Republican convention, but said he didn't think there was any doubt about a Republican victory in November "with or without Wallace in the race."

To a question whether he thought Henry Wallace would still be in the race when election time comes around, Dewey told a press conference:

"I don't know and I don't think Wallace knows either. In fact he doesn't seem to know what he's going to do from day to day . . . In any event we're going to win in November."

National Republican Committeeman Curtis M. Dozier, sr., and Republican State Chairman Robert Woods accompanied Dewey to a hotel for a round of handshaking and a private luncheon for the the leaders and the State's 21 Republican Convention delegates and a like number of alternates. At the conclusion of his talk to them he answered questions asked him by the lunchers.

Dewey Leaves for Raleigh

A delegate said later that Dewey told his listeners he would be down in Virginia to give the congressional candidates a hand if he became the party's choice at Philadelphia.

Dewey and his party left Richmond in their special railroad car at 6:55 p. m. for Raleigh, N. C., a little more than an hour after Stassen's plane alighted at the airport.

The two candidates didn't come any closer than their hotels, a half-mile apart.

Stassen was greeted at the airport by State Chairman Woods, State Republican Party Executive Director Earle Lutz and Walter L. Rice, a leader of the Stassen-for-President forces in Virginia and a college mate of Stassen's at the University of Minnesota.

Halleck meanwhile told the House:

"By the end of next week we can very well conclude the consideration of all of the measures that we ought to consider and that we can afford to consider . . .

"I see no reason for the House to do anything other than to continue with its program for the consideration of various measures before us in the hope that we may conclude action on them by June 19."

DP Bill Listed

Starting with the Fellows displaced persons bill, at an 11 a. m. House session called for today, Halleck listed these other bills for consideration this week:

Extension of farm price supports and the commodity credit program, limited broadening of the Social Security structure, and the technical tax revision bill. Next week, Halleck said, the House probably will call up the draft and housing bills. He told reporters later the "must" slate isn't complete, and other bills probably will be added.

In addition to the new veterans' measures, Martin said a Federal pay increase, or at least the postal workers' part of it, might be put on the House docket, though they haven't yet received the green light.

Asked if the political going may get "rough" if Congress returns between conventions, Martin said: "I've been to rough parties before, and have generally held my own."

President Calls 80th Congress Second Worst in U. S. History

whopping reception he got in that Democratic mining town.

At the Spokane terminal, Ray Felknor, a local reporter, came up and said:

"Mr. President, how do you like being in Republican territory?"

U. S. Senator Warren Magnuson brought out that Felknor represented the Spokesman-Review. President Truman, who knows the Northwest country well, commented that the Spokesman-Review and the Chicago Tribune were "the worst newspapers in the country, with the Tribune having the edge." Referring to the newspapers' attacks on the last Democratic Congress, he said, "well we got just what they wanted, the worst Congress we've had since the first one met."

He amended the statement about two hours later.

The turnout at Spokane was a good one. Gov. Mon Wallgren, who used to be Mr. Truman's colleague in the Senate and who has been mentioned as his possible running mate this year, was at the station to meet him; so was Senator Magnuson and so was Miss Spokane, a brunette beauty who had just triumphed in a contest with 40 other girls.

In a talk on power irrigation and flood problems at Monaghan Square, Mr. Truman referred to Governor Wallgren as "my good friend." Whether it would help Wallgren politically was debatable. The local reporters said that he was in real trouble and in danger of being defeated for reelection this year.

Associates of Mr. Truman have never taken very seriously the talk about Wallgren as a vice presidential possibility.

The President as a result of riding bare-headed in open cars, has acquired quite a sunburn. He mentioned it to the Spokane audience today, after explaining why he had been wearing a hat in the parade.

"I rode all day yesterday in this Western sun and got my face fried," he said. "I didn't want to get it turned over and done this time."

In talking about the Coulee Dam, TVA and other power and flood-control projects sponsored in the New Deal years, Mr. Truman mentioned the late Franklin D. Roosevelt for the first time on this trip.

"The vast majority of the developments in this part of the world were made under those Congresses when Franklin D. Roosevelt was President," he said.

The crowd applauded vigorously, and it was apparent that Roosevelt is still a magical name out this way.

The President made two talks at Spokane.

He told the Monaghan Square crowd, estimated at 10,000, that the flooding of the Columbia River can be checked, but not as long as there is a Congress that agrees with Daniel Webster that the West "is no good."

He also went "AWOL" for his schedule, as he put it, to drop in on the convention of the Independent Communications Workers of America.

He told the union convention that labor's "only remedy" for the Taft-Hartley Act rests in the polls next November.

"And if you continue that law in effect," he said, "that is your fault and not mine, because I don't want it."

From Spokane, Mr. Truman drove 90 miles to Coulee Dam, largest man-made structure in the world next to the Great Wall of China.

Truman Irate at Aides Over Eulogy Boner

Aboard Presidential Special, June 9.—President Truman, ordinarily easygoing, was an angry man after yesterday's mixup at Carey, Idaho.

To judge from the subdued behavior of his aides today, he must have called them into his private car, and talked to them in old-fashioned artilleryman's language.

Mr. Truman felt that somebody should have briefed him in advance of the Carey ceremony, where, in dedicating an airport, he delivered a eulogy to a soldier who had never lived or died.

He was embarrassed, naturally, but what distressed him most was the embarrassment of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Coates. It was their daughter, 16-year-old Wilma Coates, who had died and not a soldier-son, as the President thought.

Associates of Mr. Truman said that the first word that they got of a ceremony at Carey was when somebody in that town telephoned to a member of the presidential party at Sun Valley. When the official caravan reached Carey, a wreath was given to the President and also a scrawled note which he had trouble reading. It is likely that he mistook Wilma for William.

At any rate, the whole atmosphere suggested that it was a memorial and dedication ceremony for a fallen soldier. A huge flag was stretched across the road. Lined up near the President's car was an honor guard of war veterans, wearing their old uniforms and campaign ribbons, and decorations.

There was nothing to suggest that the deceased had been a high school girl who died while taking a hop in a private plane with her boy friend.

Rayburn to Insist On Public Housing

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Texas) yesterday threw his weight behind the fight to have the House include public housing in legislation scheduled for next week.

The House Banking and Currency Committee will meet today to consider a bill introduced by Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) which omits public housing, slum clearance, urban redevelopment, aid to rural housing and Government research.

The Wolcott bill is given a better than even chance of committee approval today, but a stiff floor fight looms when the measure comes up next week.

Gleeful Democrats yesterday predicted that housing may well become a major issue in the presidential campaign.

They were heartened at the wide-open split in Republican ranks over housing. Wolcott has characterized the Senate-passed T-E-W bill as "socialistic." It includes public housing and its principal author and sponsor is Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), a leading GOP presidential aspirant.

"It is very remarkable thing if Mr. Taft is pressing socialistic legislation," Rayburn commented.

He added that with such a crying need for housing throughout the country, failure to provide it can scarcely help becoming a major campaign issue.

Amendments to restore the omitted portions of the T-E-W act will be offered from the floor—most of them by Democratic members of the Banking and Currency Committee, if the Wolcott bill is reported.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee yesterday took steps to see that at least one section of the T-E-W bill will not be killed off.

The group approved a House-passed measure providing Federal grants to help wheel-chair veterans build special homes. The Government would pay half the cost of the home up to $10,000. The Senate had adopted a similar provision as a part of the T-E-W measure.

House Hears First Woman Give Prayer

THE REV. ANNALEE STEWART, an ordained Methodist minister, was the first woman in congressional history to offer a daily prayer yesterday in the House

The Rev. Annalee Stewart of Washington and Chicago yesterday became the first woman to give the daily prayer in the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Stewart, 48-year-old ordained Methodist minister, is legislative representative for the Women's Committee to Oppose Conscription, with offices at 1734 F. st. nw.

She and her husband, also a Methodist minister, have shared pulpits in the New England Methodist Conference. Her husband, the Rev. Alexander Stewart, is working with the Peace Section of the American Friends Service Committee.

Mrs. Stewart was invited to give the prayer by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, House Chaplain.

In her prayer Mrs. Stewart said there is "so much fear, suspicion and planning for the destruction of mankind."

She asked God to "take from our frightened hands the bomb and bayonet. Arm us with spirit instead."

Later Representative Frances P. Bolton (R., Ohio) thanked Mrs. Stewart for her prayer.

Mrs. Stewart is a graduate of Illinois Wesleyan College, Boston University and Colgate Rochester Divinity School.

Mrs. Kiefer is the daughter of John Kneale, Moravian bishop of Jamaica and the granddaughter of the late Col. John Hicks of the Union army during the American Civil War. She met Kiefer during World War II in Washington, where she served as a member of the Auxiliary Territorial Staff of the British Army.

Over-all plans for a contemplated four-million-dollar building program at Children's Hospital here were disclosed yesterday by Dr. Montgomery Blair, director of the hospital.

First phase of the program, Dr. Blair said, involves razing the hospital's oldest structure, the 78-year-old edifice fronting on W st. between 12th and 13th nw., and replacing it with a larger, modern building.

This project, he said, would be financed with the $1,300,000 which was raised by public contributions over a 20-month campaign, and a hoped-for matching grant of $656,000 available under provisions of the Hill-Burton Act to encourage hospital construction.

Leaders at Get-Together

Dr. Blair told of the hospital plans following a special "coffee and doughnut" get-together at the hospital for Congressmen and District leaders. The hospital later held "Open House" for the public as part of the Hospital Council's "Know Your Hospital Month."

Should Children's Hospital receive approval of Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, on its application for the Federal funds, Dr. Blair pointed out, the hospital would be able to proceed with its original building plans which it asked the public to finance.

The $656,000 asked, he said, represents just about the rise in construction costs between the time the hospital started its drive for funds and now.

Plans Hinge on Bills Passage

Remainder of the hospital's building plans for the future, estimated at two million dollars to replace and modernize other structures in the city-block series of buildings, hinges on congressional action on the hospital center bill, now under committee consideration, which would set up special grants for such purposes.

Both construction phases, said Dr. Blair, would add but few beds to the hospital's present capacity of 222 beds. The efficiency maximum for a hospital plant like Children's ranges between 250 to 300 beds, he said. The building program, however, will provide more space for housing nurses and internes there and permit enlargement of the hospital's research and teaching programs, said Dr. Blair.

Kensington Firemen Elect Joseph Berry

Joseph L. Berry, of Kensington, Md., last night was unanimously elected president of the Kensington, Md., Volunteer Fire Department to succeed Bradley C. Riggs.

Other new officers unanimously elected at the meeting held in Kensington's Volunteer Fire House were John R. Graff, vice president; Richard Peek, secretary, and Thomas I. Curtis, treasurer. Fire Chief Lohis R. Kengla was unanimously reelected to serve his second term.

R. E. L. Smith jr., who resigned as treasurer of the firemen because of the pressure of his business, was given an honorary membership for life. Smith had served the department for six years as treasurer.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Karl Rex Hammers of Pittsburgh, retiring imperial potentate, today was defeated in his election bid for the $15,000-a-year post as recorder of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Six candidates were reported seeking the lowest imperial post, that of outer guard. Officers move up a step each year until eventually they become imperial potentate.

Galloway Calhoun of Tyler, Tex., was installed as imperial potentate, succeeding Hammers. Harold Lloyd, bespectacled, one-time movie comedian, became deputy imperial potentate. Lloyd automatically becomes imperial potentate next year.

Remmie L. Arnold of Petersburg, Va., was installed as imperial first ceremonial master.

Nevius Site Voted For VA Hospital

The House yesterday agreed without a fight to let the Veterans' Administration build the long-disputed hospital on the Nevius tract in Arlington County.

The decision is still subject to Senate action. It was written into a supplemental appropriation bill on the motion of Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth (R., Mass.).

Chief sponsor of the action was Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), who had appealed to the House Appropriations Committee along with Veterans' Administration officials for removing the ban ordered by Congress last year against using the Nevius tract for the veterans' hospital.

The 25-acre tract is located at Lee blvd. and Arlington Ridge rd.

Veterans' Administration planners have charted a 750-bed hospital to cost about 25 million dollars.

Smith originally fought use of the site on the ground that it would cost too much. The Veterans Administration sought to withdraw from purchase of the property, but Alexandria District Court action blocked the move.

In announcing his present support for the hospital project, Smith explained that since the court decision made the Government go through with the purchase "I do not see any point in going somewhere else and buying another site."

Mrs. Lamarre Sues Ex-Gen. Meyers For Defamation

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—Mrs. Mildred R. Lamarre of Dayton, Ohio, today filed a $250,000 suit for defamation of character against Bennett E. Meyers, former major general, who told Senate investigators she was his "girl friend."

Meyers is now serving a jail sentence of from 20 months to five years for persuading Mrs. Lamarre's husband Bleriot, to tell lies to a Senate investigating committee digging into his alleged war time profits from Aviation Electric Corp.

Mrs. Lamarre, Meyers' former secretary, brought her suit against Meyers because he told the Senators "Mrs. Lamarre was my girl friend from approximately 1936 to 1940 with Mr. Lamarre's knowledge, approval and acquiescence. I had no other reason for forming the company but solely for the benefit of the Lamarres."

and medical care, and 20 per cent for distres and hardship.

Made up with payments of 10 cents a ton by the operators on all coal mined, the fund now totals some 50 million dollars but no payments have yet been made from it. This is because Ezra Van Horn, the operators representative on the welfare board, refused to agree to Lewis' demand for $100 a month pension payments and the board was deadlocked when the "public" member gave up and quit.

After Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) had become a trustee at the suggestion of House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.), he and Lewis agreed to the $100-a-month plan April 12. Van Horn then asked the courts to prevent such payments, contending they would bankrupt the fund.

The "able and willing" clause in the present contract to which the operators objected yesterday provides that the miners will work only when able and willing to do so. Its elimination was sought by the operators "so that both sides would be mutually obligated to prevent illegal strikes and lockouts."

Offer Carries Condition

Even as he offered his proposals yesterday, Lewis insisted that the UMW and the operators be empowered to set them aside on five days' notice.

Those proposals indicated a possibility of reaching a successful conclusion to negotiations without a strike since they were the first sign Lewis has given that he would be willing to keep his miners on the job after July 1 without a contract. Heretofore, rigid UMW policy has been one of "no contract, no work."

However, his offer to keep his men at work even though negotiations are prolonged included a condition. That was that the pension plan be put into effect "forthwith."

Lewis said in a statement accompanying his proposals that they were made "in order to reassure the Nation and insure an adequate supply of coal after July 1."

He added that unless the operators went along with him, more than 146,000 injured miners and members of their families "will be left virtually penniless after July 1." He added that his proposal for canceling the agreement on five days' notice was made "so that neither the coal operators nor miners may suffer from this proposed agreement."

The operators, in presenting their plan which resulted from 48 hours of conferences, said it was within the law, thus indirectly charging the Lewis plan was not. Of wage increases the operators said:

Wage Change Opposed

"Wages are not the primary matter in this conference. The miner is the highest paid industrial worker in the country. His purchasing power has increased a substantial 86 per cent over 1939, while the purchasing power for manufacturing employes has moved up only 29 per cent in the same period of time.

"We believe that the miners' wages should continue at this same high level; that no change is justified."

They also offered to include in their contract a union shop provision "to become effective when and to the extent permitted by law." Under such a provision, Lewis could have a union shop if and when he signed the non-Communist affidavit demanded by the Taft-Hartley Act. This Lewis has so far refused to do, though himself an avowed anti-Communist.

Bushfield Improved, Soon to Leave Hospital

Senator Harlan J. Bushfield (R., S. Dak.), yesterday was reported "very much improved" and almost ready to leave Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital where he has been confined for more than a month. A spokesman for the 65-year-old Senator said he could be expected to leave the hospital "in a day or two."

Librarians Hear Mrs. Clapper, Receive Truman Message

Mrs. Olive Ewing Clapper, Washington author, urged yesterday that the "method of scientific discipline and knowledge" be applied to "man's political thinking."

She spoke to more than 500 persons attending the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Special Libraries Association at a luncheon in Hotel Statler.

"Let us bring to bear all mankind's wisdom to the task of converting the present unsteady structure of human society into an edifice solid enough to house modern machinery, atomic bombs, biological pests," Mrs. Clapper pleaded. "This is not the scientist's job alone. It is every man's work."

In the evening, at a banquet in Hotel Burlington sponsored by librarians of newspapers and publishing firms, Relman Morin, chief of the Associated Press Washington Bureau, traced the origin and development of the wire service orgnaization, now celebrating its 100th anniversary.

Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, director of the Library of Congress' legislative reference service, another speaker, gave the group pointers on "How to Anticipate News." He urged a knowledge of social psychology as well as an awareness of the broad social and economic forces in operation throughout the world.

Earlier, delegates received a message from President Truman in which he called upon librarians to assume an active program for "these are times of momentous decision." He said that "one of the greatest services that librarians can do is constantly to direct whatever is significant to the attention of those who can benefit by it."

The message was read by Irene M. Strieby of the Lilly Research Laboratories, president of the Association.

Trial Board Setup Changed

jury" of three civilians—one of them preferably a lawyer—who would investigate citizens' complaints against policemen and determine whether they were substantial enough to warrant trial board action.

This, he pointed out, would remove the onus of "whitewash" which attends some "borderline" cases where the police or the corporation counsel decide the facts do not warrant a trial.

Barrett also called for a second trial board of three police officers of superior rank to hear cases involving infractions of department regulations. Barrett said this was proper disciplinary procedure "just like the Army, Navy or Marine Corps" employ.

Murphy requested that Fire Department trial boards, which now include one fire officer, the assistant auditor, and an assistant corporation counsel, be changed to consist of two fire officers and one civilian lawyer.

25 Maternity Beds, Bassinets Added At GWU Hospital

The addition of 25 maternity beds and bassinets in the third-floor maternity division of new George Washington University Hospital was announced yesterday by Hospital Supt. Leo Schmelzer.

The additions bring to full capacity of 72 beds and 72 basinets the maternity accommodations of the hospital.

The modern maternity arrangements provide portable bassinets which can be wheeled to the mother's bed. The bassinets can be hooked to the bed, or slid across it, enabling the mother to feed, care for, and play with her child. There are also private nurseries and four and eight-crib nurseries.

Socialistic Housing

Representative Wolcott on Tuesday did not actually call Senator Taft, who has sponsored the public housing measure, a socialist, but he did reiterate his charge that any governmental effort to push aside the roadblock to low-cost housing is socialism and, presumably, something to be shunned like sin. So far Mr. Wolcott has successfully sat on all efforts to dislodge the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill from his House Banking and Currency Committee, and the substitute bill he offered Tuesday is plainly calculated to thwart all public housing assistance.

Whether this absurd attempt to discredit public housing by labeling it socialistic will win any new converts to socialist doctrine is problematical, though it is apparent that by Mr. Wolcott's yardstick a good many Americans are socialists and don't know it. Indeed, Mr. Wolcott may himself have a tinge of socialism. For, at least in his public pronouncements, Mr. Wolcott so far has not yet challenged the Postoffice and national defense establishment as threats to the rights of free enterprise. Yet assuredly these undertakings are socialistic in the sense that in the past individuals contracted with private firms to deliver their letters or bear their arms. As a matter of fact, the whole concept of government is in a degree socialistic, since tone of the functions of government is to perform for the common good services which cannot be accomplished efficiently by individuals acting alone.

Probably even Mr. Wolcott would term ridiculous any such attempt to stigmatize the Postoffice. Yet his approach to the problem of public housing is hardly less so. For the 500,000 low-cost public housing units provided in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill would not invade a field in which private enterprise has been active. That, indeed, is the principal justification for public housing. Private enterprise simply has not been building homes within the price range of the great majority of persons who need housing. Private builders have been active, and many homes are now under construction—but their completion at prices from $12,000 up will afford little hope to the families now living in hovels or doubled up with others. Mr. Wolcott's substitute bill, though it encompasses many T-E-W bill provisions, would do nothing to relieve the most critical aspect of the entire housing picture.

Two avenues remain open for those members of Congress who recognize that housing is one of the most pressing domestic problems. One is to obtain the 35 additional signatures necessary to discharge the T-E-W bill from Mr. Wolcott's committee. The other is to accept the Wolcott bill and amend it on the floor. In any event, the Republican Congress should not be misled into reneging on its promise of decent housing by Mr. Wolcott's painful attempt thus to label a measure that has passed the Senate twice while gathering dust on a House shelf.

Bernadotte's Success

One hurdle to peace and stability in Palestine has been overcome with the acceptance by both sides of Count Bernadotte's interpretation of the cease-fire. This is an initial triumph for the U. N. mediator. Personality and authority count in the Middle East. In this instance the weight, in the light of the pusillanimity of the United Nations, attaches to personality, though it must be borne in mind that behind the scenes a deal seems to be in the making, and this must have been helpful to Count Bernadotte.

As to the deal, negotiations undoubtedly are extremely delicate. For now that the Mufti is discredited inside Palestine as (we hope) he is now discredited in Washington and London and Cairo, King Abdullah's undoubted claims in Arab Palestine have to be more or less acceptable to his fellow members of the Arab League. What he wants, as we have said before, is a sea outlet at Gaza (together with a corridor thereto) and a pipe line. We hope he gets the port, and maybe the pipe line project will be revived. He is the only Arab ruler who does not get any revenue from the oil companies, and, armed with some of this revenue, he would be enabled to be more independent than he is today. His position as a puppet of Britain, so long denied in Britain, has certainly been proved by latter-day events.

The wonder remains why this mediation and this diplomacy have been so tardy. What is being done today should have been done months ago. The lesson is that time should be taken by the forelock in attending to the steps necessary to promote general stability. Obviously no federation is possible between Israel and King Abdullah, if for no other reason than that this would mean to the Israelis a federation with the British. A wider grouping should be aimed at, and the chance may develop out of the proposed setting up of a U. N. Economic Commission for the Middle East, similar to the one now functioning at Geneva for Europe. And a geographical rather than a religious or racial basis is necessary for such a tie-up. Events have shown that the Middle East is a potential vacuum, strategically no less than economically and politically.

Subverting ECA

"I would be the last to say that the (ECA) figures are untouchable," Senator Vandenberg told the Senate Appropriations Committee. "But I do quarrel . . . with any reductions which subvert the principles and purposes of the original congressional commitment." Incidental techniques used in this process of subversion have hitherto escaped much comment because of the concentration on the meat ax. They are contained in the various directives written into the appropriations bill. These indicate that a good many Congressmen regard ECA as a program for the benefit of the American farmer and exporter instead of a measure to help "Europe back to economic health." The House bill provides our Russian critics with plenty of ammunition for supporting their originally unwarranted charge that the foreign-aid program was designed to provide a market for American surpluses at good prices for Americans.

Let's look at the record. The bill provides that wool shall be bought exclusively from the Commodity Credit Corporation until its stocks are exhausted. Since CCC wool is of low grade and unsuitable for European use, it follows that the participating countries will either have to take a commodity they do not want or go without. Another section of the bill provides that if an American exporter had a contract to export any commodity to a nonparticipating country prior to March 1 and was denied an export license, the ECA administrator is to arrange for the transfer of such exports to participating countries at not less than the contract price, plus conversion costs. Since export licenses covering proposed shipments of 30 million sacks of flour intended for Brazil have been held up, that means that ECA will have that much flour on its hands for disposal along with various other commodities that may or may not be suited to European needs. Yesterday The Washington Post carried a picture showing huge piles of wheat lying in the streets of a Texas town because grain elevators are filled to overflowing. How about shipping some of those wheat surpluses for conversion into flour instead of diverting flour shipments from Brazil?

And what will our detractors have to say about an amendment to the appropriations bill voted from the House floor requiring the ECA administrator to spend not less than 65 million dollars for dry milk solids? They will rightly consider it just another sop thrown to the dairy interests of the United States at the urging of the Congressman from Wisconsin who introduced the amendment. Moreover, cynics will not omit to mention that some of the legislators who have striven valiantly to prevent ECA cuts are from tobacco-growing districts. It is no secret that Administration estimates of the amount of tobacco to be purchased with ECA funds amount to much larger totals than the nations of western Europe have asked for. A much stronger case could have been made out for amending the appropriations bill to limit this American tobacco relief program than for voting—as the House did—to restrict ECA outlays for farm machinery and tractors to not more than 50 million dollars instead of the 81 million dollars estimated to be the minimum requirement.

The bill also calls on the administrator to obtain at least 50 per cent of fertilizer material intended for participating countries from production by the Department of the Army. Furthermore, participating countries must surrender to the United States Government for purchase of strategic materials at least 10 per cent of the special local currency accounts set up under the Foreign Assistance Act. That means forcing those countries to turn over to the U. S. Government the equivalent of approximately 400 million dollars that would otherwise be available for their own use for the purpose of building up their earning power and helping them to help themselves. Subversion, indeed!

Quickie Divorces

No satisfactory untangling of our complicated divorce laws can be expected so long as the States retain control over this aspect of American social life and a few States insist on granting bargain-counter divorces. It appears, however, that the Supreme Court is making some progress in ironing out inconsistencies and uncertainties left by various decisions of recent years. In the decisions handed down this week it continues to look askance upon operation of the divorce mills. But it also tries to mitigate the evils of having a divorce valid in one State and not in another.

In the Estin case the court held that a man who went to Nevada and secured a bargain-counter divorce could not thereby escape the payment of alimony under a separate-maintenance decree of the New York courts. Since Nevada had no power to adjudicate Mrs. Estin's rights under the New York judgment, the court held, New York did not need to give full faith and credit to that phase of the Nevada decree. Here is continued evidence that the divorce-mill States are subject to at least some restraints in their flagrant interference with the domestic relations of families actually domiciled in other jurisdictions.

In the more difficult case of Sherrer vs. Sherrer, however, the court refused to let the husband upset a Florida divorce after he had participated in the divorce proceeding and failed to raise the issue of jurisdiction of the Florida court. Mrs. Sherrer had gone to Florida ostensibly on a vacation, but stayed to obtain a divorce after the required 90 days of residence. A few months later she married a former acquaintance from her home in Massachusetts and then moved back to the latter State. There will be a great deal of sympathy with Justice Frankfurter's view that Mrs. Sherrer never intended to make a permanent home in Florida; that she claimed residence there only to take advantage of that State's quickie divorce system; and that the decision of the court allowing this divorce to stand against the attack made on it in the Massachusetts court by the former husband will encourage fraud and deception on the part of men and women resorting to the Nevada and Florida divorce mills.

As a practical matter, however, there is much to commend the majority conclusion that the "full faith and credit" clause of the Constitution must be given broad application. It is one thing, as Chief Justice Vinson said for the majority, to recognize permissible examination into the facts about the parties' actual domicile after a divorce-mill State has entered a decree with only one party represented. It is another thing to hold that vital interests involved in a divorce case in which both parties have participated be held in suspense until the courts of a sister State scrutinize the facts about residence and jurisdiction. The decision must be recognized, however, as only a minor mitigation of a very troublesome dilemma.

Schools For Americans

Full responsibility for the failure of the House of Representatives to act on the bill for Federal aid to education must be placed on the shoulders of Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. This bill, in one form or another, has been exhaustively studied and debated for five years. Its enactment, urgent in the past and now imperative if a breakdown of the American public school system is to be avoided, has been indorsed by leading educators, by labor unions, by farm organizations concerned about schooling for rural children, and by religious groups of every denomination. The Senate passed the bill early in April; but since then, it has languished in the House Committee on Education and Labor. A word from Mr. Martin would bring it to the floor.

Mr. Martin, for the sake of his good name if not of his conscience, owes an explanation to the American people. As the Gallup Poll has shown beyond peradventure, they are overwhelmingly in favor of national assistance to improve the educational opportunities of their children—and are even quite willing to pay the increased taxes necessary to provide such assistance. They will want to know what motives and interests have impelled Mr. Martin to block a Government program so basic to the successful operation of the democratic process.

Mr. Martin says he is for Federal aid to education in principle, but is concerned about whether the country can afford it. This is a curious concern in view of the tax reduction sponsored by his party, in view of the fabulous expenditures which Congress has authorized for military security and foreign economic aid—and, above all, in view of the desperate condition of the American school system. The United States considers education important enough to be spending in the current fiscal year about 1¼ million dollars to encourage it in Latin America through the Institute of Inter-American Affairs. This assistance to the schools of good neighbors looks odd in the light of the American situation.

The Federal aid bill as passed by the Senate calls for an annual expenditure of 300 million dollars—no great sum when one considers the magnitude of the problem. If Mr. Martin is really for Federal aid in principle and concerned about it only on grounds of economy, let him at least support putting the principal in operation. Many of the leading proponents of Federal aid would welcome any fraction of the proposed expenditure for the sake of getting the principle adopted. A beginning, however modest, is infinitely preferable to the stultifying inaction and indifference of the House up to now. What has Joe Martin got to say about this?

Illiteracy Figures

Mr. Drew Pearson's column in The Washington Post of June 7 flagrantly depreciates the intelligence level of the American people through a gross misuse of published Census Bureau figures.

Through such misrepresentation he concludes that 10 million American people 25 years of age and over are "illiterate."

The last census in which figures on illiteracy were collected was that of 1930. That census called for information on whether people 10 years of age and over could read and write. It recorded that 4,283,753, or 4.3 per cent, were not able to read and write in any language.

Because illiteracy had practically disappeared in the United States by 1940, the Census Bureau in the 1940 decennial census did not even include a question on illiteracy. Rather it asked the number of years of school completed. Of all the population of 25 years of age and over, 10,104,612 had failed to complete five full years of schooling. They were broken down as follows:

Native white	4,222,057
Foreign-born white	3,100,057
Negroes	2,680,186
Other races	102,312
Total	10,104,612

The Census Bureau does not classify persons who have not completed five full years of schooling as illiterate. It has repeatedly published statements warning against such interpretation. The fact that it had abandoned the illiteracy question 10 years earlier is evidence of its assumption that illiteracy had practically disappeared in America.

Gales School Fire

"Three Alarm School Fire Blamed on Children"—so reads a headline in The Washington Post of June 3.

It seems that there was a bad fire in the old Gales School, and someone was finally able to pin the blame on three small children, who, they say, found a box of matches, entered the school through a broken window, and set the fire in some old rubbish.

But those children were not to blame . . . the blame rests with the officials of the District of Columbia, who allow a building to be in such condition that small children can enter it through broken windows.

Take a look at that building and its surrounding grounds, and many more public buildings like it in the District. Fences down, grounds unkept, windows broken, etc. It's a disgrace to the community, and a glaring example of the lack of interest by public officials in what is a part of their jobs—to preserve and protect those public buildings, and the children of the community.

Fortunately, those children got out of the building in time—but they might have become panic-stricken and been burned to death just as easily, and then who would be to blame . . . those same public officials.

Nonsegregated Theater

Not so many months ago, there was a great deal of public activity by many organizations in opposition to the segregation policies of the National Theater and Lisner Auditorium. Apparently, these groups and the public at large deemed that the issue was resolved by the action of Actors Equity.

Now we are told that the National will close rather than give a fair try to a nonsegregated policy. The once active organizations seem to take this news with good humor, for no report has come of any positive action to prevent this closing. We are told that the Belasco might be bought by a group which would not practice segregation. However, that is not an action by the public at large.

Those groups that lead the attack on segregation have passed the buck to Equity. The result, as things stand now, is that Equty, whose members are now suffering from unemployment, will lose 52 more weeks for its members. A debt is owed to Equity and its members. There is a need for positive action by the people of Washington that will save them from being the scapegoat.

May I suggest that those groups that led the original fight band together and form a committee that will underwrite four or eight weeks of full, nonsegregated, houses at the National. (No Student Prince, please.) If this were presented to the present lessee of the National, the issue would become clear, and the blame would be able to be properly placed in case the National closed in face of such an offer. Is it not possible that such an offer would lead to a reversal of the present plans? Should we not demonstrate the willingness of the majority to attend a nonsegregated theater?

Austrian Jews

The number of Jews in Vienna has been reduced to less than 9000 out of a prewar 200,000. Returned to their homeland after many years of concentration camps, exile or hide-outs, they are not given a fair deal. The law which grants them equal status with the rest of the people is just a mockery.

With the exception of a few lawyers and doctors, they are all jobless. Their former apartments, for the most part, were not turned back to them. The planned restitution law reestablishing their rights as tenants is still not on the statute books, in spite of pledges given for the last two years.

Another law passed a year ago by the legislature and purported to assist victims of racial and religious persecution in rebuilding their lives is just a hoodwink. I was unable to ascertain any one person enjoying benefits under this law. Restitution of property is delayed and mostly sabotaged.

Lawyers—Christians and Jews—who fight vigorously for the rights of the victims of war and nazism and some magistrates who try to be fair get threatening letters.

Austria has failed to get so far the amount of equity she deserves, and she has failed completely to do her share in rendering the equity she owes. This is my dispassionate judgment after two months of thorough investigation in Vienna.

Mundt Bill Testimony

Your editorial of June 2, "Helping the Commies" criticises the Senate Judiciary Committee for what you call a "slapdash performance on a matter of outstanding significance to our institutions." So, I venture to criticise your "slapdash performance" in this and other editorials about the Mundt-Nixon bill. It is quite apparent to anyone, as well acquainted with that bill and its history as I am, that your editorial writers either fail to inform themselves on this subject, or else deliberately withhold information and misrepresent facts.

For example, in the editorial of June 2 are the following misstatements in regard to legal advice sought or obtained by the committee: "In the present case the Senate committee, amid the noise of a motley throng of witnesses, heard only a couple of members of the local bar. Lawyers of the eminence of John Lord O'Brian, Grenville Clark, Dean Acheson and James F. Byrnes should have been asked to testify."

The facts are, first the committee announced in advance that it had requested testimony from three named lawyers who have at least as much "eminence" as those you name; second, (in addition to the "couple of members of the local bar") the first witness heard by the committee was the writer who, regardless of The Washington Post's standard of "eminence," would be accepted by those whom you name as speaking with some authority on subjects of constitutional law and Federal legislation.

During my extended testimony before the committee (given by request of the committee) I said, in answer to a question from the chairman that certain statements in a Washington Post editorial of that day, May 27 (which condemned the hearings in advance) were "nonsense." Although this was not reported in The Washington Post, I can assume that your editorial writers were not ignorant of it. Or, don't they read the transcript of the hearings they criticize?

For your information, which I hope you will share with your readers, let me add that, in the extensive House hearings that were the source of the Mundt-Nixon bill, testimony was sought and obtained from a large number of outstanding lawyers having various opinions and furnishing a wealth of legal advice.

Also, the Senate committee has obtained from the Library of Congress a detailed analysis of the bill which provides a convincing demonstration of its validity in both major and minor features. And, the committee expects to obtain opinions from the lawyers whose advice it sought prior to the commencement of the hearings.

We are faced with a very difficult and dangerous problem of national defense as to which there is not the slightest doubt in the mind of any competent lawyer that the Congress has legislative powers practically as extensive as those exercised in time of war. There is no "civil right" in any citizen to conspire to overthrow the Government, and to destroy our constitutionally established institutions and our constitutional liberties.

The problem in dealing with the Communist conspiracy is one of statecraft. Lawyers and others will differ as to the best methods, and particularly as to when and how long toleration of evil activities is a virtue of strength and when it becomes a vice of weakness. The question is not primarily: "What can be lawfully enacted?" The question is: "What should be lawfully enacted?"

Unless your editorials writers inform themselves adequately, think objectively and write candidly, they are not qualified to advise their fellow citizens. They will only add to confused thinking. They will only continue to be mischievous misleaders of public opinion.

DONALD R. RICHBERG.
Washington.

Editor's Note: The editorial arose out of the unseemly rush of nonlegal testimony just before the recess of the Senate hearings. Mr. Richberg is, of course, an outstanding constitutional and statutory lawyer, and we regret that we overlooked his testimony when we suggested that the committee would be better employed in listening to authorities on the law. We had overlooked the fact that this already had been decided upon, and on June 4, two days after our editorial appeared, Senator Wiley, the committe chairman, announced that the committee was awaiting opinions from Attorney General Clark, Seth Richardson, Charles Evans Hughes, jr., John W. Davis and Morris Ernst.

U. S. Security Jitters

By Malvina Lindsay

Latent Election Issue

A GROUP was pursuing conversationally that ever-recurrent question: When were the good old days—when was it that people could plan ahead for a fairly safe, dependable world?

A scholarly looking little woman spoke up. Wasn't it true, she asked, that people's usual state had been that of insecurity? Hadn't human beings generally had to live dangerously throughout history?

The speaker was Mrs. Arnold Toynbee—the former Miss V. M. Coulter, who for 23 years has been coeditor with the historian, Professor Toynbee, of the continuing series, A Survey of International Affairs.

However, the American public is not now disposed to accept insecurity as philosophically as Mrs. Toynbee. Never has it had such a yearning for the safe and settled living it feels it once had. Never has it had such a case of security jitters, politically, economically, socially.

The deterioration of the Nation's mental health is one evidence of this. Insecurity over war threats, communism, high prices, housing, racial conflict, is increasng the number of mental patients, say psychiatrists.

PROBABLY the strongest underlying issue in the coming election will be the route to security, both national and personal. Many voters will turn to candidates that they think will lead them to settled familiar living along well-traveled roads. Others will see peace and full dinner pails only at the ends of new trails. Some will turn to leaders who are trying to travel both roads at the same time. All voters will be perplexed and uneasy as a result of world and domestic events that have shattered their dreams of the life-as-usual they expected the postwar world to bring them.

Security of course is an issue in every election. But it is particularly so this year since people of the United States sense they are facing the unknown as never before. Duncan Aikman in his recently published The Turning Stream, an anaysis of life in the United States during the last half century, calls the present period the "vortex of change." With the discovery of atomic power, he points out, the changes in American life that have been under way since the founding of the Republic, and especially during this century, "threaten to smite us with total impact."

He sees the Nation as now coming to the "Great Bend" in the river of its history, and facing sweeping adaptations as it encounters "new rapids and waterfalls not on the chart."

One part of the change that has come to the people of this country, Mr. Aikman believes, is the loss of their traditional economic security. So long as the land frontier lasted, he says, it was "factually and psychologically the USA people's chief security stabilizer." A man who had lost his job, failed in business, been unlucky in love, could always "go West." Everyone had at least the secure feeling that if things went wrong, there was an out—the "Promised Land" of the popular hymn of pioneer days.

BUT THAT ended. Later the industrial frontier also began to close because of technological disemployment. The prolonged depression of the 1930s, which Mr. Aikman maintains was conquered only by the rearmament program of 1941, was a tremendous psychic shock to people of this country and brought further disillusionment about security. The decline of traditional religion, which had supplied authoritative answers and a concrete heaven and hell, dealt personal security a blow. The physical security of isolationism from "foreign" wars and other evils, once guaranteed by the oceans, vanished. Then the American democratic system, believed so impregnable and even God-ordained, faced a world challenger in the adolescent giant of Soviet totalitarianism.

This impact of the cumulative forces of change and the insecurity of the unknown has been especially hard for this country to take, Mr. Aikman believes, because its growth and career from the close of the Revolutionary War to the depression of the 1930's has been the great success story of all time among nations. The United States had become, he says, the "Spoiled Giant."

This theory may account largely for the present jitters over security. It may help explain why fear has become so rampant over war, possessions, beliefs. Possibly the cure lies more with religion and the social sciences—or even with business, than with politics. Yet the way in which party platforms are written, and the election campaign conducted, will show whether political leaders are going to cater to the electorate's fears or try to dispel them by positive programs to build new bulwarks of security.

Baseball Sportsmanship

The other day while listening to the ball game, I heard the crowd boo Feller who had just pitched nine scoreless innings. If this is sportsmanship, then I have long lived under a misconception.

To be a hometown fan is certainly commendable, but why don't Washington fans learn to give credit for ability and quit being childish? I'll take any pitcher on either team who can go to bat in the tenth inning with no score in the game.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The British-American Partnership

NOW THAT the new British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, has had a chance to unpack his bags and shake hands, there is a revival of confidence that British-American relations, which have been going from bad to worse, can be repaired.

LIPPMANN

Nothing in the whole field of international relations is so important. Unless it can be done, nothing else that the two governments have promised to do for freedom, recovery and peace, can be done. The United Nations will collapse, and if it does, then almost certainly the American people in their disillusionment will for a longe time to come be in no mood for international collaboration. The European Recovery Program will fail and will be abandoned. Europe will become hopelessly disunited. And anarchy will spread from the Middle East into Africa and Asia.

Working in partnership there is a chance that things can be put in order; with the English-speaking nations separated and opposed, there is no chance.

IT IS the fashion to say that British-American relations have been disrupted by the disputes over Palestine. To any one who has had long and intimate knowledge of British-American affairs, and has observed closely the course of events before, during, and since the war, that will seem a most superficial explanation. For the degrading quarrel about Palestine is not the cause but it is the ugly consequence of a breakdown of intercourse and communication between the two governments and the two nations.

This breakdown began with the death of Roosevelt and the defeat of Churchill. It was accelerated by the departure from Washington of Lord Halifax, Lord Brand, and indeed of almost all the men, including the key figures among the Americans, who had made the wartime partnership work. Mr. Bevin and Mr. Byrnes, Mr. Bevin and Mr. Marshall, have been quite incapable of dealing with each other except at arm's length, quite incapable of becoming articulate on the great questions which have to do with the sudden rise of America to world power and the no less sudden but epoch-making change in the condition of the Commonwealth and the position of the Empire.

Neither the heads of the governments nor their foreign ministers have had genuine and intimate consultation, and there has been lacking almost altogether the informal but nevertheless influential intercourse among officials, editors, journalists, and leaders of opinion which, beginning when Lord Lothian was Ambassador, did so much to create the partnership.

In the past year this intercourse has been reduced to a kind of press agentry. But the two countries have long since outgrown that sort of thing, that is to say the mimeographed handout, the official formula, the polite brush-off, the excrutiatingly funny anecdote, and won't you have a drink. If there is misunderstanding now about Palestine, about the Brussels pact, about the ERP, about the sterling area, about commercial policy, about the United Nations, about the reorganization of Europe, it is because the channels of understanding have been badly clogged.

THEY WILL have to be reopened, and one may hope that with Mr. Douglas, Mr. Harriman, and Mr. Finletter abroad, Sir Oliver Franks here in Washington, a beginning can be made. The difficulties are considerable on both sides of the ocean. For here, at the end of the Truman Administration, there is no longer coherence in the conduct of affairs; in Britain, so at least it appears to Americans at this distance, the Labor government is so self-centered on its domestic difficulties and intentions that the great problems of the outer world seem to receive little attention from the best minds of the government, and to be farmed out to weary bureaucrats and archaic survivors from a different historical epoch.

Nevertheless, there is so great a community of interest and sympathy between the two peoples that in one way or another, they will manage to restore communication and resume their partnership. It is, for example, preposterous to suppose that they cannot make peace in Palestine when, of the two main parties at interest, Israel is dependent upon the United States and Trans-Jordan upon Britain. Only stub-born stupidity in London and Washington can make that problem insoluble; among the really difficult problems of the world, it is one of the simplest and most manageable.

FAR FROM dividing Britain and America, the Palestinian problem is an opportunity, which can be seized and used, to unite them on the strong foundation of their vital interests. For peace and a treaty of alliance between Israel and Trans-Jordan, under the joint protection of Britain and America, and under the aegis of the United Nations, is attainable if the two governments are resolutely determined to attain it. No one can veto it. No one can effectively obstruct it. Only by carrying it through can the authority of the United Nations be vindicated.

It will provide what Britain and America now lack, what they can obtain in no other way, a secure position of power and influence, with local popular support, in the eastern Mediterranean and in the Middle East. The British position cannot be restored in Egypt, and therefore the British position at Suez cannot be protected except from Israel and Trans-Jordan. Nor can the approaches to Iraq, which is of vital importance because of its oil, be made secure if the eastern shore of the Mediterranan from Haifa to Gaza, from Dan to Beersheba, is not in safe and friendly hands.

Washington Calling

Legislative Irresponsibility

TRADITIONALLY, the wind-up of Congress has become a kind of Witches' Sabbath. Anything can happen, and it usually does, in the last-minute rush for an adjournment deadline.

Childs

This time the legislative jam promises to be more chaotic than ever. It is not a happy example of the American democratic process to put up in the show window which Washington is today. In sober truth it must be said that it is a shocking illustration of failure.

Conscientious Republicans are deeply disturbed and not merely for the reputation of their party. They talk seriously about the break-down of representative government and the effect on the country of a pageant of confusion in Washington in a time of world crisis.

In the Senate many Republicans put the blame on Senator Robert A. Taft, who has been the real boss since the GOP took over in January, 1947. They say that he was out campaigning for the Presidency when he should have been in the Senate steering important legislation through Congress.

ONE REPUBLICAN Senator, and not by any means a conspicuous maverick, speaking bitterly on this score, pointed out that the Senate might have acted three months ago on a farm bill. But the Senate did not act.

A farm bill was reported out unanimously after careful study by the Senate Agriculture Committee. It is a far-reaching measure providing for a flexible system of price support with a revised parity formula and reorganization of the soil conservation system. This important bill is now caught in the legislative jam along with housing, the draft bill, aid to education, atomic energy, displaced persons, the reciprocal trade treaties and a number of other vital issues including appropriations for Government departments.

Certain of these measures may get through at the last minute. But there is always the danger that hamering or nullifying amendments will be attached and no one could argue that the catch-as-catch-can method is a good way to pass major legislation.

On their side of the aisle, the Democrats are demoralized, their ranks shot through with defeatism and pessimism. They are so little aware of responsibility that they were not on hand in sufficient numbers to force a roll-call vote when the Taber faction in the House succeeded in chopping two billion dollars out of the foreign relief program.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN in his political campaign tour is making foolish gibes about "riding" Congress with a pair of spurs that someone presented to him. One reason for the sad ending of the Eightieth Congress is that President Truman failed to work with the leaders of his party in the Senate and House.

Weeks and months would go by when he did not see them. Often they learned of impending decisions from the Republicans. Indifference to the President and his fate in some instances became almost hostility.

Among the divided and disorganized Democrats are many who are keenly aware of Republican sins of omission or commission. These sins, both on the negative and the positive side, are so glaring that a minimum of political shrewdness would be necessary to exploit them. But only rarely does the opposition in Congress avail itself of their innumerable possibilities.

This condition is calculated to give the people of the country all the bad breaks. It is made to order for those who have their own private axes to grind. The sound of the grinding has been loud all through this confused session.

It is shriller now as the special interests press in in hopes of a last-minute kill. Thus the grazing interests in the West have tossed in a bill that would open the public lands to disastrous exploitation by greatly increased herds.

In many ways the most serious sign of irresponsibility and demoralization is the action of the House in slashing the foreign-relief appropriation. This act made it clear that the leaders of the House—Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck, Representative Clarence J. Brown of Ohio—have not really accepted the necessity for American responsibility and American leadership in a world threatened with a Communist "wave of the future."

What this does, from the immediate and practical point of view, is to add one more explosive element to the perilous log jam that somehow will be broken before June 19. In the breaking of that jam a great deal can be lost.

Pressman, a 3d-Party Candidate for House

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—Lee Pressman, former national CIO counsel, announced today that he will run for Congress on the Third Party ticket, opposing Rpresentative Abram Multer, the Democratic incumbent, in Brooklyn's Fourteeth Congressional District.

Pressman resigned from the national CIO post to support Henry A. Wallace for President.

Text of Vandenberg's Plea For Full Foreign Aid Funds

Text of Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg's plea for restoration of foreign spending cuts, made before the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday:

Mr. Chairman:

I AM grateful to you for the courtesy of this brief hearing regarding the ECA appropriation bill as it comes to you from the House. I have sought the opportunity only because of my deep conviction that you confront decisions which transcend fiscal considerations and involve a critical impact upon our prestige, our peace, and the peace and freedom of the world.

I hasten to make it plain that I do not and would not presume to intrude upon your functions to pass upon the propriety of appropriations to implement the declared policies of Congress. I come only to plead that you do not make indirect use of the appropriations function to veto these declared policies of Congress, and thus to brand these policies before the world as capricious, unreliable and impotent. We cannot build leadership for peace upon any such shifting sands.

When ECA was on the Senate floor I expressly invited your subsequent scrutiny of its detailed appropriations. I do so again. It is your responsibility. I would not presume to interfere. I am not here to speak of detailed figures or of specific estimates. These problems will legitimately arise when you have reported. I am here solely to plead for your basic allegiance to the declared policies of Congress when you deal with the ECA bill as it comes to you from the House.

I do so with greatest respect for the House. But I am sure my friends in the House—as well as in the Senate—would lack comparable respect for me if I did not promptly assert my anxious disagreement with what I believe to be a dangerous and improvident decision.

MR. CHAIRMAN, it is necessary to remember that both the Senate and the House approved ECA by overwhelming majorities. Thus they sanctioned the most ambitious enterprise for recovery and peace, on a basis of self-help and mutual cooperation, which was ever launched. They gave it immediate life with an advance of one billion dollars from the RFC. They put it immediately to work. This sounded as though we meant "business." I think we did.

So did western Europe. These countries proceeded to seek unprecedented unities in response to our self-help specifications. They accepted our good faith and proceeded to prove their own. They did it at the hazard of serious reprisals when communism declared bitter war upon the enterprise. More progress toward unification has been made in a few months than in centuries preceding. This is progress for peace and freedom—for us as well as them. It is the greatest possible insurance against the war we do not want. It is the greatest possible insurance against our need to use the increased armaments for which we concurrently vote other precautionary billions.

I do not mean to reargue the basic point. That point was settled when Congress passed the ECA enabling legislation after the most exhaustive study and debate which any subject has received in my time.

But I do mean to argue, Mr. Chairman, that the practical effect of the House bill is to repeal, by indirection, the intent and purpose of this legislation and to reverse this established American foreign policy both at home and abroad.

I do mean to argue that this Congress, as a matter of intelligent self-interest, cannot afford to throw our attitudes into doubt and thus to multiply the terrified confusion of a world in which the forces of aggression and subversion thrive upon confusion. We must not feed the very fires we would put out.

I do mean to argue that any such cynical reversal would be a major policy decision which should not be made through the back door of an appropriation bill. Indeed, it should not be made at all.

AGAIN with great respect, I take note of some of the revealing speeches on this issue in the other House. Here is one approach:

"It is a source of satisfaction to those of us who opposed this legislation to find that the Appropriations Committee has made a real effort to go at this job in an intelligent fashion."

No comment is necessary to underscore my point. I can understand the "satisfaction" of those who "opposed this legislation" if it still be their preoccupation to win the last battle after losing the first. But that is precisely why I am here today. I do not believe America can afford to be unreliable in a world which is groping for confidence and faith as the basis of security and peace.

The action of the House cuts ECA in sums variously estimated from a half billion to two billion dollars. The latter figure is probably closer to the net effect. I could understand specific amendments based upon specific reasons—even though, up examination, I may disagree with them—provided the amendments are not incompatible with the purposes of the original act. I would be the last to say that the figures are untouchable.

But I do quarrel, Mr. Chairman, with any reductions which subvert the principles and purposes of the original congressional commitment. I emphatically quarrel with the final, over-all, meat-ax technique which arbitrarily spreads the net appropriation over fifteen instead of twelve months, which is equivalent to a horizontal cut of 20 per cent and which, in my humble opinion, guts the enterprise.

In one fell swoop this takes away something like a billion dollars without a scintilla of regard for all of the carefully screened figures upon which all ECA estimates were made and upon which its program must be built.

THE House Committee report itself said: "It is admittedly impossible for anyone to state with any degree of assurance the actual needs of the participating countries within a billion dollars." Whereupon, without "any degree of assurance" more than a billion was cut away from what, admittedly, may be the needs of ECA if it is to succeed.

I respectfully submit, Mr. Chairman, that, for our own sakes, we dare not deal with this vital problem in the life of the world, including us, in any such cavalier fashion. There is too much at stake.

I respectfully submit that any such action is calculated to change the character of ECA from "recovery" to "relief" alone—thus plunging us back into the dreary, hopeless, sterile and utterly costly routines from which we must escape.

I respectfully submit that any such action reverses the overwhelming intent of Congress registered two short months ago; and nullifies the Senate's own action in refusing, on a roll call vote, to hack off a comparable arbitrary billion from the original authority.

I respectfully submit that it violates the rules of scrupulous justification for ECA expenditures which Congress wisely enjoined upon ECA participating countries themselves, and that it seriously jeopardizes the success of a great peace adventure which deserves its full chance to succeed if it is to be undertaken at all.

Most desperately important of all, Mr. Chairman, it "keeps the world of promise to the ear but breaks it to the hope." I respectfully submit that it inevitably undermines that confidence and morale abroad upon which recovery, independent freedoms and peace so heavily lean; and that it serves the alien critics who plot to have these peace plans fail. Such reactions can be as grim for us as for others.

ONE LAST WORD and I shall have finished this unpleasant duty. Those who did not and do not believe in ECA may be right. The majority of us may be wrong. At best it is a calculated risk. But it is a risk to which the Congress is solemnly committed.

I respectfully submit, Mr. Chairman, that this is not the time to attempt a general overhaul of ECA—when it has scarcely started. That time will come next January when we shall know whereof we speak. When the second annual appropriation impends, we shall know what kind of a job Administrator Hoffman and his staff are doing. We shall know to what extent self-help and mutual cooperation are meeting our expectations. We shall know from the vigilance of our "watch dog committee" how goes this battle for peace and freedom in which we have such a colossal stake. Then we can make an intelligent audit. We can act without irresponsibility.

Until then I beg of you—for the sake of the hopes by which free men live—that you give ECA a fair chance. Its mere creation already has paid heavy dividends. I ask it for what I profundly believe to be the national interest of our own United States.

334 Postmasters Out of 414 Approved by Senate Group

By The Associated Press

The Senate Postoffice Committee approved yesterday President Truman's nominations of 334 postmasters.

No protest had been made against any of them. The nominations now go to the Senate for confirmation or rejection.

A total of 414 nominations, against which no protests had been made, were presented to the committee for action yesterday. Consideration of those for California, Maryland, Illinois and North Carolina was passed over by Chairman Langer (R., N. Dak.) who said he wants "to look further into them."

Langer promised to bring non-protested nominations for those four States up at today's committee meeting.

Yesterday's action still leaves the committee with 697 postmaster nominations upon which it has not acted. Previously this year, the committee had approved only 85 nominations, 83 of which have been confirmed by the Senate.

Some Democratic Senators have accused the committee of "playing politics" on postmaster nominations. They contend Republicans have held them up in the hope a GOP presidential victory in November would enable them to control the appointments.

Practically all of the nominations approved today were for small towns having third-class postoffices.

St. Elizabeths Bill Cleared

A House-approved bill to permit voluntary admissions to St. Elizabeths Hospital was cleared for Senate action yesterday by its Labor and Public Welfare committee. The committee approved the House version of the bill without change, placing it in line for probable speedy passage.

Inflation Trends Disturb Snyder

Smell Not Enough

Agency Bars Garlic Pills Minus Herb

It's against the law to tell people your product contains garlic unless it contains garlic, the Federal Trade Commission ruled yesterday —as if anybody could be fooled.

FTC ordered the Excelsior Laboratory of New York to quit advertising a medical preparation as Gosewich's Garlic Tablets. The reason, the order said, was that "the amount of garlic oil and garlic plant tissues in the tablets was so small that it was with difficulty that the experts were able to identify the ingredients at all."

The order further forbids Excelsior Laboratory and its former officers, Dorothy Flatter, trading as Dorothy Gosewich, and Otto R. Flatter, from representing "that the product possesses any therapeutic value in the treatment of high blood pressure.

The commission found, it said, "that garlic has no therapeutic value in the treatment of hypertension or its symptoms."

Two commissioners, Garland S. Ferguson and Lowell B. Mason, found fault with the latter part of the ruling, but not with the order. Mason argued that if the preparation didn't contain garlic, it wasn't necessary to rule that garlic has no therapeutic value.

Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder said yesterday the Nation "must be constantly concerned" over new inflationary trends.

He told a news conference that consumer credit, the money people owe on new automobiles, radios, etc., is four billion dollars above the prewar peak.

He said the high national income and the volume of current business were other warnings against inflation.

Installment Credit Warning

Snyder emphasized that installment credit, released from Government controls last November, is among his chief worries. It now totals $13,399,000,000 outstanding.

"I think," said Snyder, "that with the size of the national income and the volume of business we are doing, we must be constantly concerned with inflationary trends. It all edds up to increasing inflationary pressures."

The Commerce Department announced meantime that personal income in April increased to an annual rate of $209,100,000,000, up to $1,400,000,000 from the previous month.

The April rate was $12,100,000,000 above the average annual rate of 197 billion dollars for the entire year of 1947.

Most of the April increase was due to higher farm income. Offsetting that in part was a decline in wage and salary payments which were at the lowest level since last November.

The wage and salary declines centered in manufacturing, where material shortages and labor-management disputes resulted in less hours worked and fewer persons on the payrolls. Retail trade payrolls also declined in April after seasonal adjustment.

Treasury Revising 'Short Form' Income Tax Return

By the United Press

The "simplified" withholding tax form which millions of wage earners have been using to file their Federal income tax returns will be abolished after this year. It's too confusing, according to the Treasury.

The form, known the "W-2," is the withholding tax receipt which employers now give their workers at the end of each year. It lists the amount of salary each worker received and how much tax has been withheld.

By answering a few simple questions on the form, workers earning less than $5000 a year have been able to send it in to the Treasury as a tax return, leaving it up to the Treasury to figure whether they paid the right tax.

But the Treasury said today that four years of experimenting with W-2 have shown that it has "caused much confusion." Most of this arose, it explained, from the fact that so many wage earners worked for more than one employer and had difficulty deciding how to fill out the forms.

Instead of W-2, the so-called "short form" income tax blank 1040-A will be revised and simplified to incorporate the present good features of W-12 and eliminate its defects, the Treasury said.

It will be available beginning next year for withholding taxpayers to use. W-2 will be continued merely as a receipt from the employer for wages withheld.

Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder said "every effort will be made" to simplify the language and minimize the number of questions that taxpayers will have to answer in the new "short form."

He said the new system should make things easier for both taxpayer and Treasury alike.

Cain to Seek Early Action On Sales Tax

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said yesterday he plans to ask Senate action on the House-approved District sales tax bill at the first chance.

Cain, chairman of the Senate subcommittee in charge of the bill, said the bill might be brought up Friday or early next week.

Plans call for making minor revisions in the House measure and for final adjustment of the date the sales tax is to become effective. Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), House handler of the bill, agreed to sponsor it with the understanding the sales tax would take effect in the coming fiscal year only if needed to cover the District budget rise that would result from a general pay increase.

Otherwise, said Bates, the sales tax would take effect July 1, 1949.

The bill calls for a 2 per cent general retail sales tax exempting food, medicine, and some other items, plus revision of the District personal income tax so that it would exempt income below $8000 a year.

Columbia Levee Breaks; Toll at 31

Portland, Oreg., June 9 (AP).—The Pacific Northwest's death toll climbed to 31 today as flood waters of the Columbia and Fraser Rivers continued to pound at sodden dikes.

The lower Columbia broke through a levee on Puget Island below Portland last night, flooding 2670 acres. The Corps of Engineers told residents behind another dike to get out; the outlook was all but hopeless for holding the barrier protecting the island's remaining 650 acres of rich farmland.

Elsewhere along the lower river all dikes were in "critical" condition but seepage was under control, the engineers reported. The river is expected to begin to subside about Sunday, Elmer Fisher, river forecaster, said. The Columbia has 15 feet to fall before it gets back within its banks.

When it does, the debris of Vanport is expected to yield its dead.

The Red Cross tonight listed 120 Vanport men, women and children for whom there is "deep concern."

Four bodies have been recovered at Vanport and a total of 335 persons are listed as unaccounted for. The Red Cross explained the "urgent inquiry" list of 120 was made up of persons who could not be located by members of their families and relatives.

The latest death was that of Kenneth Parchen, 10, who drowned in a backwater at Richland, Wash., where the Columbia was still rising.

In northeastern Washington the town of Cusick remains under 8 feet of water from the Pend Oreille River, a Columbia tributary.

British Columbia's Fraser River offered a new crisis in the swirl of a spring tide meeting the raging stream. Five hundred troops were flown in from Calgary to aid levee workers.

Senate Group Approves TVA Steam Plant

By The Associated Press.

The Tennessee Valley Authority's controversial steam-electric plant yesterday won the approval of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee.

The group accepted an amendment backed by Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) to the Government corporations appropriations bill to give the agency four million dollars to start building the 54 million-dollar plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

McKellar Hails Victory

It was omitted when the House passed the bill last month.

The measure now goes to the full committee. Its acceptance there will mean it will go to the Senate floor. Senate adoption would send it to a Senate-House Conference Committee to iron out differences before a final determination is made.

"It's a great victory for friends of TVA," said McKellar.

Representative Gore (D., Tenn.), who fought vainly for the project in the House, called the subcommittee's decision "good."

Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) said the subcommittee rejected TVA's requests for additional funds for chemical plants, construction of a garage at Chattanooga and administrative expenses.

It also declined to interfere with the House-written requirement that the agency pay $5,500,000 into the Treasury.

The agency chairman, Gordon R. Clapp, asked that the amortization payment be held to $2,560,000.

He also asked for $3,000,000 for the chemical plant, an amount that would have been $663,000 over the House recommendation but $551,000 below the estimate approved by the Budget Bureau.

He sought $328,700 for the Chattanooga project and an additional $289,000 for general expenses.

The subcommittee action, if sustained all along the line, would give the agency a total apropriation for the year starting July 1 of $30,972,061.

$4,000,000 Increase for Plant

This reflects an increase of four million dolars for the steam plant and a decrease of $417,000 in general expenses as compared with the House recommendation.

Ferguson explained that TVA found that its unexpended balance for 1948 would amount to $917,000 instead of $500,000, as estimated a year ago.

The chairman declined to report the result of the subcommittee action on other phases of the Government corporation appropriations bill.

This is the measure by which 25 Government agencies are financed. He indicated other changes had been made from the House figure of $37,979,061.

Man Confesses N. Y. Slaying

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—A flashily-dressed man who told police an Army court-martial had convicted him of slaying a French girl while he served overseas confessed today he was the "ape man" who killed a refugee seamstress here last week.

He was exposed by his own father.

Police said Theodore Samuels, 26, also confessed 12 purse snatchings, including five muggings, in the past six weeks.

Last Wednesday, Mrs. Frieda Frank, 48-year-old German widow, was beaten, robbed and left dying in front of her apartment.

Last night Samuel's father walked up to a patrolman and said "I'd like you to come and look at my son. He's been drinking and acting nervously. We've been scared of him ever since he killed that girl in France."

The youngser Samuels told the patrolman that he had killed Mrs. Frank. Her pocketbook, and 12 others were found in his room.

Capital Bank Stock Boost Authorized

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of the National Capital Bank have authorized an increase in capital stock to $400,000 from $300,000 President George A. Didden reported yesterday afternoon.

As a result, he said, an additional 10,000 shares of $10 par stock will be sold at $10 a share. The last sale in National Capital Bank stock on the Washington Stock Exchange was at $35 a share. Present stockholders will be given "rights" to buy the additional shares on the basis of one new for each three old shares now held. It is anticipated that there will be few or no shares left for public sale.

A market has been established for the "rights" at $6.66 each. The warrants, to be mailed today, will expire at noon June 30.

The increase in capital, Didden explained, was made necessary by the rapid growth of the bank.

Contract Let For Delaware Bridge Work

Merritt, Chapman & Scott, Inc., yesterday was awarded a $11,400,000 contract to erect the tower piers and anchorage foundations for the four-lane Delaware River Memorial Bridge south of Wilmington.

The Delaware State Highway Commission also accepted the offer of a banking syndicate headed by Alex. Brown & Sons, to sell 40 million dollars of 4 per cent revenue bonds, which will finance construction of this span. The banking group also includes Kidder, Peabody & Co., Harriman Ripley & Co., and Lehman Bros. The bonds will be dated June 1, 1948, and mature June 1, 1978.

The Dravo Corp. had originally been awarded the construction contract but withdrew when it experienced difficulty in obtaining steel.

The New Ford . . .

ANOTHER ONE TO WATCH GO BY—THE CUSTOM CLUB COUPE

Dealers, Press Get Preview Of 1949 Fords

The 1949-model Ford automobiles were previewed in Washington yesterday at a reception given dealers and the press in the Shoreham Hotel.

The Ford has a balanced body with the hood slightly larger than the luggage compartment, giving it a tendency to have that "going either way" look. Lowered height imparts a streamlined and stable silhouette with the enlarged window glass area giving fullness. There is a noticeable absence of large areas of chrome trimming, and the blunt radiator grille is essentially three horizontal bars with the sturdy bumper forming the base.

Some sharp differences from old models show up in interior styling and mechanical improvements. Seats are up to eight inches wider, air conditioning is provided, the dashboard has a new design borrowed from the aircraft people, and upholstering is in a vivid choice of colors.

Springs Completely Changed

Springing is completely changed. Front springs are coiled with interior shock absorbers replacing the front axle and transverse leaf. Rear springs are longitudinal leaf instead of the old transverse leaf.

Other refinements in varying degree run through brakes, ignition, oil filtering, drive shaft, gasoline economy, cooling system and elsewhere.

The 100 horsepower 8-cylinder and the 95 horsepower 6-cylinder engines are not radically altered. An optional innovation is the overdrive which Ford says saves up to 25 per cent in gasoline at road speeds.

The new car will go on sale June 19. Approximately 1000 units are now under wraps at saleshouses in this area.

Some persons high on the priority lists will get delivery on that date. But the backlog locally runs more than 18 months.

At that, it is better than in Baltimore where there are orders for the next two years.

How abundant the new Fords will be, company representatives could not say, other than that barring strikes or shortages production will be the highest for any postwar year.

Henry Ford, 2d, said in New York production this year will be 1,150,000 units. But, he added, there are now 1,300,000 orders on hand.

List prices have been boosted an average of 8.7 per cent. In Washington, buyers probably will pay the following prices for a custom-line Ford:

	Six cylinder	Eight cylinder
Tudor	$1547	$1626
Fourdoor	$1615	$1689
Club Coupe	$1568	$1653
Convertible	$1909	$1989
Station wagon	$2142	$2221

Cars not in the custom-line will run $115 less.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Moving ahead rapidly in closing minutes on the Board of Trade, grains today closed with advances extending to nearly 3 cents in July corn. Although that contract set the pace for the upturn, other sections of the market also were firm.

The strength of July corn came mainly from short-covering. Traders who were short in this delivery were worried by the high premiums paid for cash corn over the July future as well as prospects of less corn coming to market as the time of closing out July contracts approaches.

New crop corn deliveries moved ahead, mainly aided by the action of July. Oats, after showing easiness early, rallied with the yellow cereal toward the close. Wheat was steady all day, aided by Government flour buying and a pick-up in domestic flour business.

One on the Aisle—

People Snicker Even at Snakes

By Richard L. Coe

THE SNAKE HOUSE always has been a sock attraction at the zoo. No doubt this fascination struck Lillian Hellman somewhere along the line when she conceived her celebrated Hubbard family.

Their excursions into evil made "The Little Foxes" an engrossing play, a just-as-good movie. Just to be different, Miss Hellman followed this up with a drama that told of the Hubbards 20 years earlier, "Another Part of the Forest." Now the film version has arrived at Keith's, a fascinating study of evil people, with Fredric March giving a fine, forceful performance of the man who begot Regina, Dan and Oscar.

Because most films are based on the proposition that 90 per cent of the population is good, unselfish and respectful of its parents, a picture with only a few sympathetic characters—and each of them weak or demented—is likely to strike the average filmgoer in a peculiar manner. Like the tragedy of "Tobacco Road," the evil of the Hubbards brought forth titters from yesterday's first house at Keith's.

But the story of the younger Hubbards and how they outfox their foxy father is bitter, sardonic stuff. How, by incidental scraps of information, Ben discovers his father's treachery during the latter days of the Civil War, 15 years before, leads to the trick by which Ben takes over his father's role as head of the family.

And so, watching these people is like being mesmerized by a collection of snakes. Miss Hellman is a playwright of brilliant perception, for, given the circumstances, people can behave as wretchedly as do the Hubbards, whether you like to think so or not. But the screen also has a tendency to magnify things, and in the screenplay and the acting of "Another Part of the Forest," you will feel stifled, perhaps, by the unsubtle hatred of the Hubbards for one another.

March Portrait Is Tops

In her original play, Miss Hellman and her actors gave the impression of being more subtle, more insinuatingly evil than does Universal's adaptation. This, while it is a reasonably faithful transcription of the play by Vladimir Pozner, lies purely in the size of screen figures, in the general magnifying of incidental matters and in the habitual care of the film makers to be certain no one misses any points. It is unfortunate that this is true, perhaps even a national characteristic; a little restraint, more underplaying, would have made a finer study of evil.

The one plot instance in which the film differs from the play as it was performed during its Baltimore tryout is a real improvement; some business with incriminating papers is left out and the plot is tighter as a result.

March's Marcus Hubbard is a hard, forceful portrait, a revealing aspect in the career of an actor who has rightly insisted on versatility in his roles. Of how many "actors" can one say this? Mrs. March, Florence Eldridge, is thoroughly able as the weak-minded mother of his three furies. Of these, Edmond O'Brien is unquestionably the best, a restrained, granite-like delineation of Ben. Dan Duryea and Ann Blyth complete the unholy trio, but theirs is surface playing of juicy roles.

"ANOTHER PART OF THE FOREST." Universal-International release produced by Jerry Bresler. Screen play by Vladimir Pozner from the play by Lillian Hellman. Photography by Hal Mohr. Music by Daniele Amfitheatrof. Directed by Michael Gordon. At Keith's.

ACTIVE ACTRESS: Mady Christians, now starring on the Olney stage in "Papa Is All," will also soon be seen by Washington filmgoers in two new pictures, "Letter From an Unknown Woman," coming to the Warner next week, and "All My Sons," bound for the Palace after "Arch of Triumph." This is Mady as she really is

Olney a Fine Comedy Has, With Mady

WITH Mady Christians giving a winning performance as the Pennsylvania Dutch Mama, Patterson Green's comedy, "Papa Is All," is light, delightful and amusing summer fare out at Olney.

This is the play in which you find people saying things like: "I was so surprised you could have knocked me with a shovel over," and "It was sure dumb of me whatever." A hint of the plot comes in some of Mama's exchanges after it's thought that "Papa Is All"—"all" meaning dead in an auto's meeting with an express train.

"Didn't it," she asks, "give whatever of papa?" And a little later comes Mama's most amusing line of all, her answer to "Papa isn't dead."

What the line is, you should hear for yourself, for the accomplished Miss Christians is making the most of it. Hers is an able, schooled technique, mixing humor with pathos to build a character of real charm and sympathy. It is something of a triumph for the Olney to have given us, in two successive weeks, such top-flight performers as Helen Hayes and Miss Christians, a level which will not be easy to sustain.

The Pennsylvania Dutch Kitchen is a neat creation of S. Syrjala and the comedy itself is that rare, refreshing thing, a true folk comedy. Miss Christians and her winning characterization are well worth the drive to Olney. R. L. C.

Taking Pictures

World's Top Camera Club Meets by Television

By Ollie Atkins

THE world's largest camera club, boasting over 2000 members, meets weekly by means of television on Bob Loew's "Photographic Horizon" show originating in New York.

Television is a natural medium for camera group sessions, for not only can you see and hear guest speakers, but pictures themselves can be easily transmitted.

With the cooperative of Joe Costa, president of the National Press Photographers Association, the show is slanted for amateur photography fans. It comes over the DuMont system out of Station WABD in New York. At present the show is not carried on the Washington DuMont outlet.

Nationally known photographers who have shown their pictures and expressed their views on photography include such as Edward Steichen, Victor Keppler, John Doscher, Tony Frissell, Philippe Halsman.

With your own camera you can make pictures right off the television tube. Your exposure on fast pan film will be one half second at F/4.5. Don't expect them to be perfectly sharp though, for tube reception is a little fuzzy at best. Watch for a time when the subjects involved are not in motion, for a full half second is a long time and any movement by the subjects will ruin your picture.

I have heard it is possible to take movies right off the television tube. Your basic exposure to be perfect would be 25 frames a second at F/1.5. If your equipment will not do this try the nearest exposure some time when you have a few feet at the end of a reel and see what it looks like.

BILL BURFORD of Ford Photo Supply demonstrated this week a revolutionary new cut film magazine which accommodates up to 36 films and will fit any camera-back of the Graphic or view type. Manufactured by Ford Photo in 4 x 5 and 5 x 7 sizes, the magazine is roughly the size of three regular film holders and close to the same weight. No septums are needed to load the films. Just stack up to 36 sheets in one compartment, close the slide and it is ready to use. It slips on and off the camera as easily as a regular holder, and exposed films can be removed for development at any time and even faster than you could take them out of the original film box.

Burt Foster of Associated Press Photos has been named editor of the White House News Photographers Association publication, Press.

An exhibition of photographs by Dr. John P. Benus of Philadelphia is showing at the United States National Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Jefferson dr. and Ninth st.

Regular color session of the National Photographic Society will be in the National Museum on June 16 at 8 p. m.

To provide awards for the "Best Picture of My Life" contest, the National Press Photographers Association kicked in $850 out of its treasury. The contest, to pick the best picture made by the country's newsmen, will be in Atlantic City June 17-18. Walter Edwards of the National Geographic Magazine is one of the judges. Selections have already been made but will not be announced prior to the Atlantic City event.

Two new multipurpose flood-lamp reflectors which may be adjusted to provide flood or semi-spot lighting or any type in between have been announced by the Eastman Kodak Co.

Known as the Kodak Vari-Beam Standlight (also made in clamp form), the new lamp features a built-in lamp socket which, when rotated, will change the angle of light. It may be adjusted by a simple turn of the control ring to any point from a wide beam for over-all illumination to a moderately narrow beam for more concentrated lighting and then to a narrow spotlight-type beam for highlights and other special effects.

King's Birthday List Honors Cunningham, Philip, Others

London, June 9 (AP).—Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, until recently high commissioner and commander-in-chief in Palestine, tonight headed a long list of birthday honors awarded by King George VI.

Sir Alan was awarded the highest degree of the Order of St. Michael and St. George—the Grand Cross.

Each year the King bestows honore on the occasion of his formal birthday celebration June 10. His actual birth date is December 14. Those honored will be invested at Buckingham Palace during the third week of July.

The King named his son-in-law, Prince Philip, a personal aide de camp. Buckingham Palace officials said they could not recall any other British king who had chosen his son-in-law as aide.

William Gilliatt, president of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, who is Princess Elizabeth's ginecologist, was made a knight.

Kiwanis Convention Assails Communism, Supports UMT

Los Angeles, June 9 (AP).—Delegates to Kiwanis International's convention today elected new officers and adopted strong resolutions condemning communism and favoring universal military training.

The new president is J. Belmont Mosser, 62-year-old St. Mary's, Pa., industrialist, who succeeds Dr. Charles W. Armstrong, Salisbury, N. C., physician. Two vice presidents were named, Attorney John E. Gorsuch, Denver, Colo., for the United States, and Dan H. Murdoch, Winnipeg, Manitoba, for Canada.

Mosser

The 11,000 delegates by resolution called on "all Kiwanians to do all that is possible to eradicate" communism.

New international trustees elected included Claude B. Hellman, Baltimore, Md.

Addes, Ex-CIO Official, Applies for Jobless Pay

Detroit, June 9 (AP).—George F. Addes, former UAW-CIO secretary-treasurer, has filed for unemployment compensation with the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission, it was disclosed today.

Addes, 37, held the top union post from 1936 until his defeat last November in the right-wing sweep of UAW President Walter P. Reuther.

Addes' salary was $7500 a year as secretary-treasurer. If he qualifies for unemployment benefits he may draw $20 a week for 20 weeks.

Blight Menaces Capital's Elms

Dutch elm disease, the virus blight that can wither trees in a year, has cropped up in Washington and menaces the thousands of fine elms that shade the Capital's streets and parks.

Only six cases have been reported in Washington thus far, but experience in other cities indicates that "hundreds" of others will be hit next year by the highly contagious blight, it was predicted yesterday by George W. Harding, Interior Department horticulturist assigned to the National Capital parks.

The disease, which has virtually eliminated elms in some sections of the New York metropolitan area, would have a drastic effect on the appearance of Washington unless the outbreak is checked. There are 28,000 of them, Harding said, along the streets and in the parks alone, and some fine specimens dominate the city's many parks and squares. Another 14,000 cultivated elms are situated on private property within the city, while some 28,000 grow wild in outlying areas, he said.

Harding has been worried about the Blight's arrival in Washington for nearly a decade and has developed strenuous counter-measures. A three-man crew of spotters under his command is assigned full-time to scouting for the yellowed leaves and crumbling bark that are its first symptom.

The first two verified cases of elm disease around the capital were spotted late last summer in the park near the Lincoln Memorial. Four more have shown up already this year, one near the Jefferson Memorial; two on streets in the area and one in the back yard of a private house.

Light Vote Marks Virginia Local Elections

Virginia cities and towns settled down yesterday with scores of new officials-elect as a result of Tuesday's Statewide municipal elections.

In Richmond, where voters picked the city's first unicameral council under a new charter, eight of the nine candidates of the Richmond Citizens Association, which sponsored the new charter, were swept into office. As the ninth councilman, Richmonders elected Oliver W. Hill, a 41-year-old Negro attorney.

The new nine-member Richmond council will replace the old bicameral, 32-member body.

In other parts of the State, the elections saw:

1. Clintwood voters name women as mayor and to all five council seats in a landslide win over the male candidates.

2. Defeat of Winchester's Mayor, Charles R. Anderson, member of the council for 24 years, by Maj. Miffin B. Clowe, jr.

3. A record vote of 5185 cast at Danville, where Mayor Everett E. Carter was reelected and a labor-indorsed candidate was among four councilmen elected.

4. Election of five newspaper editors and publishers as mayors or councilmen. In Fredericksburg, Josiah P. Rowe, jr., publisher of the Free Lance Star, was elected Mayor. Tappahannock voters elected George C. Clanton, publisher of the Rappahannock Times, as mayor, while Robert Lane Anderson, publisher of the Smyth County News, was reelected mayor of Marion. Councilmanic seats were won by Howard R. Imboden, publisher of the Southwest Times, at Pulaski, and by Asa W. Reese, publisher of the News Journal, at Radford.

Oak Ridge Plant, Union Resume Negotiations

Oak Ridge, Tenn., June 9 (AP). Company and union officials entered their third negotiations session of the day early tonight, an encouraging sign toward settlement of the labor dispute at Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

"Progress is being made," declared Clark E. Center, general superintendent at Oak Ridge for Carbide and Carbon Chemical Corp., which operates all three atomic plants here.

Meanwhile, United States attorneys at Knoxville said no directions have been received from the Justice Department in Washington to go into Federal District Court and have an injunction dissolved.

The Government obtained the 80-day injunction last March 19 under the Taft-Hartley law to prevent either a company lockout or strike at the vital atomic plant.

The time limit expired at midnight Monday, but it is not mandatory that the Government seek immediate dissolution of the injunction.

Armour Gets CAB Liaison Post On State Relations

Merrill Armour has been appointed staff liaison officer for Federal-State Relations for the Civil Aeronautics Board, it was announced yesterday.

Armour

Armour, who is 45 and resides near Vienna, Va., is assistant chief examiner of safety enforcement proceedings of the CAB. Last year he was lent by the United States government to Peru to draft the aeronautical regulations of that country.

The purpose of the new position is to aid in obtaining uniform State regulations. Armour is to work with State aviation officials on enforcement of safety regulations, coordination of accident investigation, and State and Federal regulatory functions.

Rubber Output to End

Frankfurt, June 9 (NYHT).—Military Government authorities, over the vigorous protests of the German Economic Administration, announced today that Bizonia's two synthetic rubber factories at Huels and Leverkusen had been ordered to cease production June 30 and change over to the manufacture of chemical solvents.

Montgomery Junior College Continuation Is Recommended

Continuation of Montgomery Junior College as a permanent part of the Montgomery County school system is recommended in a report to the county board of education by a committee that has been studying the uture of the college.

The report made public by the board declares that the college, which now charges tuition, should in time be made free.

At present, "it may be necessary to continue charging a low tuition fee for these two additional years of education because of the great demand for junior college training and because public funds in sufficient amount are not immediately available," the report declares.

The committee further recommends that the board go on record as favoring "a legislative program leading to a State of Maryland system of junior colleges."

Campus and buildings are needed for the college that it may "best serve the young people of the county through its operation during both the day and evening," the report states. Classes now are held in the afternoon and evening in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

The report points out that the college established in 1946 "to meet an immediate need for college opportunities" when schools were overcrowded by the veterans' program "has not only met that immediate need but it has also demonstrated the presence of an extensive and continuing need."

Members of the committee preparing the report were Thomas W. Pyle, principal of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, chairman; Edgar M. Douglass, assistant superintendent of county schools; H. Stanley Stine, president of the school board; Mrs. Herman Wilson, member of the board; Dr. Jesse P. Bogue, consultant, and Hugh G. Price, dean of the college, secretary.

9 Dairies Sign 2-Year Contract Covering 1500

Officials of Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Local 246 (AFL) and nine dairies in the Washington area yesterday signed a two-year agreement covering some 1500 workers.

The contract, containing a one-year wage reopening proviso, gives about 950 hourly workers a $4 weekly increase. About 60 route foremen will receive $5 more.

However, of the 500 routemen—both wholesale and retail—only about 50 will receive increases, Hubbard revealed. The new agreement provides a $4 boost in the guaranteed weekly minimum for these workers but most already are making more.

House Approves Atomic Agency And V A Funds

By The Associated Press

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a $5,795,048,931 appropriation bill. It finances the Atomic Energy Commission, the Veterans' Administration and several other agencies, and it abolishes the War Assets Administration.

The House followed generally the recommendations of its Appropriations Committee, which had ordered a naggregate cut of $504,370,069 from the amounts President Truman had requested.

These cuts included $48,150,000 in Atomic Energy Commission funds and $354,600,000 in the Veterans' Administration budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The bill prohibits the use of Veterans' Administration funds to finance "hobby" training for veterans under the GI Bill of Rights. The ban is aimed at courses in dancing and pleasure flying.

Vinson, Clark to Address Judicial Conference

Chief Justice Vinson and Attorney General Tom C. Clark will address the opening session of the District Judicial Circuit Conference in the courtroom of the United States Court of Appeals here next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Policemen Got 'Free Drinks' From Gamblers, Woman Says

Police are investigating charges that a gambling and drinking establishment has been operating in the 600 block of L st. ne., and that Ninth Precinct Station police have been seen entering the place for "free drinks."

These allegations have been made by a woman who admits she is a former numbers writer, and states she recently quit working for the L st. spot after a dispute over numbers collections. She is Mrs. Erma Elizabeth Green, 36, of 1109 6th st. ne.

Mrs. Green's story was publicly aired yesterday morning in the Washington edition of the Pittsburgh Courier. Asked for comment on it, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett said the charges first came to his own attention late yesterday "and ar being investigated fully."

Informed Vice Squad

"If it is found that any police were involved in this, they will have to answer for it," said Major Barrett.

Mrs. Green said she told the vice squad last week there were six numbers writers still working out of the place and said she knew two other men who came there to collect the writers' bets.

She also informed the vice squad, she said, that she had often seen a Ninth Precinct scout car in front of the place, and that patrolmen had entered the establishment to get free drinks.

Thorough Probe Promised

Barrett said he had not discussed the matter with Ninth Precinct Capt. Anthony Richitt when he conferred with Richitt earlier.

The public disclosure of the charges, Barrett said, may impede the investigation, but he said a thorough inquiry will be made.

Mrs. Green, who said she stopped writing numbers after a month's work, which netted her about $4.50 a day, told reporters, "I won't do it no more. I bet . . . I'm afraid of all that scuffling with the law."

Senate Group Backs FCC Power Grant

The Senate Commerce Committee yesterday approved a bill giving the Federal Communications Commission specific authority to examine the radio programs of a broadcaster seeking a renewal of his license.

The bill also would clamp a ceiling of 50,000 watts on the power which any standard (Am-amplitude modulation) radio station would be authorized to use.

Chances of congressional action on the measure at this session are considered slim with both Houses seeking early adjournment.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEWARK, N. J., June 9.—It was all polite and respectful at the weighing-in, and you wondered what Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale were secretly thinking of each other, and so, a bit later, you tried to draw them out.

POVICH

Graziano, you could tell, wanted to say something nice about Zale, whose title he took last summer at Chicago. "I'm gonna keep the title," said Rocky, and then he got off the perfect Graziano idiom, complete with double nominative. "That Zale, he ain't no slob," was Rocky's tribute.

Zale wasn't talking much. His handlers hustled him back to his hotel, somewhat annoyed at the city of Newark's insistence that they needed a police bodyguard. "We don't need cops," said Manager Art Winch. "We ain't babies."

Somebody asked Zale if he was ready, and he said, "Sure, I'm ready." That was all he said, but he didn't object to anything that was being said for him by Ray Arcel, another of his handlers.

I'll tell you how Tony feels," said Arcel. "He don't think Graziano has any business being champion. Tony figures a champion ought to know how to box and have some class in there like Tony's got. He don't think he figures to lose to a puncher."

UNCONSCIOUSLY, when they squared off for the photographers alongside the scales, the champion and former champion tipped their mitts, figuratively. The picture was almost the pre-fight story without words. Graziano fixed his eyes on Zale's chin, and his right fist inched perceptibly toward the target.

Zale's eyes were directed at Graziano's midriff and his left hand was held low, seemingly cocked for a punch under the heart, and there you had it—the battle strategy of their previous two fights, unchanged for this one.

It was body puncher Zale's left hand under the heart that started Rocky to the floor in the sixth round of their first bout. And it was Graziano's winging rights to the head that knocked Zale into befuddlement in their Chicago battle before the referee mercifully stopped it.

This time they'll be fighting with New Jersey's 8-ounce gloves instead of the 6-ounce mittens of New York and Chicago, but they tell you that won't make any difference.

"THE HANDLERS will work those two extra ounces back into the wrists of the gloves," says Barney Ross, "and across the knuckles they'll still be fighting with 6-ouncers. The size of the gloves won't make any difference anyway. In the gym, guys get knocked out when they're using 16-ounce gloves."

Zale looked bad in his gymnasium workouts, even his handlers admit. "He always did," said Arcel. "So did a lot of other fighters. Barney Ross was a bum in the gym, and when Mickey Walker was training he never looked like a champion. Zale don't even punch good to the body in the gym, and everybody knows he's a whale of a body puncher.

"Did you ever hear what Billy Soose said when Tony belted him in the stomach to win the title before the war? Soose described Zale's body punching better than any other man. He said, 'When you get hit in the body by Zale it's like somebody sticking you with a red-hot poker and leaving it in there.'

"Graziano is a good puncher, but he don't knock you dead, he stings you hard. Zale pulverizes you."

THE FACTOR in the 11-to-5 odds against Zale is chiefly the 34 years he'll take into the ring in contrast to Graziano's age of 26. Zale had their last fight won at the end of four rounds, before he wilted in the Chicago heat and was a prey of the younger Rocky. With that lesson before him, he surmises he'll have to end it quickly if he is to regain the title.

There was talk in Graziano's camp that he's a better boxer than last year, that he's learned to be a bit fancy, but nobody honestly thinks Rocky will try to step with Zale. He'll go native the first time he gets hit, or even before that, and fight the fight he knows, with emphasis on the right-hand swing.

They'll both take old cuts into the ring, and both camps have asked the Jersey Commission doctors not to stop the fight on account of blood that might be showing. "Blood don't mean anything," said Arcel. "The heart takes care of that. It pumps faster when you're in action. Nature's wonderful that way."

Rocky, Zale Try Again Tonight

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer

Newark, N. J., June 9.—Rain scored a one-day knockout over Middleweight Champ Rocky Graziano and Challenger Tony Zale today postponing their scheduled title fight at Ruppert Stadium until tomorrow night.

Intermittent showers soaked the ball park on the Jersey meadows throughout the day. More of the same was expected to fall during the night but the weather man was semioptimistic about the future. He said it would be partly cloudy tomorrow.

Promoter Andy Niederreiter of the Tournament of Champions, Inc., held off three hours after the weigh-in before he gave up to the elements.

Graziano, a bit heavier than expected at 158½ pounds, was openly disappointed at the delay. The phlegmatic Zale, who scaled 158¾, had little to say. Both fighters returned to New York, going into seclusion until tomorrow afternoon. They will not have to undergo another physical exam or weigh-in unless the scrap is postponed again until Friday.

Odds Remain Same

The delay is not expected to have any appreciable effect on the odds, favoring Graziano at 5 to 11.

There was some speculation that the Rock, a nervous highly emotional warrior from New York's lower east side, might be more upset by the postponement than Zale. He is keyed to a high pitch and is eager to start throwing punches in his first defense of the crown he snatched from Zale last July in Chicago.

The promoters insist the fight is "off the nut" with $277,000 in the till. Niederreiter says he expects the postponement will help, not hurt, the gate.

Guarantees of $120,000 to Graziano, $60,000 to Zale and $30,000 to various charities plus $60,000 promotional expenses boost the costs to $270,000. With the addition of $45,000 radio money and $25,000 from the movies, the $277,000 cash in hand becomes $347,000. Taking the 20 per cent Federal tax and 5 per cent State tax off that gross, the net as of now is about $260,000. That would mean the last day sale will need to be only $10,000 to break even.

Ben Bodne, president of the Tournament of Champions, has reiterated an earlier stand on television. He insisted the show will not be televised because the word of the promoters has been pledged to this decision.

"On this promise thousands of people bought tickets," he said,

PITCHER GETS A LIFT—Victorious Coolidge players hoist Pitcher Benny Duvall to their shoulders after he pitched them to their third straight Interhigh championship yesterday at Griffith Stadium. Coan Belts Inside Homer And Triple

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The St. Louis Browns failed to station any of their outfielders on the Griffith Stadium right field wall last night and the Nats seized upon this defensive oversight to pound out a 5-2 victory.

Gil Coan used the fence as a target for a homer and triple and Early Wynn and Mickey Vernon splashed doubles off the boards to highlight the Griffs' third straight success and their second in a row over St. Louis.

Coan and Wynn were the principal figures of the drama, witnessed by 6779 satisfied customers. Coan accounted for four of the five runs with his triple and inside-the-park home run while Wynn threw a fancy four-hitter to register his sixth pitching success.

Wynn Masterful

Wynn was in fine fettle last night. He didn't permit a hit after the fourth inning and retired 15 of the last 16 Browns to face him in the order they strode up to the plate.

Paul Lehner finally broke the spell, working Wynn for the only walk he issued, after two were away in the ninth. It was a most satisfactory performance for the bronzed right-hander and so was Coan's work at the plate.

Coan planted his first hit, a triple, high against the fence in right to chase in two runs in the third and wipe out a 1-0 Brown lead. In the sixth, Gil struck another blow, this time an inside-the-park home run.

The ball carried all the way to the fence a few feet to the left of the scoreboard and the fleet-footed outfielder beat the throw to the plate with plenty to spare. It was No. 4 for the season for him and No. 8 for the Nats.

Stewart Also Triples

Wynn also started his own victory parade in the third, planting a double against the fence after fouling the first pitch off Starter Clint Fannin over the barrier.

After Eddie Yost had grounded out to make it two away, Al Kozar kept things rolling with an infield single. Coan followed with his two-run, three-base knock. Ed Stewart kept it up by tripling to left center for the third run of the frame.

Sam Dente's double and Yost's wild throw of Bob Dillinger's grounder gave the Browns their first run in the third while Gerry Priddy's double and Al Zarilla's single produced their second and last tally in the fourth.

Fannin Routed in Sixth

Leading only by 3-2, the Nats went to work on Fannin in earnest in the sixth, driving him to shelter. Coan opened it with his home run. Stewart walked and Vernon socked his double against the fence. That was all for Fannin. Al Widmar, another right-hander, relieved and purposely passed Earl Wooten to load the sacks.

Mark Christman popped to Priddy, which didn't help, but Al Evans drove in the second run by forcing Wooten at second. Wynn couldn't double this time, however.

The way he was pitching, however, it was all right. He kept his fast ball zipping over the plate and his darting curve was something the Browns couldn't cope with.

He retired the first seven men to face him and got 15 of the last 16 to wind up his meritorious evening.

IN SHORT—Jake Early's injury, feared to be a fracture at first, turned out to be a bunged up thumb which will keep him out of action for four or five days. To help Al Evans with the catching, Rookie Len Okrie was recalled from Charlotte . . . Pitcher Earl Harrist, obtained from the Chisox for Chico Pieretti, arrived at the stadium in the sixth inning, just in time to see Coan's inside-the-park homer . . . Brownie Third Sacker Bob Dillinger almost put two Nats out of commission single-handedly. He pushed Vernon down on a play at first base in the third inning. In the fifth, Coan dived into the left field boxes trying to run down Dillinger's foul fly. Neither Nat was hurt . . . For the series finale tonight it'll be Mickey Haefner against Fred Sanford.

Lew Worsham Defends Open Crown Today

Los Angeles, June 9 (U.P.).—Defending Champion Lew Worsham and eight former champions are among the world's finest shotmakers who will tee off tomorrow in quest of the National Open Golf Championship over the 7020-yard Riviera Country Club course.

A field of 171 starters will go to the post, but a pair of well-known experts who never before have won the title were favored to come through this year.

One was beltin' Ben Hogan, the mighty mite from Hershey, Pa., who plays the Riviera course as though he knows every blade of grass. The othe -ris slammin' Sammy Snead who, with a brand new putting grip and stance, has been ripping the course apart in practice rounds.

However, they will have their work cut out, because the field probably is the strongest ever to start in the 48-year history of the event. The major foreign threat is Bobby Locke, the South African golden boy, but American threats cover a lot of territory.

Behind Hogan and Snead in the near-favorite's roles are such successful performers as Jimmy Demaret, fresh from winning top money at Albuquerque; Worsham, the 1946 titleholder, Lloyd Mangrum; Jim Ferrier, the Australian who won the 1946 PGA title, and Ellsworth Vines, the former tennis king.

The schedule calls for 18 holes tomorrow and Friday, with the 50 lowest scorers and ties playing the final 36 holes on Saturday.

Snead to Quit Touring Career

Los Angeles, June 9 (U.P.).—Slammin' Sammy Snead, predicting he would win the National Open Golf Championship, said today he would end his career as a touring professional when the United States Open concludes here Saturday.

Snead said in the future he would play in only four major tournaments each year—the Augusta Masters, the PGA, the Open and the Tam O'Shanter. "I'm settling down to my job at White Sulphur Springs," Snead said.

Coolidge Wins Title, Beats Anacostia, 5-1

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Benny Duvall's stellar pitching, hitting and base-running wrapped up Calvin Coolidge's third straight Interhigh baseball championship yesterday, the Colts downing Anacostia, 5-1, at Griffith Stadium.

It was Duvall's last high school game and he apparently saved his best for yesterday. The 5-foot 7-inch southpaw hurler scattered five Anacostia hits, giving up only one unearned run. He was especially stingy in the clutches, striking out 11 and marooning 11 Anacostians on the bases.

In the fourth with his team behind, 1-0, and the bases loaded with two outs, Duvall whaled a three-two pitch for a triple to left center, to put his team in front to stay.

Duvall scored his team's fourth run with a daring bit of base running in the seventh. He reached first on Third Baseman George Reeden's error. Jack Brosnan then grounded to Second Baseman Peewee Morris, whose try for a force play at second hit Duvall on the back of his head.

After a five-minute timeout period, Duvall remained in the game. Mike Mehalic, Coolidge's next batter, laid down a sacrifice bunt. Duvall, noting that Anacostia Catcher Jim Faulkner was out of position, sped around third and continued on home, beating the throw from first with a beautiful hook slide.

Brosnan scored Coolidge's fifth run a few seconds later when Reeden threw wild on Jess Houston's easy bounder.

Anacostia was off to a fast start, scoring its run in the first on a single by Bob Mitchell and Dick Kidwell's two-base error. With unbeaten George Sengstack pitching two-hit ball for the first three innings, Anacostia's chances looked bright.

Giants Beat Cubs, 5-1, After Losing 1st, 8-7

New York, June 9 (AP).—Scoring all their runs in the fifth inning, the New York Giants, behind the five-hit pitching of Clint Hartung, defeated the Chicago Cubs in the second half of a double-header today, 5-1.

Whitey Lockman's double with the bases loaded was the big blow. The Cubs took advantage of five Giant errors to win the opener, 8-7, after trailing, 6-0, at one time.

Bucs Win, 5-1; Kiner Hits 15th

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP).—Pittsburgh scored five times in the first inning on two hits, one a three-run homer by Ralph Kiner, to down Brooklyn, 6-4, today.

Kiner's slam over the left field screen, his fifteenth of the year, knocked out starter Rex Barney. It followed walks to Stan Rojek and Frank Gustine. Erv Palica was reached for two more runs before he could retire the side. He also yielded another in the third on Kiner's single and Ed Stevens' double.

NEWARK, N. J., June 9.—It was all polite and respectful at the weighing-in, and you wondered what Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale were secretly thinking of each other, and so, a bit later, you tried to draw them out.

POVICH

Graziano, you could tell, wanted to say something nice about Zale, whose title he took last summer at Chicago. "I'm gonna keep the title," said Rocky, and then he got off the perfect Graziano idiom, complete with double nominative. "That Zale, he ain't no slob," was Rocky's tribute.

Zale wasn't talking much. His handlers hustled him back to his hotel, somewhat annoyed at the city of Newark's insistence that they needed a police bodyguard. "We don't need cops," said Manager Art Winch. "We ain't babies."

Somebody asked Zale if he was ready, and he said, "Sure, I'm ready." That was all he said, but he didn't object to anything that was being said for him by Ray Arcel, another of his handlers.

I'll tell you how Tony feels," said Arcel. "He don't think Graziano has any business being champion. Tony figures a champion ought to know how to box and have some class in there like Tony's got. He don't think he figures to lose to a puncher."

UNCONSCIOUSLY, when they squared off for the photographers alongside the scales, the champion and former champion tipped their mitts, figuratively. The picture was almost the pre-fight story without words. Graziano fixed his eyes on Zale's chin, and his right fist inched perceptibly toward the target.

Zale's eyes were directed at Graziano's midriff and his left hand was held low, seemingly cocked for a punch under the heart, and there you had it—the battle strategy of their previous two fights, unchanged for this one.

It was body puncher Zale's left hand under the heart that started Rocky to the floor in the sixth round of their first bout. And it was Graziano's winging rights to the head that knocked Zale into befuddlement in their Chicago battle before the referee mercifully stopped it.

This time they'll be fighting with New Jersey's 8-ounce gloves instead of the 6-ounce mittens of New York and Chicago, but they tell you that won't make any difference.

"THE HANDLERS will work those two extra ounces back into the wrists of the gloves," says Barney Ross, "and across the knuckles they'll still be fighting with 6-ouncers. The size of the gloves won't make any difference anyway. In the gym, guys get knocked out when they're using 16-ounce gloves."

Zale looked bad in his gymnasium workouts, even his handlers admit. "He always did," said Arcel. "So did a lot of other fighters. Barney Ross was a bum in the gym, and when Mickey Walker was training he never looked like a champion. Zale don't even punch good to the body in the gym, and everybody knows he's a whale of a body puncher.

"Did you ever hear what Billy Soose said when Tony belted him in the stomach to win the title before the war? Soose described Zale's body punching better than any other man. He said, 'When you get hit in the body by Zale it's like somebody sticking you with a red-hot poker and leaving it in there.'

"Graziano is a good puncher, but he don't knock you dead, he stings you hard. Zale pulverizes you."

THE FACTOR in the 11-to-5 odds against Zale is chiefly the 34 years he'll take into the ring in contrast to Graziano's age of 26. Zale had their last fight won at the end of four rounds, before he wilted in the Chicago heat and was a prey of the younger Rocky. With that lesson before him, he surmises he'll have to end it quickly if he is to regain the title.

There was talk in Graziano's camp that he's a better boxer than last year, that he's learned to be a bit fancy, but nobody honestly thinks Rocky will try to step with Zale. He'll go native the first time he gets hit, or even before that, and fight the fight he knows, with emphasis on the right-hand swing.

They'll both take old cuts into the ring, and both camps have asked the Jersey Commission doctors not to stop the fight on account of blood that might be showing. "Blood don't mean anything," said Arcel. "The heart takes care of that. It pumps faster when you're in action. Nature's wonderful that way."

Rocky, Zale Try Again Tonight

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer

Newark, N. J., June 9.—Rain scored a one-day knockout over Middleweight Champ Rocky Graziano and Challenger Tony Zale today postponing their scheduled title fight at Ruppert Stadium until tomorrow night.

Intermittent showers soaked the ball park on the Jersey meadows throughout the day. More of the same was expected to fall during the night but the weather man was semioptimistic about the future. He said it would be partly cloudy tomorrow.

Promoter Andy Niederreiter of the Tournament of Champions, Inc., held off three hours after the weigh-in before he gave up to the elements.

Graziano, a bit heavier than expected at 158½ pounds, was openly disappointed at the delay. The phlegmatic Zale, who scaled 158¾, had little to say. Both fighters returned to New York, going into seclusion until tomorrow afternoon. They will not have to undergo another physical exam or weigh-in unless the scrap is postponed again until Friday.

Odds Remain Same

The delay is not expected to have any appreciable effect on the odds, favoring Graziano at 5 to 11.

There was some speculation that the Rock, a nervous highly emotional warrior from New York's lower east side, might be more upset by the postponement than Zale. He is keyed to a high pitch and is eager to start throwing punches in his first defense of the crown he snatched from Zale last July in Chicago.

The promoters insist the fight is "off the nut" with $277,000 in the till. Niederreiter says he expects the postponement will help, not hurt, the gate.

Guarantees of $120,000 to Graziano, $60,000 to Zale and $30,000 to various charities plus $60,000 promotional expenses boost the costs to $270,000. With the addition of $45,000 radio money and $25,000 from the movies, the $277,000 cash in hand becomes $347,000. Taking the 20 per cent Federal tax and 5 per cent State tax off that gross, the net as of now is about $260,000. That would mean the last day sale will need to be only $10,000 to break even.

Ben Bodne, president of the Tournament of Champions, has reiterated an earlier stand on television. He insisted the show will not be televised because the word of the promoters has been pledged to this decision.

"On this promise thousands of people bought tickets," he said,

Coan Belts Inside Homer And Triple

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The St. Louis Browns failed to station any of their outfielders on the Griffith Stadium right field wall last night and the Nats seized upon this defensive oversight to pound out a 5-2 victory.

Gil Coan used the fence as a target for a homer and triple and Early Wynn and Mickey Vernon splashed doubles off the boards to highlight the Griffs' third straight success and their second in a row over St. Louis.

Coan and Wynn were the principal figures of the drama, witnessed by 6779 satisfied customers. Coan accounted for four of the five runs with his triple and inside-the-park home run while Wynn threw a fancy four-hitter to register his sixth pitching success.

Wynn Masterful

Wynn was in fine fettle last night. He didn't permit a hit after the fourth inning and retired 15 of the last 16 Browns to face him in the order they strode up to the plate.

Paul Lehner finally broke the spell, working Wynn for the only walk he issued, after two were away in the ninth. It was a most satisfactory performance for the bronzed right-hander and so was Coan's work at the plate.

Coan planted his first hit, a triple, high against the fence in right to chase in two runs in the third and wipe out a 1-0 Brown lead. In the sixth, Gil struck another blow, this time an inside-the-park home run.

The ball carried all the way to the fence a few feet to the left of the scoreboard and the fleet-footed outfielder beat the throw to the plate with plenty to spare. It was No. 4 for the season for him and No. 8 for the Nats.

Stewart Also Triples

Wynn also started his own victory parade in the third, planting a double against the fence after fouling the first pitch off Starter Clint Fannin over the barrier.

After Eddie Yost had grounded out to make it two away, Al Kozar kept things rolling with an infield single. Coan followed with his two-run, three-base knock. Ed Stewart kept it up by tripling to left center for the third run of the frame.

Sam Dente's double and Yost's wild throw of Bob Dillinger's grounder gave the Browns their first run in the third while Gerry Priddy's double and Al Zarilla's single produced their second and last tally in the fourth.

Fannin Routed in Sixth

Leading only by 3-2, the Nats went to work on Fannin in earnest in the sixth, driving him to shelter. Coan opened it with his home run. Stewart walked and Vernon socked his double against the fence. That was all for Fannin. Al Widmar, another right-hander, relieved and purposely passed Earl Wooten to load the sacks.

Mark Christman popped to Priddy, which didn't help, but Al Evans drove in the second run by forcing Wooten at second. Wynn couldn't double this time, however.

The way he was pitching, however, it was all right. He kept his fast ball zipping over the plate and his darting curve was something the Browns couldn't cope with.

He retired the first seven men to face him and got 15 of the last 16 to wind up his meritorious evening.

IN SHORT—Jake Early's injury, feared to be a fracture at first, turned out to be a bunged up thumb which will keep him out of action for four or five days. To help Al Evans with the catching, Rookie Len Okrie was recalled from Charlotte . . . Pitcher Earl Harrist, obtained from the Chisox for Chico Pierretti, arrived at the stadium in the sixth inning, just in time to see Coan's inside-the-park homer . . . Brownie Third Sacker Bob Dillinger almost put two Nats out of commission single-handedly. He pushed Vernon down on a play at first base in the third inning. In the fifth, Coan dived into the left field boxes trying to run down Dillinger's foul fly. Neither Nat was hurt . . . For the series finale tonight it'll be Mickey Haefner against Fred Sanford.

Lew Worsham Defends Open Crown Today

Los Angeles, June 9 (U.P.).—Defending Champion Lew Worsham and eight former champions are among the world's finest shotmakers who will tee off tomorrow in quest of the National Open Golf Championship over the 7020-yard Riviera Country Club course.

A field of 171 starters will go to the post, but a pair of well-known experts who never before have won the title were favored to come through this year.

One was beltin' Ben Hogan, the mighty mite from Hershey, Pa., who plays the Riviera course as though he knows every blade of grass. The othe -ris slammin' Sammy Snead who, with a brand new putting grip and stance, has been ripping the course apart in practice rounds.

However, they will have their work cut out, because the field probably is the strongest ever to start in the 48-year history of the event. The major foreign threat is Bobby Locke, the South African golden boy, but American threats cover a lot of territory.

Behind Hogan and Snead in the near-favorite's roles are such successful performers as Jimmy Demaret, fresh from winning top money at Albuquerque; Worsham, the 1946 titleholder, Lloyd Mangrum; Jim Ferrier, the Australian who won the 1946 PGA title, and Ellsworth Vines, the former tennis king.

The schedule calls for 18 holes tomorrow and Friday, with the 50 lowest scorers and ties playing the final 36 holes on Saturday.

Snead to Quit Touring Career

Los Angeles, June 9 (U.P.).—Slammin' Sammy Snead, predicting he would win the National Open Golf Championship, said today he would end his career as a touring professional when the United States Open concludes here Saturday.

Snead said in the future he would play in only four major tournaments each year—the Augusta Masters, the PGA, the Open and the Tam O'Shanter. "I'm settling down to my job at White Sulphur Springs," Snead said.

Coolidge Wins Title, Beats Anacostia, 5-1

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Benny Duvall's stellar pitching, hitting and base-running wrapped up Calvin Coolidge's third straight Interhigh baseball championship yesterday, the Colts downing Anacostia, 5-1, at Griffith Stadium.

It was Duvall's last high school game and he apparently saved his best for yesterday. The 5-foot 7-inch southpaw hurler scattered five Anacostia hits, giving up only one unearned run. He was especially stingy in the clutches, striking out 11 and marooning 11 Anacostians on the bases.

In the fourth with his team behind, 1-0, and the bases loaded with two outs, Duvall whaled a three-two pitch for a triple to left center, to put his team in front to stay.

Duvall scored his team's fourth run with a daring bit of base running in the seventh. He reached first on Third Baseman George Reeden's error. Jack Brosnan then grounded to Second Baseman Peewee Morris, whose try for a force play at second hit Duvall on the back of his head.

After a five-minute timeout period, Duvall remained in the game. Mike Mehalic, Coolidge's next batter, laid down a sacrifice bunt. Duvall, noting that Anacostia Catcher Jim Faulkner was out of position, sped around third and continued on home, beating the throw from first with a beautiful hook slide.

Brosnan scored Coolidge's fifth run a few seconds later when Reeden threw wild on Jess Houston's easy bounder.

Anacostia was off to a fast start, scoring its run in the first on a single by Bob Mitchell and Dick Kidwell's two-base error. With unbeaten George Sengstack pitching two-hit ball for the first three innings, Anacostia's chances looked bright.

Giants Beat Cubs, 5-1, After Losing 1st, 8-7

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—Scoring all their runs in the fifth inning, the New York Giants, behind the five-hit pitching of Clint Hartung, defeated the Chicago Cubs in the second half of a double-header today, 5-1.

Whitey Lockman's double with the bases loaded was the big blow. The Cubs took advantage og five Giant errors to win the opener, 8-7, after trailing, 6-0, at one time.

Bucs Win, 5-1; Kiner 15th

Pittsburgh, June 9 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh scored five times in the first inning on two hits, one a three-run homer by Ralph Kiner, to down Brooklyn, 6-4, today.

Kiner's slam over the left field screen, his fifteenth of the year, knocked out starter Rex Barney. It followed walks to Stan Rojek and Frank Gustine. Erv Palica was reached for two more runs before he could retire the side. He also yielded another in the third on Kiner's single and Ed Stevens' double.

Warren Spahn kept the Redbirds under control except for the eighth inning when they scored three runs but his teammates' 15 hits had provided enough margin for the victory.

Mort Cooper Will Rejoin Giants Soon

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Mort Cooper, 34-year-old hurler who retired last winter to handle a beer agency in his hometown of Independence, Mo., may rejoin the New York Giants within a few days.

Manager Mel Ott announced today that Cooper, brother of the slugging Walker Cooper, requested permission to return. He has been ordered to report here and begin working out with the team.

"He'll be given a chance to pitch a lot of batting practice," said Ott. "We'll decide what to do with him after he proves that his arm is okay and that he's in condition to pitch. After all he didn't have any spring training this year."

Bums Farm Jorgensen

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers today chopped John "Spider" Jorgensen, one of last year's outstanding rookies, and Pitcher Clyde King off their roster and filled their places by recalling Pitcher Hank Behrman and Outfielder Marvin Rackley from the Montreal farm in the International League.

Jorgensen was transferred to St. Paul of the American Association on a 24-hour option agreement and King was sold to the Phillies for the waiver price of $10,000.

Ruth 'Suits Up' Again

New York, June 9 (AP).—Babe Ruth will be the last New York Yankee to wear the No. 3 uniform after all.

The long-ailing Bambino will don the suit with the number he made famous next Sunday when he will manage a team made up of members of the 1923 Yankee club in a game with an All-Star team of Yankees of later years managed by Ed Barrow, and immediately afterward the uniform will be retired to the hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Sarno Rides Sweepson To Victory

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 9.—Gertie O, a four-year-old filly and the youngest member of a field of eight, came through with a stretch rush today that won the James Sager Purse, named for the Washington sportsman.

The daughter of Charley O, racing in the colors of Mercer Love 3rd, came into the wire three lengths ahead of Shangri La Stables' Post Boy. Two lengths farther back was Miss Virginia McKinney's Boston Broom.

With Apprentice Jockey Jimmy Rankin aboard, Gertie O stepped the six and a half furlongs over a fast track in 1:20, creditable time. Her backers collected at the rate of $10.40 for each $2 invested.

Post Boy Leads

Post Boy, saddled by C. Palmer Sowers, one-time Washingtonian, went to the front soon after the break and was followed by Louis L, the favorite, and Country Dude. Along the backstretch, Post Boy shook off Louis L and then Country Dude took up the chase. In the meanwhile, Gertie O was far back but saving ground.

Approaching the stretch, Gertie O, placed to a drive, skimmed the inside rail as she came on gamely. Post Boy drifted out entering the straightaway. Rankin then placed Gertie O to the whip and she responded with the pay-off rush.

The Great Eastern Purse, the day's secondary feature, proved a romp for Phil Reda's Sweepson, capably handled by Jockey Mike Sarno. The 4-year-old took the lead early, attempted to run out entering the stretch but Sarno put up a strong ride and held Keller and Gray's Virginia Jean safe in the closing test. N. W. Shaffer's Four Leaves was third in the battle of about seven furlongs. The winner, clocked in 1:27 2/5, was the choice at a $3.80 mutuel.

A big day it was for Miss Angela Tammaro, youthful trainer who saddled her first horse in competition. She sent Mrs. George Fishback's Grandma C to the post and the mare responded with a smashing victory, paying $5 as the favorite, and going the about six furlongs in 1:17.

The daily double was a "double" in more ways than one. There were two pay-offs. After some confusion among the judges, the first race was called a dead heat with Thornpatch and Ingerfire sharing the win end. When the second event went to H. Kesting's Kohinoob, the doubles starting with Thornpatch paid $18.80 while those beginning with Ingerfire returned $29.20.

G. W. Opposes Alabama in NCAA Today

Charlotte, N. C., June 9 (AP).—Four teams will begin double eliminations here tomorrow to decide who'll represent the South in college baseball's "World Series."

A doubleheader will open tomorrow night's first round in the NCAA Southern Baseball Tournament. Two defeats will be necessary to eliminate a team.

Alabama, adjudged the best-balanced team in the Southeastern Conference, meets George Washington, third place club of the Southern Conference, in the first half of the doubleheader. North Carolina's Southern Conference champions meet Georgia Tech, Eastern Division runnerup in the Southeastern Conference, in the second game.

Alabama's balance and North Carolina's brilliant pitching staff stamp those teams as likely finalists here.

George Washington brings the hardest-hitting team to the tournament, but the Colonials are short on pitching, a situation created by the NCAA ineligibility of three freshmen. They'll rely principally upon the strong arm of Pete King to carry the pitching.

Navy Eliminates Rutgers, 3-2, in NCAA Semifinal

Lafayette Wins Over W. Virginia

Easton, Pa., June 9.—Navy literally walked into the finals of the NCAA District Two baseball championship here today, winning out over Rutgers, 3-2, in 11 innings on a base on balls.

In the other semifinal game, Lafayette's Fred Robbins spun a one-hitter at West Virginia and the Leopards breezed home, 8-0.

Ronnie Burton, Navy ace, scattered nine Rutgers' hits over the 11-inning distance and walked only one. Morton, his mound opponent, was touched for only six hits, but five were for extra bases.

In the end though, wildness caused his downfall. Bill Brendle opened Navy's 11th with the Middies' only single and Bob Searle was hit by the pitcher.

Tigers Pound Terps, 7 to 1

Princeton, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Princeton's baseball team, blasting Pitcher Bill Witzell for five solid hits and four runs in the first inning, trampled Maryland, 7-1, today as Tiger Hurler Al Beebe scattered nine Terrapin hits over the full distance.

Walt Armstrong's double and Dave Carpenter's triple drove in three of the first-inning tallies before Witzell could retire a batter. John Meeker's single brought in Carpenter with the other runs.

Maryland made its lone run in the fifth after Princeton pushed another across in the fourth. Condon walked, went to third on Bob Besley's double and came home on John Hunton's fly to left. Condon was the only Terrapin bastman to reach third off Beebe.

Heurich, Stars Tie, 4 to 4, in Benefit Game

The Heurich Brewers, District sandlot champions, and the Unlimited League All-Stars played to an eight-inning 4-4 tie yesterday in the Monk Fraser benefit game on the West Ellipse. Darkness halted the game.

The All-Stars overcame a three-run deficit by scoring twice in the sixth and once in the seventh. Their sixth-inning tallies came in on singles by Harry Martin, Bob Massey, and Roy McNeill and an outfield fly by Bud Massey. The tying run was the result of Jerry Zanelotti's walk, his steal of second and Massey's hit to left.

McCoy Gets Up To Race Here

Midget auto racer Ernie McCoy of Reading, Pa., was thrown off the Yellow Jacket Speedway at Philadelphia several weeks ago—by a runaway car. He has completed a short hospital stay and will race Friday night at West Lanham.

McCoy will start in again with a brand new Ford. Shorty McAndrews broke it in last Friday and McCoy figures to climb back into the ranks of the leading money-winners.

The Federal Diary

Martin Hints Postal Raise Assured, Other U. S. Boosts Undecided

Speaker Joseph Martin yesterday gave these clews to the Federal pay-raise problem after a meeting of the House Republican Steering Committee:

That it was "pretty much" agreed to support a bill to raise the salaries of the 475,000 workers;

That no decision had been made on pay raises for the 825,000 Federal and District workers whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act, and,

That the committee decided to wait until "we can see how much money we have left" before a decision is made on how much of a pay raise either postal, classification, or both groups will be given.

The postal pay raise was not on the "top priority" list of bills which the potent steering committee agreed to write into law before the adjournment of Congress.

In a sentence, the action of the Steering Committee was rather discouraging to the many advocates of a general Federal pay raise. However, Martin emphasized that a pay raise for classification employes hadn't been "ruled out," and that it would be debated again by the the committee early next week. Also, he said he "hoped" that a postal pay bill would be brought up in the House next week.

But the Speaker followed with a comment that the committee decided to wait to see the Federal financial picture before any definite action is taken on pay raises for either group.

From other sources it was learned that a majority of the committee favored pay raises of $400 each for postal workers, and that several members supported a pay raise for Classification Act people.

Meantime, there are strong indications that the Taft compromise pay plan will be pushed in the Senate That proposal calls for $400 pay raises for postal employes and average increases of $360 each to classification people. But a major dispute between the Senate and the House on a pay bill could easily result in no pay raises for anyone.

ECONOMIC COOPERATION has steno jobs open in its Paris office. A moderate knowledge of French is required. The jobs pay from $2100 to $2900, plus cost-of-living allowances. Make application at the ECA personnel office at 800 Connecticut ave. nw.

BLS: No layoffs must be made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The House yesterday quickly reversed itself and voted to give the agency a budget of $4,073,000, the identical amount it had for this fiscal year. Previously, it had insisted on $2,500,000, a budget that would have forced a layoff of about 450 employes. The Senate had insisted on $4,250,000

NLRB: The National Labor Relations Board will have enough money to hire upward of 1000 new employes after July 1. Congress has agreed on a $9,400,000 budget for it for the next nine months. The House had originally approved a $7,200,000 budget.

FMCS: A threatened layoff in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service won't take place. The Congress yesterday agreed to allow it a $2,940,000 budget. The House had approved $2,540,000, a figure that would have forced the layoffs.

SSA: The Office of the Social Security Administrator will have to make a small layoff. It was given a $235,000 budget instead of $302,500, as approved by the House . . . The Office of Education was given $1,900,000 for salaries, a slight increase.

COMMERCE: Gerald Ryan, chief clerk of the Commerce Department, is a distinct possibility to be appointed director of the Census Bureau if J. C. Capt is transferred to director of the New York regional office. He was assistant Census director for many years. Ray Hurley, chief of Census' agriculture division, is another possibility.

ALLOWANCES: The House has approved and sent to the White House the bill to increase the per diem of railway mail clerks from $4 to $6 a day. Meantime, it appears that the Senate-approved bill to raise the travel allowance from $6 to $8 a day will die in the House Expenditures Committee. This measure should be brought out and passed . . . The House also passed and sent to the President a bill to give United States marshals and their deputies an allowance of 7 cents a mile when they use their own cars on official business.

VETERANS: The House also approved a bill which would require Federal agencies to follow the decisions of the Civil Service Commission in the appeals of veterans . . . Another bill okayed would permit veterans to be given official leave up to six hours in a single day to attend the funerals of deceased members of the military whose remains are returned here for burial . . . And a third bill would benefit World War II veterans whose disabilities made them ineligible for Federal jobs they had qualified for. It would give these deserving veterans an opportunity to have their names placed on the eligible lists for jobs they could handle.

NOTES: Russell P. Andrews was elected the employe member of Budget Bureau's efficiency rating board. His alternate is Edward B. Bowers . . . Budget Director James Webb has ordered the elimination of the Federal Board of Hospitalization as of July 1. This board coordinated Federal hospital construction . . . A radio announcer is needed by a Federal agency. Salary is $65 a week. Call Georgia 1000, Branch 53, for details.

Beall Asks Parking Rate Investigation

Claims Charges Are Too High, Calls For Comparison With Other Cities

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) yesterday asked the House to have the District Commissioners investigate parking rates and services in Washington.

Beall introduced a resolution which would authorize the investigation. It would compare the parking rates and services in Washington with those available in other cities. A report would be made to Congress early next year.

Earlier Beall's House District Subcommittee approved a bill to promote development of off-street parking facilities in Washington, after a hearing in which he joined with Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) to criticize present District parking rates as too high.

The bill, already approved by the Senate, would let the District lease land it owns or acquires for 50-year periods to private industry for building and running off-street parking facilities. A five-year limit on leases now in the law has held up the off-street parking program, according to District officials.

Representative McMillan commented during the hearing that he thought it would help the situation if city officials would tear down all the present no parking signs.

George E. Keneipp, District director of vehicles and traffic, said McMillan's idea would "lead to a good deal of congestion."

"I think it's a problem that will have to be solved off the streets," said Keneipp.

'Fringe' Lot Parking Backed by Merchants

Elimination of downtown F street parking and establishment of three "fringe" parking lots with shuttle-bus service to the shopping district was approved yesterday by a merchants group.

The proposal is the District Parking Agency's emergency measure for traffic congestion in downtown areas. P. Y. K. Howat, the agency's head, said he will now ask the Public Utility Commission to approve the bus routing and parking rate bus fare combination price of 40 cents a car. On Wednesday, he said, he will seek favorable action from the Zoning Commission to allow development of the projected lots at 25th and E sts. nw., and at Florida and Connecticut aves. nw. The third lot to be used is now in existence at 4th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., Howat said.

The lots will hold an average of 450 cars each for the lot-bus service, according to Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Council.

The meeting of merchants of F st. and 7th st. nw. was called by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. The meeting unanimously approved the lot project.

Howat said the Capital Transit Co. will cooperate with the plan.

Financing of the lots, said to be nominal, will be handled through a corporation which is planned. The funds will be provided, he said, by officers of downtown mercantile establishments.

Howat said the three lots will be connected by fast shuttle buses. For example, he said the Connecticut ave. lot on Temple Heights will have buses leaving regularly that are nonstop down to 20th and I sts. nw., and from there will make stops each block into F st. proper at 15th st., and down F st. to connect finally with the Pennsylvania ave. lot.

Woman Is Shot To Death Here; Man Is Sought

Mrs. Louise Harris, 21, of 32 F st. nw., was shot and killed last night at her home.

The woman, shot in the right eye and abdomen, was pronounced dead at the scene at 10:15 p. m. by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Police broadcast a lookout for Johnnie Harris, 38, listed as living at 412 K st. nw. The lookout described him as 6 feet tall, 150 to 160 pounds, dark brown complexion, and wearing a gray coat, trousers and hat.

Gov. Lane Urges Graduates To Follow Teaching Careers

MARYLAND GOVERNOR OFFICIATES—Iola Mae Alderson, 20, receives her diploma from Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., at last night's commencement exercises of Montgomery Junior College. It was the school's first graduation

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland last night called upon 25 graduates of the Montgomery County Junior College to enter the teaching profession.

Teaching is now a "preferred career in Maryland," the Governor said, citing new pay scales which, he said, are attracting teachers from other States.

The new scales, he declared, have boosted enrollment in the State Teachers' Colleges until by 1950 the four colleges will graduate 350 teachers.

The commencement was the first graduation of the Montgomery Junior College, which was established two years ago. Exercises were held in the Leland Junior High School, Chevy Chase.

Dean Hugh G. Price predicted an enrollment of 500 students by next fall and said that next year's graduating class will total 100.

Degrees were conferred by H. Standley Stine, president of Montgomery County Board of Education. Others on the platform were Thomas G. Pullen, superintendent of schools for Maryland; E. M. Douglas, assistant superintendent of Montgomery County Schools; Brooke Johns, president of the board of county commissioners and members of the board of education. The Montgomery County Symphony Orchestra supplied the music.

ARCHBISHOP PRESENTS DIPLOMAS—At Catholic University commencement exercises yesterday, the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle hands diploma to Patricia Ann Cassidy of 4602 21st st. ne She graduated as a bachelor of arts

Degrees were conferred on 936 students, the largest graduating class in the history of Catholic University, in exercises held yesterday in the flag-decorated university gymnasium.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington and chancellor of the unversity, presented diplomas and granted honorary degrees to two former students at the university.

A colorful academic procession across the university campus preceded the program.

Mother Mary Agatha Ryan, president of Xavier University, a Catholic college for Negro youth at New Orleans, and a pioneer in Catholic education among Negroes and Indians, received the degree of doctor of laws.

Frank A. Kuntz, member of the engineering staff of the Bell Telephone Laboratories who developed radar during the war, received an honorary master of science degree.

Fulton Oursler, senior editor of the Reader's Digest, told the students "our time calls for educated citizens of deep faith . . . not only in cloisters and libraries but in the hurly-burly of office, shop and street, and above all in the family circle."

Public education does not provide for these citizens, the editor said.

"Preposterous as it sounds, and is, a public school teacher may tell children of Darwin and his apeman, Marx and his mechanical man; Freud and his nightmare man; Stalin and his slave man—but he risks going to jail if he tries to mention Christ and His pure man."

The Right Rev. Msgr. P. J. McCormick, rector of the university, announced gifts to the university during the year of $108,107 and gifts to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the university campus of $1,060,360.

St. John's College High Awards 99 Diplomas

Ninety-nine cadets, making up the largest class in the history of St. John's College High School, last night received diplomas at commencement exercises held in the Catholic University gymnasium.

Four-year scholarships were awarded to John E. George, to the University of Notre Dame; Daniel J. Callahan, to Columbia University; Thomas A. McCarty, to Rensalear Polytechnic Institute, and William C. Stillwell, Catholic University.

The Right Rev. John J. Russell, D.D., pastor of St. Patrick's Church, delivered the commencement address. The Rev. Brother Emilian, F.S.C., L.L.D., provincial of Baltimore Province of the Brothers of the Christian Schools presented the diplomas. Dom Hugh Monmonier, O.S.B., delivered the invocation.

Dirksen Addresses Class at Mount Vernon

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) was the main speaker at commencement exercises at the Mount Vernon Seminary Junior College.

Using as a theme "Operation Life," he told the graduates that each, individually, represented a one-man task force, that they couldn't change conditions but they could choose their weapons. These, he said, should be hope, courage, devotion to freedom and tranquillity.

Dirksen's daughter, Joy, was among the 62 graduates to receive degrees of associate in art.

Group Urges 3 Streets as Playgrounds

Kalorama Council Sponsors Petitions To Close N.W. Blocks During Summer

Petitions asking that three streets in northwest Washington be closed this summer for recreational purposes will be handed to the Commissioners soon by the Kalorama Neighborhood Council.

Mrs. May Frank Rhoades, council representative, told the D. C. Recreation Board last night the streets, which would be used by Negro children, are the 1500 block of Church, 1700 block of Corcoran, and 1500 block of Swann.

She said the move arose from lack of recreational facilities in the area bounded by Massachusetts ave. to U st. and 14th st. to Connecticut ave. nw.

Rector Circulates Petitions

The petitions have been circulated by the Rev. Dillard H. Brown, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 1514 15th st. nw. Mr. Brown said last night all residents within the blocks had signed them.

That is a sample of some of the recreational needs of the District, as testified to by more than 100 representatives of citizens and civic associations, P-TA's, and other organized groups at the Recreation Board's budget meeting for 1950 expenditures.

Board Chairman Harry Wender announced that final plans for the first unit of a field house to be erected at Turkey Thicket playground had been approved and that the board would ask bids on the project July 1.

Hillcrest Field House Proposed

Plans for another field house, at Hillcrest, in the Anacostia area, will also be asked, Wender disclosed.

The citizens' groups' representatives turned in written statements to the board, outlining needs in their particular area.

Sanford Souser of Stoddart Recreation Association, reported a new spring, flowing on Dupont Stoddart playground, was "a health menace" because small children were "lying on their stomachs and drinking from it." Others had sprained ankles, he said, on the slick surface over which the spring drained.

Chairman Wender told the representatives that the District's recreational needs could be met only if organized groups "follow these projects through." He urged them to appear at future Senate and House hearings on the District budget to plug for the projects they want.

Group Fights Plan to Close Powell School

Some 250 area residents last night voted to form a committee to study a plan for closing Powell Junior High School.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning listed reasons for the proposed closing and was peppered with objections.

He emphasized that the closing of the school at Hiatt pl. and Lamont st. nw. is under consideration by the Board of Education, but has not yet been decided upon. The plan would turn the building over to Bell Vocational Association.

The meeting in the school was called by the Powell Home and School Association. Dr. Corning pointed out that enrollment has declined steadily from 1001 pupils in 1941 to 573 this year, necessitating elimination of several electives from the curriculum.

Opposition to the closing plan stressed disadvantages of Powell students travelling to Macfarland, Gordon or Langley Junior Highs.

Arthur Kimberly, president of Mount Pleasant Citizens Association, warned of the traffic hazards in crossing 13th, 14th and 16th sts. nw., to get to Macfarland, closest of the three schools.

John Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Association, cautioned that closing of Powell might "deplete the fine neighborhood," as families would move closer to other schools their children would have to attend.

Mrs. Frances P. Douglas, president of the Powell Home and School Association, said a committee would be appointed shortly composed of representatives of 15 area citizens groups and parents.

Woman Injured As She Steps in Front of Trolley

An unidentified woman, about 40, was critically injured last night when struck by a streetcar in the 1800 block of Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Police said the woman apparently stepped from a loading platform into the path of the streetcar operated by William A. Bardella, 23, of 1001 23d st. nw.

At Emergency Hospital, she was reported suffering possible skull fracture, fractures of both legs and scalp lacerations.

Police said she was wearing a deep blue suit and a brown and white blouse and carried a pocketbook containing $3, glasses, cigarettes, but no identification papers.

Flier Wins Battle On Darkened Road

You couldn't have found it recorded in the archives at the Pentagon yesterday, but the Air Force had once again scored a decisive victory.

They don't put these kinds of battles in the records—police records, maybe, but not Army records.

It was fought late Tuesday night on a darkened road in Oxon Hill, Md. It ended with James O. Davis, 52, of 6820 Oxon Hill rd., Oxon Hill, stretched senseless by the side of the road.

Davis was rendered hors de combat by Air Force Lieut. Wayne Sheppard, 28, of Salem, N. J. Sheppard suffered a bullet wound in his hip. An Army nurse, Lieut. Dolores W. Naranche, 28, of Bolling Field, who was with Sheppard during the engagement, suffered a gashed thumb.

It was a confused story for quite a while but Prince Georges County police finally untangled it. After questioning the principals, County Policemen Vincent Free and Charles Nally pieced together this version:

Davis, who is employed by the District Department of Weights, Measures and Markets as assistant market master at the Southwest Market here, was returning home from work shortly before midnight.

Near Oxon Hill and Fort Foote rds. he saw a strange car with California license plates parked off the road.

"Davis told us he had had three beers and wanted to have some fun," Nally said.

The police officer said Davis stopped his car and yelled:

"What's going on here?"

According to police, Sheppard replied that it was none of the newcomer's business.

The Air Force officer, who holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal, got out of his car heatedly and advanced toward Davis. The latter had a .38-caliber pistol in his hand and fired one shot over Sheppard's head.

As Sheppard closed with him the gun was discharged again and a bullet ripped into the Air Force officer's hip.

JAMES O. DAVIS
At Providence Hospital

Sheppard ripped the gun from Davis' grasp and went to work on him with his fists. The nurse got in the battle long enough to get her thumb ripped, but Sheppard waved her aside and then proceeded to batter Davis into unconsciousness.

Sheppard told police they left Davis lying at the side of the road and drove to Bolling Field, where they turned in the pistol.

Police said Davis, when he regained consciousness, went to his home and related to his family that he had been beaten and robbed. Prince Georges and District police broadcast a lookout for the "bandits." Davis, police said, later admitted the story was false.

Davis was in Providence Hospital yesterday with cuts on his head. Sheppard was in the base hospital at Bolling Field recovering from the gunshot wound. And Lieutenant Naranches' thumb was repaired with five stitches.

Honeymoon Bicycle Trip Ends As Truck Injures Young Wife

A care-free honeymoon bicycle trip to Texas ended only 23 miles out of Washington yesterday with the serious injury of a young physician's wife.

Victim of a traffic accident near Gaithersburg, Md., and in critical condition last night at Georgetown University Hospital was Mrs. Eileen Webb, 22, wife of Dr. Paul Webb, 24, of 4421 Alton pl. nw.

The attractive young wife, married only 2½ months, suffered a compound fracture of the left thigh, a broken right arm and possible internal and pelvic injuries.

Police said Mrs. Webb, together with her husband and his brotther, Vance Bourjaily, 25, and his wife, Dettina, 23, were riding their new English bicycles in single file about 1 mile north of Gaithersburg when Mrs. Webb was struck by a truck.

Driver of the truck, loaded with sod, was William R. Nicklas, 21, of Boyds, Md., who was charged with reckless driving by Montgomery County Police. A hearing was tentatively set for July 1 in Rockville Police Court. Police said the left front of the truck body struck Mrs. Webb. The bicycle was demolished.

Dr. Webb administered first aid at the scene and applied splints.

The camping trip, Dr. Webb explained, was to be a leisurely one to Texas, where he was called into active Army duty. His brother, Vance, a writer, was to continue to California with his wife.

Dr. Webb's father is Monte Bourjaily, publisher and manager of the Glove Syndicate. His mother is Mrs. Schuyler Larking, a National Democratic Woman's official.

Motorist Gets $3750 Verdict In Crash Suit Against Railroad

A seven-man jury yesterday awarded $3750 in damages to Joseph S. Gass, 22, of 4264 S. 16th st., Arlington, who sought $50,000 for injuries he suffered when struck by a train November 17.

The jury returned its verdict after two hours on the fourth day of the trial in Arlington Circuit Court.

Gass's car, a 1941 Ford coupe, was struck by the engine of a Washington & Old Dominion Railroad train where the track intersects W. Broad st. in Falls Church. The car was carried 102 feet by the impact.

In court, several physicians and a dentist testified that Gass, a bulldozer operator, had suffered nose and leg fractures, damage to his teeth, as well as facial cuts requiring plastic surgery.

In the trial, locomotive engineer D. N. Cunningham, 45 of Ashburn, Va., said he saw Gass' car approaching the intersection 300 feet away. He added that the car then pulled past a pickup truck which had parked to let the train pass and struck the front of the engine.

In his testimony, Gass declared there was no other traffic at the time of the accident and that he did not see the train until it was 10 feet away. He failed to hear any warning whistle, he said.

2 Directors Of Crippled Children's Group Quit

Drs. Oppenheimer, Blair Were Allied With Minority That Is Seeking Reforms

Two directors of the feud-ridden District Society for Crippled Children resigned yesterday.

They were Dr. Montgomery Blair, director of Children's Hospital, and Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare.

A third director, Mrs. C. D. Lowe, let it be known that she, too, will resign if the local society is stripped of its charter by the National Society for Crippled Children.

Neither Dr. Blair nor Dr. Oppenheimer would comment on their resignations. However, they have been allied with a minority group, which includes Mrs. Lowe, seeking to bring about reforms in the administration of the local society.

On May 11, the national society told the District affiliate that if these reforms were not established within 60 days its charter would be withdrawn.

As part of the reorganization program, the national specified that Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, local executive secretary, be dismissed.

Mrs. Gaffney was the focal point in a disruption of staff workers at the local society in April when four persons resigned and a fifth worker was fired. All charged Mrs. Gaffney was "tyrannical."

The administration of the local also has been accused of inept handling of its funds, almost all of which are donated by the public through an annual Easter seal drive, which has raised in recent years about $50,000 annually.

Director Spurned "Public Concern"

Yet one member of the reform-seeking minority said a director told her, "It is no concern of the public what we do with this money," and was indignant because "these charity patients are always complaining."

Reporters assigned to cover a board meeting of the society Tuesday night complained of the high-handed manner in which they were treated. Barred from the meeting itself, they were instructed to wait until the meeting's conclusion when they were told they would be given a statement. After a three-hour wait, there was no statement and other directors attempted to silence Mrs. Beulah Drake, president, when she started to comment.

One reporter inquired if the public was not entitled to know what was happening to the funds it had contributed.

Tom Grant, a board member, replied: "They can read our annual report."

Reasons for Resignations

It was apparent that Dr. Blair and Dr. Oppenheimer resigned after it became clear at Tuesday night's meeting that the reorganization, if one does come about, will fall far short of their hopes and also of the standards set by the national society.

At the May 11 meeting the directors had approved a motion by Dr. Oppenheimer that a member of the national society staff be called to Washington to assist in the reorganization. The national society sent a representative here from the Pacific Coast, but the local society's administration told him his services were not needed.

Mrs. Drake, it was learned, was asked at the Tuesday meeting why the mandate of the board had not been carried out. She replied she did not think it the proper time for a national representative to take a hand.

Col. E. W. Palmer, president of the national society, attended the Tuesday meeting. Mrs. Drake said he requested the meeting be closed to the press.

It's Rear Elevator For Baby Carriages

As if they didn't have enough on their hands, mamas residing at the swank 2800 Woodley rd. nw., apartments yesterday had new woes to contend with.

They came by bulletin from Louis Luria, manager, who announced that hereafter, presumably as a favor to elevator walls—not to speak of people and dogs—babies in carriages must descend by the rear elevator.

That, say mamas, they don't like.

Their plaint is that the only way to get out of the building without going down at least six steps or up a dozen is to go into the subbasement and out the garage. The only way to get out of doing this is to use the front elevator. The rear elevator, they testify, goes to a rear entrance and would require hauling the carriage up a dozen steps.

Looking for a lift

What's more, they'll tell you, dogs can use the front elevator when they're heading for their daily constitutional. So why not babies?

Mr. Luria, who isn't really a hard man, answers tersely:

"Everybody's doing it—why not here?"

Well?

Group to Aid In Probe of Polk Slaying

Creation of a fund-raising committee to finance a newsmen's investigation into the recent murder in Greece of American Correspondent George Polk was announced here yesterday.

The committee will be headed by Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, according to Walter Lippman, chairman of the Overseas Writers Committee, which will conduct the inquiry.

Polk, correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, was killed under mysterious circumstances while traveling to guerilla-held territory in Greece.

Meyer Outlines Purpose

In accepting chairmanship of the financing committee and announcing its membership, Mr. Meyer declared:

"The purpose of the Overseas Writers Committee is in fact to promote the security of the foreign correspondents of the American free press and radio. . . . The finance committee is concerned solely with the assurance of the necessary financial support to enable the Overseas Writers Committee and its counsel, Gen. William J. Donovan, to pursue an inquiry of vital importance to the many fine representatives of press and radio work courageously and conscientiously to bring information to the people of the United States."

Mr. Meyer listed the following as having agreed to serve on the finance committee:

Maj. Gen. Juilus Ochs Adler, vice president and general manager, New York Times; Seymour Berkson, general manager, International News Service; Erwin D. Canham, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and editor of the Christian Science Monitor.

Ethridge, Larsen, McKelway

Mark F. Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal and recently United States representative on the U. N. Balkan Commission; Roy E. Larsen, president of Time, Life and Fortune; Benjamin M. McKelway, editor, Washington Evening Star.

William S. Paley, board chairman, Columbia Broadcasting System; DeWitt Wallace, editor, Reader's Digest, and Daniel W. Bell, president, American Security & Trust Co., and former Undersecretary of the Treasury, who will serve as committee treasurer.

In other developments yesterday:

Harry Martin, president of the American Newspaper Guild, announced he had accepted appointment to the committee to inquire into the murder of Polk, and said he had designated Kenneth G. Crawford, former Guild president, as the committee's liaison officer in Washington.

Canham designated Walter Lippman and McKelway, both members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, to represent the society on the committee.

John A. Reichman of INS was appointed to the committee and designated by the State Correspondents Association as their representative, it was announced.

Third Gambler Killed In Chicago in 2 Weeks

Chicago, June 9 (U.P.).—Underworld triggermen killed the third Chicago gambler in two weeks today, and police believed a city cleanup campaign was forcing gamblers to turn against each other in a scramble for remaining "territories."

Norton Polsky, 26, a known gambler, was stalked and slain by gunmen as he parked his car.

Leo (Little Sneeze) Friedman, 33, was shot down in similar gangland style May 24 and George (Bulldog) Stathatos, 26, was "taken for a ride" May 22.

Police believed the three slayings were connected, and resulted from a campaign to clean up the city's gambling rackets.

Amateurs Raise Own Beef

Virginia Gentry Goes in For Black Angus Cattle And Gets Grass Cut Free

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IF THE VIRGINIA countryside wasn't so lush an average ignoramus might think he was rolling through Western ranching land. So many of the fields are dotted with beef cattle, white-faced Herefords and, pet fad of the moment, Black Angus. The handsome beasties, ornament to any manorial lawn, are practically no trouble, do not have to be milked and during summer season roll up a tidy profit just by moving their jaws up and down—regularly! Recently, beef, on the hoof so to speak, rose from 26 to 28 cents a pound, is expected to zip up around 32 to 34 before winter. And as a Black Angus, happy creature, eats on about 200 pounds between spring and frost, you can see what to do with that empty field!

But so many have figured on how to get their grass cut free while making money that short term amateur cattlemen are finding Black Angus exceedingly hard to come by.

Among Virginia's newest ranchers is petite, spry Mrs. Joseph Willard. Mrs. Willard (her family sold the hotel several years ago), widow of our former Ambassador to Spain, is mother of Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, grandmtoher of a flock of Roosevelts and great-grandmother of still other Roosevelts. Out in Fairfax Mrs. Willard has had her fences electrified (to keep energetic cattle from skipping out) and at the moment has 31 white-faced Herefords in her back fields. Some 15 Black Angus are soon due to arrive and they'll be kept right in front where Mrs. Willard can look at them. Not overly ambitious as a cattlewoman, Mrs. W. will be content if her grass is cut without expense—however, she can't help making profit.

Her grandson, Kim Roosevelt, is an expert in things Arabic and his article on the Grand Mufti will appear soon in the Saturday Evening Post.

PERSONAL NOTE—Don't send any leftover cats, no matter how fancy their ancestry or appearance, to Sir Oliver Franks, the new British Ambassador. Since the Franks' feline pet, Lulu, disappeared into the bowels of the Queen Elizabeth, Sir Oliver has been offered over a hundred tabbies! And they're not having any until Lulu's officially proclaimed missing.

Poppa of the Year

AN HONOR of any kind conferred upon a friend is agreeable and so we were delighted when Drew Pearson was named Poppa No. 1 for the year. However, we couldn't help remembering a brief splatter of conversation with the Nation's No. 1 sleuth a few nights ago in Manhattan's eatery de luxe, "21".

Mr. H., full of cheer as always, passed on the good news he'd been nominated as 1948's Outstanding Father. "It was just as tough on me as on them," he grinned, "when they discovered I wasn't married!"

Speaking of Hoover reminds this unliterary corner of Eugene Lyons' just-out book on Herbert Hoover. It's an amazing tome which warms the cold cockles of the former President's loyal supporters, who have suffered for their friend in silence these long 15 years. 'Gene started the book as a mere story assignment for the Reader's Digest.

The first two or three visits he thought Mr. Hoover a cold fish, then after considerable skillful journalistic spade-work, discovered him affable; affectionate. The work lengthened to some 40,000 words (about $1 book size) then, at Doubleday Doran insistence, to a full-sized 120,000 word job. Hoover refused to glamorize himself in any way, never looked at the manuscript until it was all actually in print, then read it carefully.

Eugene Lyons sized up his character, at least his public character, as a personally unfortunate combination of rigid Quaker upbringing and excruciating shyness which resulted in a complete introvert. Not only would the former President balk at telling stories entirely to his credit but, spending a great part of his time doing charitable work, he goes to the most devious means of keeping the recipients ignorant of his identity.

Dedicated to Public Service

ONE OF THE MOST interesting Hoover stories, according to 'Gene, has never been published before. Back in 1921 when Hoover was offered a Cabinet post by Harding, Daniel Guggenheim, the great copper multimillionaire, made him a staggering offer.

Guggenheim told Hoover that his sons were fine lads, but none were interested in heading his mining empire.. If Hoover would take complete control he would guarantee him a minimum annual recompense of half a million dollars. Hoover asked time to think it over.

He and the late Mrs. Hoover consulted each other, asked for guidance in Quaker fashion. Then they turned down the offer, accepting instead the public service job with its salary of a paltry $15,000! Lyons believes that Hoover's career will be reevaluated, his difficult character understood, in the light of the material he has uncovered and set down.

Congressional Club Meets at Capitol

With their clubhouse on New Hampshire closed up "lock stock and barrell" for the remainder of the year, members of the Congressional Club moved up to the Capitol for their final meeting of the year yesterday.

Headed by their president, Mrs. Clifford Davis, members met for a short business session, followed by lunch in the speaker's dining room. Various committee reports were read and the opening program for next season was arranged. The club will hold its opening reception for 1949 on Sunday, January 9.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Only Son of Widowed Mother Always Planned Place for Her in His Home When He Married, But His Fiancee, a Fine Girl, Opposes That

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For five months I have been going with Janet, a very fine girl who has many admirable qualities. We had planned to marry this summer, but can't agree on one point.

I am an only child of a widowed mother, with whom I live in a suburban apartment. Mother and I have always got on well together, as each of us respects the other person's rights; and outsiders who know mother say she is an easy person to get on with.

Because mother is alone and ours is not a wealthy family, I had always hoped that when I married, she would live with my wife and me; and I know several cases where this arrangement has worked out satisfactorily for all concerned.

Fiancee Insists On Independence

HOWEVER, Janet has a strong aversion to living with in-laws, especially during the first few years of marriage. She is 25 and for about three years has lived away from home. She says that her family, her mother especially, was very strict with her in childhood and youth, and to gain any independence it was necessary for her to leave home.

She resides with two other girls and the mother of her brother's wife, and once or twice monthly she visits her parents, who live in another town, in the first-floor apartment of a two-apartment house. The father's married sister and husband live upstairs.

It seems this arrangement of relatives living upstairs in her father's house hasn't been all that was hoped for, and the net result is that Janet treasures her independence from family ties and is thoroughly conditioned against living with in-laws.

I love her dearly and she says she loves me, but will not marry me if I plan to have mother live with us. Frankly, I need good sound advice, and I need it quickly. What should I do: accede to Janet's wish or give her up? C. P.

Girl Is Free; Man Is Bound

DEAR C. P.: As you say, Janet is thoroughly conditioned against living with in-laws or even family, hence her honest decisive refusal to accept your marriage offer, if it means living with your mother.

You, on the other hand, are thoroughly conditioned to the idea of residing with your mother as long as she lives, an idea which she infiltrated into your feelings and consciousness, no doubt, and has gently fostered as antidote to her dread of being "left alone" in the event you marry.

This idea of having mother always with you is subtly different, of course, from readiness to insure care for her, in a place of her own, if she were to come upon need of income-help. But in your conditioned thinking, the two ideas seem one-and-the-same.

Scripture Backs Girl's Attitude

IT IS your conditioned feeling that you would be guilty of heartless desertion of mother if, after marriage, you were to live apart from her. Yet the Bible, speaking of marriage, says "For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother——."

Now, to meet your question—shall I give up Janet or accede to her wish?—it is my belief that you can give up Janet, but you can never accede wholeheartedly to her prudent insistence on a home of her own in which to start marriage.

You might try to go her way, but you would be a demoralized man from start to finish of the effort, with both you and your mother bleeding inwardly from martyr-feelings, and Janet paying penalties in all sorts of ways for winning her point ostensibly. It just wouldn't work. In the final analysis you would turn back to mother, to assuage the remorse of your conditioned conscience. So you may as well make a clean break with Janet now. M. H.

Fashions in Summer Furnishings

Cool Look Is Achieved With Colors

By Peggy Preston

SAMPLES of plastic wallpaper that can double as floor covering captured the attention of guests at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Washington Fashion Group at the Washington Hotel.

The new wallpaper vied for honors with pure silk damasks and colorful chintz, and a beautifully decorated sample room, which were on display in the Washington Room, as part of the program entitled "Fashions in Summer Furnishings."

On hand to describe trends in modern home decoration were three New York guests, Norman Riley of Katzenbach & Warren, Inc., makers of wallpapers; John K. Tilton of Scalamandre Silks, Inc., and Humphrey Armitage Lee, president of the firm Arthur Lee & Sons, Inc., which specializes in English chintzes. John J. Greer of John J. Greer Associates of Georgetown described the highlights of the sample room which he assembled for the occasion.

Plaster Paper Used

A screen forming the wall of the sample room was finished in plastic wallpaper, made in the design of white brick. Thick and durable, it is also washable and is a simple, effective background for modern furnishings and draperies.

Against this white waldrop, Mr. Greer placed cool greens, grays and yellows, demonstrating the effect of a subdued color scheme for summer. Draperies were of white background with a large floral design of green and yellow, a chintz made by Arthur Lee & Sons.

"Cool colors have a psychological effect," explained Mr. Greer who warned that more than one pattern should never be used in a room if you want to avoid a cluttered, haphazard look.

Mr. Lee, in discussing trends in chintz fabrics for decorating, said that most of our most exotic modern designs have a foundation in Egyptian and Persian originals designed more than 200 years ago. Small sections of these have been copied, blown up and brought out in a crisp manner on modern fabrics to be hailed as the "new" designs of today.

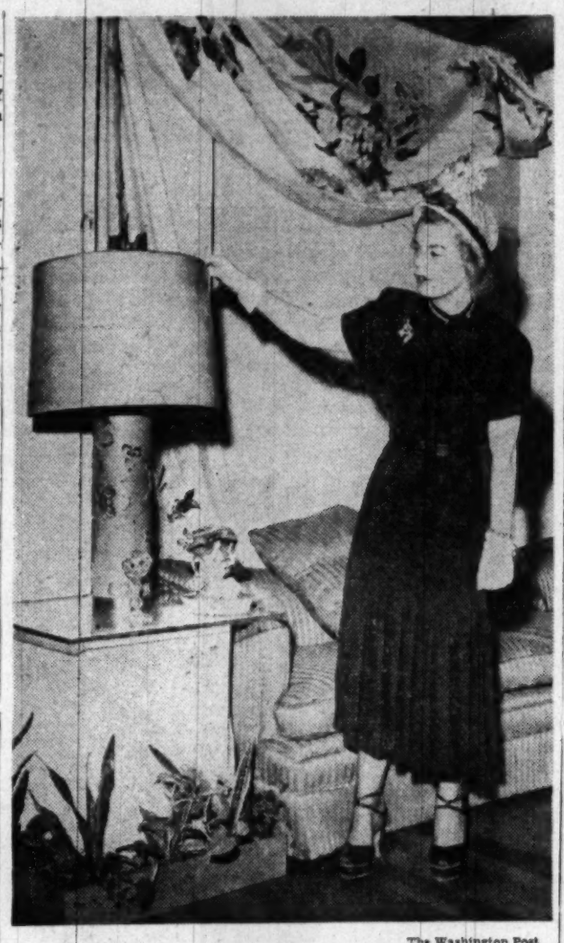
Williamsburg Fabrics Shown

The supremacy of weaving pure silk damasks has passed from Europe to the United States, accordng to Mr. Tilton, whose firm of Scalamandre Silks, Inc., made the fabrics used in the restoration of colonial Wiliamsburg. "We no longer need to go abroad for fine fabrics," he told the audience, "for we have learned to make them as well and better on this side of the Atlantic."

He concurred with Mr. Lee in stating that modern designs hark back to the antiquities in inspiration. New effects of ancient patterns are achieved by the use of new yarns and weaves, he said.

In describing the Williamsburg textiles which were on display in the room, Mr. Tilton explained that the rich silk damask were exact reproductions of those used in the colonial buildings. So closely were the originals copied that the cloth was woven in the special narrow width as turned out by the eighteenth century looms.

Yesterday's meeting was the last of the season for the Fashion Group. In the absence of Miss Gertrude Prisley, regional director, Miss Lee Walsh presided. Among the honor guests were Mrs. Claude Pepper and Miss Mady Christians, who is appearing this week in "Papa Is All" at Olney Theater.



The Washington Post

A PALE gray lampshade, made from a wallpaper "roller," was a point of interest to Mrs. William W. Bride, jr., in the sample room shown at the Fashion Group luncheon-meeting yesterday at the Washington Hotel. Color scheme of the room, set up by John J. Greer Associates of Georgetown, is green, white and gray. "Planter's" table, covered with plastic wallpaper, is so-called because it sits in a tin base in which are planted flowers and ferns.

Dr. Douglass Is Speaker At Ad Club

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, told the Women's Advertising Club of Washington, at a luncheon in the Washington Hotel yesterday, that women in colleges will work harder when they have a vocation in mind.

Although the stress has been in the cultural courses, Dr. Douglass believes the college and the women students would benefit by stressing vocational subjects.

At this meeting, the Advertising Club presented to Dr. Douglass for American University the first group of advertising books for the university library. This group of approximately 40 books is the first third of the fund allotted for this purpose.

Farm Numbers Decreasing, Zonta Club Hears

There are fewer farmers today than there were in 1910, Dr. Carl Cleveland Taylor, professor of sociology and chief of division of Farm Population and Rural Welfare, Bureau of Agriculture Economy in the Department of Agriculture, told the Zonta Club at a luncheon in the Dodge Hotel yesterday.

A business meeting preceded Dr. Taylor's talk on "Major Significant Trends in Rural Life as Compared to City Phenomenon."

Colonial Dames Give Benefit Show

More than 300 members and guests attended the benefit fashion show and tea given yesterday at Gadsby's Tavern by the Alexandria Committee of the Colonial Dames of America.

Proceeds are for the fund that is being used to restore Ramsey House, oldest house in Alexandria, which will figure prominently in the city's bicentennial celebration next year.

A color scheme of turquoise blue and gold, colors of the Colonial Dames, was carried out in the floral decorations for the tea table and rooms of the ancient tavern. Flowers were from the grounds of Wellington, Colonial home near Mount Vernon.

Tips on Serving Seafood

Here are some fish cookery tips to help you serve seafood at the peak of perfection:

Butter brings out the best flavor of fish in cooking or in the accompanying sauce. When broiling is done with a fat other than butter, a final basting with mayonnaise, French dressing, white wine, sherry, mustard, parsley—onion or puffy sauce gives an added zest to flavor. When margarine is substituted for butter, a little finely chopped onion or garlic browned with parsley will pep up the sauce.

Baked fish needs no basting during the cooking. For added flavor, after baking baste with white wine, sherry, sour cream or a basting sauce.

Shellfish served cold (lobster, shrimp, crab, oyster, clam) are excellently complemented with a cocktail sauce. Cold flaked fish may be served with cucumber sauce, mayonnaise or French dressing.

In frying fish, good quality fat or shortening must be used. Always serve fried fish with one of the following named sauces: Pimiento sauce, tartar sauce, Spanish sauce, hollandaise sauce or wine sauce.

Timely Cooking Cues

Add cocoanut to a lemon snow pudding and serve with a foamy lemon sauce.

Cake may be freshened by cutting in squares and reheating in a double boiler. Serve with a pudding sauce for dessert.

Finely cut fresh pineapple may be sweetened and mixed with orange segments for a first course; garnish with mint leaves and a maraschino cherry.

Mix sliced cucumbers with finely-cut onion and green pepper; add a dash of sugar, tarragon vinegar and some sour cream. Serve on salad greens with cold meat or broiled fish.

Put a quarter pound of ham, a quarter pound of snappy yellow cheese, and a third cup of pecans, walnuts or filberts through the food chopper; moisten with cooked salad dressing and use as a sandwich filling.

Cook cauliflower quickly in boiling, salted water. If the flower clusters are separated, 10 to 15 minutes should be enough. If the head is left whole, allow from 25 to 30 minutes.

White flour to be used in baking should always be sifted first. After it is sifted it should be piled lightly into a measuring cup with a spoon and leveled off with one stroke, using the edge of a spatula. If desired the flour may be sifted right into the measuring cup, thus eliminating an extra step.

Ask Anne — How to Mothproof Blankets

Can you tell me if there is any home method of mothproofing blankets. Is there a solution in which they can be washed that will make them proof against moths? P. H. M.

I understand that one of the large insecticide companies used to make a mothproofing solution in which fabrics could be dipped at home but that the manufacture of this product was discontinued about a year ago. There are sprays, however, that can be used on blankets to give moth protection. According to Department of Agriculture Leaflet 145 on the clothes moth, if a good solution of this type is applied so that the fabric becomes thoroughly wet, it imparts a resistance to moths that is of practical value. Dry cleaning, washing, and exposure to light gradually lessen the moth resistant quality imparted by the original treatment.

No solution, the leaflet says, will absolutely and permanently mothproof fabrics, although certain ones, when applied in the hot dye bath during the manufacturing process, more nearly achieve this desired result.

I wish to store my winter clothes in a metal wardrobe closet in our basement. I am concerned about mildew and mold forming, but have no other place to store them. Can you tell me how to protect against these? I understand a "dehumidifier" is now made for this purpose. Will my fur coat be all right in the metal wardrobe or would you advise storage? M. T.

Yes, there are several types of de-humidifiers on sale here in Washington. At least two of the local department stores carry them and they are also available through a firm listed under "Dehumidifying" in the Yellow Section of the telephone book. Consult with the salesman on how large a one you need to buy to give protection in the closet.

Placing furs in cold storage for the summer is certainly the safest course. If you do decide to store yours in the basement closet, be sure to use ample moth preventative and keep a check on dehumidifying equipment to be sure you have adequate protection there.

Can you tell me what the name Leocadia means? Has it an Anglican equivalent? I believe it is either Polish, Russian, Catholic. Or can any of your readers help me? F. J. N.

Leocadia is the name of a Roman Catholic saint. According to the Roman Missal, she was a maiden of Toledo who died in the year 303, condemned to death under Diocletian. In Flanders, she is known as "St. Locaie" but I doubt that her name has an Anglican equivalent. Can any of our readers enlighten us further?

For "Cat Lover," who wants to know how to rid her pet of fleas: May I suggest that she get powdered derris root at a drug store and rub it into her pet's fur? Since the cat may object a little, she can concentrate on a particular spot each day until over the period of a week she has covered the cat. By all means start with the area just behind the ears, then go over the rest of the head. Follow with the other tender spots. The advantages of this powder are that it will not harm the cat when it licks itself and that it does not cause the live fleas to jump off the cat. It will take longer to kill them, but they will be dead when they fall off. The lady should also be careful not to use DDT around her pet. Cats pick it upon their feet and in the process of licking themselves get enough to do harm. As for the derris root, at a time when it was very scarce, I found it at the drug store in the shopping center at Connecticut and Ordway nw.

Delta Zeta Sorority To Mark Virginia Day

The first Virginia State Day of the Delta Zeta sorority to be held in three years will be on Wednesday, June 16, at the Half Way House, located on U. S. Highway 1, 12 miles south of Richmond.

Mrs. Guy H. Gale, national vice president in charge of membership, will be guest speaker. Following luncheon there will be a discussion program concerning the problems and accomplishments of the sorority.

Reservations can be made with Mrs. H. C. Wintzer, State chairman for Virginia, Box 61, Hopewell, Va.

Brass Trimmings

When polishing brass trimmings on wooden doors it is well to hold a heavy piece of paper alongside of the brass so the polish does not get on the wood and cause discoloration. Knobs are more simple, as the paper may be slipped right over the knob, protecting the wood on all sides.

Touch It Up

That faded shabby place on the rug can be improved greatly by touching up the faded colors with crayon matching the former color as closely as possible. It takes away a great part of that shabby appearance and if done carefully, is hardly noticeable.

The Right Stiffness

If you wish to launder the very fine net curtains and desire just a small amount of stiffening in them, stiffen them with gum arabic instead of starch. It will give a delightful freshness that will preserve the new appearance of these fine curtains.

Now Y'all Can Resume Your Debate

My learned colleagues on the editorial page have been having themselves a time lately discussing the use of the phrase "you all."

Readers have kept the issue alive, by citing precedent for such usage. We're told that "you all" may be found in such standard works as Shakespeare and the Bible.

Which reminds me of the story about the Washington society matron who attended a party at which she met a member of the Danish diplomatic staff.

When the lady said that she had visited Denmark, and thought very highly of the Danes, the diplomat readily concurred in her high opinion of his people. "After all," he said, "we are preferred by God to all other peoples."

"Really?" murmured the lady. "In what way?"

"Don't you know?" replied the diplomat. "The Bible was written in Danish."

You've probably heard that same story told about Frenchmen, Italians or some other nationality. Maybe about Americans, for that matter. I repeat it now because it serves a double purpose.

It reminds us that God's children are pretty much the same the world over—and that we're not going to settle the debate over "you all" by the Bible, because the language used in Palestine in the days of Jesus and Paul was Aramaic.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

Speaking of religion, I suspect that officials at George Washington University are in for a surprise.

A questionnaire was circulated among the students recently, and one of the spaces asked for an answer to the query: "Religion."

Instead of answering soberly, the undergraduates have organized a plot calling for concerted action.

When the questionnaires are tabulated, GW statisticians will be surprised to learn that many of the respondents have listed their religion as "Druid."

HOME RUN RECORD

I recently quoted Shirley Povich as saying that the longest homer in Griffith Stadium history was hit by Babe Ruth, in 1922 or 1923.

Don Tillson of 4225 8th st. nw. adds an interesting sidelight to our discussion.

He says some authorities credit the longest Griffith Stadium homer to the late Josh Gibson, who clouted 84 round-trippers in one year, while playing with the Homestead Grays.

In 1943 Gibson hit 10 four-baggers in the local ball park—more (according to this dope) than the entire home run production of all the major leaguers who played here that season.

FOOLISH THIEF

I see that thieves broke into Pete Walcoff's grocery store at 5127 Grant st. ne. and made off with $641 in cash.

Why anybody would fool around with stealing money when he could just as easily walk out with a couple of sacks of groceries is beyond me. No sense of values, I guess.

MAIL BAG

Dear Son:

From our mail edition of The Washington Post, I note that you frequently use items which support your theory that "people are nicer than anybody." I have found another such item for you.

When I changed planes in Washington recently, I noticed that a man named Hopkins was extremely helpful and courteous to a befuddled old lady who was quite ill at the time.

Mr. Hopkins works for Eastern Airlines, at their airport ticket counter. I hope you will be able to write something nice about him, because the befuddled old lady he helped was me.

Mother.

Dear Mom:

I've extended my thanks and yours to Peyton Hopkins of 2445 15th st. nw.

By the way—does this reference to an "old" lady mean that you're about to abandon your annual practice of celebrating your "29th" birthday and (in keeping with these inflated times) move along to the higher brackets?. Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two very nice little kittens." (Randolph 3546).

"Five-month-old puppy, predominately collie." (Chestnut 3232).

AS THOUSANDS CHEER

James I. Black of 2025 I st. nw. submits this news dispatch as an indication that President Truman's sartorial judgment seems to have deserted him during the current western tour:

"The band struck up 'Hail to the Chief' and the throng gave out with a cheer as Mr. Truman walked onto a platform swathed in red, white and blue cheesecloth."

Oh, well. This isn't the first time a candidate wrapped himself in the flag to get votes.

NEW YORK.—A New York designer soon will offer silk scarves adorned with strange black and white lines—which are the charts used in Dr. Kinsey's book. . . . Mayor O'Dwyer, distressed by Truman's vacillation about supporting Israel, is weighing two invitations at city hall. The first is the invitation to head the New York State delegation to the convention. The second is for a Caribbean cruise during convention time.

Mrs. W. Averell Harriman sailed for Paris Wednesday to join her husband there. Mrs. Harriman is bringing woolies for him, because he complains of Paris' cold spell. . . . The French opera ballet troupe will open the International Dance Festival in New York at the City Center on September 20. . . . Joseph P. Kennedy discussed the empire's trade with Sir Stafford Cripps last month. Cripps told him: "Don't worry about the empire. If I can do as well in my trade deals with the rest of the world as I did with those brilliant executives of the movie business, the empire will do all right."

Eden Ahbez, author of "Nature Boy," shrugs at the mention of the plagerism suit brought against him. "How," he explains, "can you sue God?" . . . Harry Ruby, whose song hits include "Three Little Words," was offered a lift to the MGM studios by a friend driving a battered, rickety 1934 car. Ruby stared at the ancient, decrepit vehicle and declined the ride. "No, thanks," he told the driver. "And if you make it—you ought to give a big party."

The Urban League will be the beneficiary of an art exhibition which wil be held at the Associated American Artists Galleries in New York this fall. The exhibition will be of paintings by noted people in the theater, government, literature, etc. Winthrop Rockefeller, Winston Churchill, General Eisenhower, Beatrice Lillie and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt are expected to be among the exhibitors. The entire collection will be auctioned.

Albert Fournier, the French Chamber of Commerce official who has been visiting here, was the victim of a unique accident last month. While he was watching a performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, he suddenly was hit by a pair of binoculars which had fallen from the balcony. Fournier needed immediate medical attention, and then inquired about recompense for his pain, injury and medical expenses. He learned that the opera company has no legal responsibility to pay him. The lady who had dropped the binoculars hasn't enough money to make the suit worthwhile. And Fournier discovered, furthermore, that the law required him to return the binoculars to her.

Forrestal Slipping, Signs Suggest

By Drew Pearson

There are definite signs that James V. Forrestal, most powerful member of the Cabinet and the man with the most influence around the White House, is slipping. He has definitely slipped with Congress, and he is also slipping somewhat with President Truman.

There was a day when Forrestal could get anything he wanted from Harry Truman. He used the technique of telling Harry what a great man he was, how his policies were absolutely right, that he didn't have to worry about reelection.

But now those close to the President say he has wised up to the fact that the charming Secretary of Defense led him down a blind alley when he got him to reverse the United Nations on Palestine, and that a lot of Forrestal's other advice has had a hollow ring.

The Secretary of Defense, however, is not one to give up easily. He has had his way in Washington too many years—and power can be a headstrong potion. This explains why Forrestal is reported out to get the scalp of Air Secretary Stuart Symington, the man who licked him on the 70-group air force.

Under the Dome

The Government's huge aluminum plant, so necessary for the new 70-group Air Force, has been shut down by the Oregon flood . . . Argentina is experiencing a severe financial crisis. For the first time in history, Argentina has not been able to sell her national lottery tickets . . . Venerable GOP Senator Harlan Bushfield of South Dakota is putting up a hard fight for his life at the Naval Hospital. He was unconscious for 24 hours, with blood pressure up so high it couldn't be registered on a recording machine.

Peron and Paraguay

The overthrow of Higinio Morinigo as President of Paraguay was accomplished by military and civilian elements of his own party in a desperate attempt to keep the country from being completely taken over by President Juan D. Peron of Argentina.

Morinigo's position had been very precarious ever since he succeeded last year in crushing a revolution after five months' bloody conflict. Peron, however, helped keep him in power in exchange for economic concessions. This made Peron the real master of Paraguay.

However, domination of the little neighboring republic's trade and finance was not enough for the Argentine Fuehrer. With continuous attempts to oust Morinigo keeping the country in violent turmoil, Peron set out deliberately to foster these conditions and create total anarchy, thus giving him an excuse to move in troops.

Meanwhile, the leader of the revolt that failed, Col. Rafael Franco, continued unmolested in Buenos Aires with his staff. Argentine army men even visited him frequently for "private" talks, during which they always gave him encouraging counsel.

The ferment and wholesale terror in Paraguay thus became so sustained that hordes of simple citizens, who had no part in the political strife, sold all their belongings and fled the country.

Protecting Argentine

And the very interesting angle is that agents of the Argentine government have been on hand to snap up all the most valuable of these properties, at bargain-counter prices. This had a double-edged purpose; not only was it smart business, but it would provide a plausible excuse for sending in Peron's army to "protect Argentine interests" when the right time came.

Even the choice of a successor to Morinigo—who has ruled without elections for eight years—was dictated by Peron with an eye to stirring up more trouble. The man selected is J. Natalicio Gonzalez, leader of one faction of Morinigo's own Colorado Party. This split even that organization wide open; all other parties were already outlawed and their leaders in exile.

Now, in a last-ditch effort to prevent a new rebellion and the consequent anarchic state which would give Peron his pretext for taking over, army chiefs have ousted Morinigo and installed Dr. Manuel Frutos, a supreme court judge and generally respected elder statesman.

It is not likely that Peron's designs can be thwarted by this move. President-elect Gonzalez—"elected" without opposition last February—is due to take office August 15. The majority of those involved in the coup against Morinigo are Gonzalez supporters and will not seek to change his status. That leaves the political feuds just about as they were—except that the one man ruthless enough to keep a new, full-scale revolution from breaking out is gone.

All Peron has to do now is offer material aid to Rebel Chieftain Colonel Franco, and civil war in Paraguay will start again. It is a 100-to-1 shot that wily Juan Domingo is doing just that right now.
